Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(3) PAYMENT OF BENEFIT/355. Suspension, withholding and extinguishment of the right to payment.

355. Suspension, withholding and extinguishment of the right to payment.

Subject to statutory provision<sup>1</sup>, where it appears to the Secretary of State that a question arises whether (1) the conditions for entitlement are or were fulfilled; (2) an award ought to be revised; or (3) subject to statutory provision<sup>2</sup>, an appeal ought to be brought against an award, the Secretary of State may direct that payment of benefit under an award be suspended, in whole or in part, pending the determination of that question on review, appeal or reference<sup>3</sup>.

Where it appears to the Secretary of State that:

- 1076 (a) an appeal<sup>4</sup> has been brought or a question arises whether an appeal ought to be brought against a decision of a commissioner<sup>5</sup> or of the appropriate court in relation to a case ('the primary case'); and
- 1077 (b) if such an appeal were to be allowed a question would arise in relation to another case ('the secondary case') whether the award of benefit (whether the same benefit as in the primary case or not) in that case ought to be revised,

he may direct that payment of benefit under the award in the secondary case be suspended, in whole or in part:

- 1078 (i) until the time limit for making an application or lodging a petition for leave to appeal in the primary case has expired; or
- 1079 (ii) if such an application is made or petition lodged, until that application or petition and any consequent appeal has been determined, whichever is the later<sup>6</sup>.

Where a person who is in receipt of benefit fails to comply with the prescribed provisions<sup>7</sup>, in so far as they relate to documents, information or facts required by the Secretary of State, that benefit may be withheld, in whole or in part, from a date not earlier than 28 days after the date on which the requirement is imposed<sup>8</sup>.

Where it appears to the Secretary of State that a question arises whether any amount paid or payable to a person by way of, or in connection with, a claim for benefit is recoverable<sup>9</sup>, he may direct that any payment of arrears of benefit to that person must be withheld in whole or in part, pending determination of that question<sup>10</sup>.

Subject to statutory provision<sup>11</sup>, the right to payment of any sum by way of benefit must be extinguished where payment of that sum is not obtained within the period of 12 months from the date on which the right is to be treated as having arisen<sup>12</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> See ibid reg 37(1) (reg 37 substituted by SI 1992/247; and amended by SI 1996/1460). Where it appears to the Secretary of State that a question arises under the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37(1)(c) (as substituted and amended), he may only give directions that payment of benefit under the award be suspended within the relevant period: see reg 37(2) (as so substituted; and amended by SI 1993/2113). For the purposes of the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37 (as substituted and amended) 'relevant period' means the period of three months beginning with the date on which notice in writing of the decision in question and of the reasons for it is received by the adjudication officer; and a claimant is to be treated as having been given the notice required by reg 37(3) (as substituted and amended) on the date that it is posted to him at his last known address: see reg 37(5) (substituted by SI 1993/2113; and amended by SI 1996/2306). A suspension under the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37(1)(c) (as substituted and amended) ceases unless, within the relevant period, the claimant is given notice in writing that either an appeal or an application or petition for leave to appeal, whichever is appropriate, has been made against that decision: see reg 37(3) (amended by SI 1993/2113). Where the claimant has been given notice within the relevant period that either an appeal or an application or petition for leave to appeal has been made, the suspension may continue until the appeal or the application or the petition and any subsequent appeal have been determined: see the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37(4) (as substituted; amended by SI 1993/2113). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

4 In the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37A (as substituted) 'appeal' includes an appeal in relation to an application for judicial review made in accordance with the RSC Ord 53: see the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37A(2) (reg 37A substituted by SI 1993/2113).

5 For the meaning of 'commisioner' see PARA 30 note 3 ante.

6 See the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37A(1) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

7 In provisions of ibid reg 32(1) (as amended): see PARA 348 note 6 ante.

8 See ibid reg 37AA(1) (reg 37AA added by SI 1994/2319). As to payment of withheld benefit see the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37AB (as added); see PARA 348 notes 6-8 ante.

9 In under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71 or s 74 (both as amended), or regulations made under either section: see PARAS 354 ante, 385 et seq, 396 et seq post.

10 See the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 37B (substituted by SI 1992/247).

11 In the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 38(2A) (as added and amended).

12 See reg 38(1) (amended by SI 1989/1686; and SI 1996/672). For the purposes of the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 38 (as amended) the right must be treated as having arisen: (1) in relation to any such sum contained in an instrument of payment which has been given or sent to the person to whom it is payable, or to a place approved by the Secretary of State for collection by him (whether or not received or collected as the case may be): (a) on the date of that instrument of payment, or (b) if a further instrument of payment has been so given or sent as a replacement, on the date of the last such instrument of payment; (2) in relation to any such sum which is payable by means of an instrument for benefit payment, on the first date when payment of that benefit could be obtained by that means; (3) in relation to any such sum to which head (1) supra does not apply, where notice is given (whether orally or in writing) or is sent that the sum contained in the notice is available for collection on the date of the notice or, if more than one such notice is given or sent, the date of the first such notice; (4) in relation to any such sum to which none of heads (1), (2) or (3) supra apply, on such date as the Secretary of State determines: see reg 38(1) (amended by SI 1989/1686; and SI 1996/672).

For the purposes of the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 38(1) (as amended) the date of an instrument of payment is the date of issue of that instrument or, if the instrument specifies a date which is the earliest date on which payment can be obtained on the instrument and which is later than the date of issue, that date: see reg 38(3).

Where a question arises whether the right to payment of any sum by way of benefit has been extinguished by the operation of reg 38 (as amended) and the adjudicating authority is satisfied that: (i) the Secretary of State has first received written notice requesting payment of that sum after the expiration of 12 months; and (ii) from a day within that period of 12 months and continuing until the day the written notice was given, there was good cause for not giving the notice; and (iii) the Secretary of State has certified either: (A) that no instrument of payment has been given or sent to the person to whom it is payable and that no payment has been made under the provisions of reg 21 (as amended) (automated credit transfer); or (B) that such instrument has been produced to him and that no further instrument has been issued as a replacement, the period of 12 months must be extended to the date on which the adjudicating authority decides that question, and reg 38 (as amended) accordingly applies as though the right to payment had arisen on that date: see reg 38(2A) (added by SI 1989/1686; and amended by SI 1993/2113).

(4) ADJUDICATION

(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities

356. The statutory authorities.

In general, claims for benefit and questions arising from such claims are normally determined in the first instance by an adjudication officer<sup>1</sup>. Appeal from an adjudication officer's decision ordinarily lies to a social security appeal tribunal<sup>2</sup>. To this normal procedure there are, however, three principal exceptions:

- 1080 (1) certain questions (relating primarily to contributions and employment status) are reserved for decision by the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>, in which case the normal appeal procedures do not apply<sup>4</sup>;
- 1081 (2) certain medical questions relating to disablement for the purposes of industrial injury benefit<sup>5</sup> and severe disablement benefit<sup>6</sup> are determined by the adjudicating medical authorities, with appeal lying to a medical appeal tribunal<sup>7</sup>;
- 1082 (3) certain disability questions relating to disability living allowance<sup>8</sup>, disability working allowance<sup>9</sup> and attendance allowance<sup>10</sup>, though determined in the first instance by an adjudication officer, have special rules as to the form of that adjudication, and are subject to an appeal to a disability appeal tribunal<sup>11</sup>.

Appeal from a social security appeal tribunal, a medical appeal tribunal or a disability appeal tribunal lies on a point of law to a social security commissioner<sup>12</sup>, from whose decision a further appeal on a point of law lies to the Court of Appeal<sup>13</sup>.

The appeal tribunals are administered by the Independent Tribunal Service which is headed by the President of social security appeal tribunals, medical appeal tribunals and disability appeal tribunals. The President is appointed by the Lord Chancellor, after consultation with the Lord Advocate<sup>14</sup>. Similarly appointed are regional and other full-time chairmen of such tribunals<sup>15</sup>. The President is responsible for the nomination of a chairman for a tribunal<sup>16</sup>, the appointment of members on the panels of such tribunals<sup>17</sup>, the appointment of officers and staff<sup>18</sup>, the assignment of clerks to a tribunal<sup>19</sup>, the arrangement of meetings and training for chairmen and members and the provision to them of works of reference on social security law<sup>20</sup>. The social fund is subject to an entirely separate system of adjudication<sup>21</sup>.

Social security adjudication is not absolutely privileged for the purposes of the law of defamation<sup>22</sup>.

These provisions are in force, with exceptions in respect of specified benefits (see SI 1999/1958, SI 1999/2422, SI 1999/2739, SI 1999/2860, SI 1999/3178).

1. Decisions by Secretary of State

It is for the Secretary of State (1) to decide any claim for a relevant benefit<sup>1</sup>; (2) to decide any claim for a social fund payment<sup>2</sup>; and (3) to make any decision that falls to be made under or by virtue of a relevant enactment<sup>3</sup>. Where at any time a claim for a relevant benefit is decided by the Secretary of State the claim is not to be regarded as subsisting after that time; and accordingly, the claimant<sup>4</sup> is not (without making a further claim) entitled to the benefit on the basis of circumstances not obtaining at that time<sup>5</sup>.

1 Social Security Act 1998 s 8(1)(a). 'Relevant benefit' means any of the following: (1) benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pts II-V (ss 20-111); (2) a jobseeker's allowance; (3) an employment and support allowance; (4) state pension credit; (5) income support; (6) a social fund payment mentioned in s 138(1)(a) or (2); (7) child benefit; (8) such other benefit as may be prescribed: 1998 Act s 8(3) (amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 13 Pt VI; the State Pension Credit Act 2002 Sch 1 para 6; the Tax Credits Act 2002 Sch 6; and the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 17(3)(a)). See further the Social Security Act 1998 (Prescribed Benefits) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2529. The Social Security Act 1998 Pt 1 Ch II (ss 8-39) is to have effect as if health in pregnancy grant (see PARA 236A) were a relevant benefit for these purposes; and the functions of the Secretary of State are, in relation to that grant, exercisable by the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs: Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 132(8). As to notice of decisions of the Commissioners in relation to health in pregnancy grant see Health in Pregnancy Grant (Notices, Revisions and Appeals) (No 2) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/751, reg 2.

2 1998 Act s 8(1)(b), referring to the social fund payment mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 138(1)(b).

3 1998 Act s 8(1)(c). This does not include any decision which under the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 8 (see PARA 357) falls to be made by an officer of the Inland Revenue: 1998 Act s 8(5) (substituted by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 7 para 22(3)).

'Relevant enactment' means any enactment contained in the Social Security Act 1998 Pt I Ch II (ss 8-39), the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, the Social Security Administration Act 1992, the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992, the Jobseekers Act 1995, the State Pension Credit Act 2002 or the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1, other than one contained in Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt VII (ss 123-137) so far as relating to housing benefit and council tax benefit, the Social Security Administration Act 1992 Pt VIII (ss 134-140G) (arrangements for housing benefit and council tax benefit and related subsidies): 1998 Act s 8(4) (amended by the State Pension Credit Act 2002 Sch 1 para 6; and the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 17(3)(b)).

4 'Claimant', in relation to a joint-claim couple claiming a joint-claim jobseeker's allowance (within the meaning of the Jobseekers Act 1995), means the couple or either member of the couple: 1998 Act s 39(1) (amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act Sch 7 paras 1, 17). For the meaning of 'joint-claim couple' see PARA 260. For the meaning of 'joint-claim jobseeker's allowance' see PARA 260A.

5 1998 Act s 8(2).

2. Revision of decisions

Any decision of the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may be revised by the Secretary of State either within the prescribed period or in prescribed cases or circumstances; and either on an application made for the purpose or on his own initiative<sup>2</sup>. In making a decision under this provision, the Secretary of State need not consider any issue that is not raised by the application or, as the case may be, did not cause him to act on his own initiative<sup>3</sup>.

A revision takes effect as from the date on which the original decision took (or was to take) effect<sup>4</sup> but regulations may provide that, in prescribed cases or circumstances, a revision takes effect as from such other date as may be prescribed<sup>5</sup>. Where a decision is revised under these provisions, for the purpose of any rule as to the time allowed for bringing an appeal, the decision is to be regarded as made on the date on which it is so revised<sup>6</sup>. Except in prescribed circumstances, an appeal against a decision of the Secretary of State lapses if the decision is revised before the appeal is determined<sup>7</sup>.

1    Ie under the Social Security Act 1998 s 8 (see PARA 356A.1) or 10 (see PARA 356A.3).

In making such a decision, the Secretary of State need not consider any issue that is not raised by the application or, as the case may be, did not cause him to act on his own initiative<sup>7</sup>.

A decision under these provisions take effect as from the date on which it is made or, where applicable, the date on which the application was made<sup>8</sup>.

Regulations may make provision requiring the Secretary of State, where on consideration of any claim or other matter he is of the opinion that there arises any issue which falls to be decided<sup>1</sup> by an officer of the Inland Revenue, to refer the issue to the Inland Revenue<sup>2</sup>. Regulations under these provisions may (1) provide for the Inland Revenue to give the Secretary of State a preliminary opinion on any issue referred to it, (2) specify the circumstances in which an officer of the Inland Revenue is to make a decision<sup>3</sup> on a reference by the Secretary of State, (3) enable or require the Secretary of State, in specified circumstances, to deal with any other issue arising on consideration of the claim or other matter pending the decision on the referred issue, and (4) require the Secretary of State to decide the claim or other matter in accordance with the decision of an officer of the Inland Revenue on the issue referred to it, or in accordance with any determination of the tax appeal commissioners made on appeal from their decision<sup>4</sup>.

5. Regulations with respect to decisions

Provision may be made by regulations for the making of any decision by the Secretary of State under or in connection with the current legislation<sup>1</sup>, or the former legislation<sup>2</sup>, including a decision on a claim for benefit<sup>3</sup>. Where it appears to the Secretary of State that a matter before him involves a question of fact requiring special expertise, he may direct that in dealing with that matter he is to have the assistance of one or more experts<sup>4</sup>.

6. Appeal to First-tier Tribunal

The following provisions apply to any decision of the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> which (1) is made on a claim for, or on an award of, a relevant benefit, and is not a decision against which no appeal lies<sup>2</sup>, or (2) is made otherwise than on such a claim or award, and is a decision against which an appeal lies<sup>3</sup>. In the case of any such decision, the claimant<sup>4</sup> and such other person as may be prescribed has a right to appeal to the First-tier Tribunal but this does not confer a right of appeal in relation to a prescribed decision, or a prescribed determination embodied in or necessary to a decision<sup>5</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State has determined that any amount is recoverable<sup>6</sup>, any person from whom he has determined that it is recoverable has the same right of appeal to the First-tier Tribunal as a claimant<sup>7</sup>. In any case where the Secretary of State has made a decision in relation to a claim for industrial injuries benefit<sup>8</sup>; and the entitlement to benefit of any person other than the claimant is or may be affected<sup>9</sup> by that decision, that other person has the same right of appeal to the First-tier Tribunal as the claimant<sup>10</sup>.

A person with a right of appeal under the provisions above must be given such notice of a decision under those provisions and of that right as may be prescribed<sup>11</sup>. Regulations may make provision as to the manner in which, and the time within which, appeals are to be brought<sup>12</sup>.

In deciding an appeal, the First-tier Tribunal need not consider any issue that is not raised by the appeal, and must not take into account any circumstances not obtaining at the time when the decision appealed against was made<sup>13</sup>.

1   Ie under the Social Security Act 1998 s 8 (see PARA 356A.1) or 10 (see PARA 356A.3) (whether as originally made or as revised under s 9: see PARA 356A.2).

8. Appeal from tribunal to the Upper Tribunal

An appeal to the Upper Tribunal<sup>1</sup> lies under these provisions at the instance of any of the following; (1) the Secretary of State; (2) the claimant<sup>2</sup> and such other person as may be prescribed; (3) in any of the cases mentioned in heads (a)-(c) below, a trade union; and (4) a person from whom it is determined that any amount is recoverable<sup>3</sup>.

In a case relating to industrial injuries benefit an appeal to the Upper Tribunal<sup>4</sup> lies at the instance of a person whose entitlement to benefit is, or may be, affected<sup>5</sup> by the decision appealed against, as well as at the instance of any person or body such as is mentioned in head (3) above<sup>6</sup>. An appeal lies at the instance of a trade union (a) where the claimant is a member of the union at the time of the appeal and was so immediately before the matter in question arose; (b) where that matter in any way relates to a deceased person who was a member of the union at the time of his death; (c) where the case relates to industrial injuries benefit and the claimant or, in relation to industrial death benefit, the deceased, was a member of the union at the time of the relevant accident<sup>7</sup>.

decision mentioned in head (1) above was given; (3) any other person who is authorised by regulations to apply for permission<sup>2</sup>.

The Senior President of Tribunals must ensure that appropriate steps are taken by the First-tier Tribunal to secure the confidentiality, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, of any prescribed material, or any prescribed classes or categories of material<sup>3</sup>.

The Lord Chancellor shall publish the report: s 15A(3).

10. Procedure

Procedure regulations may make provision (1) prescribing the procedure to be followed in connection with (a) the making of decisions or determinations by the Secretary of State, and (b) the withdrawal of claims, applications, appeals or references falling to be decided or determined by the Secretary of State, (2) as to the form which is to be used for any document, the evidence which is to be required and the circumstances in which any official record or certificate is to be sufficient or conclusive evidence, (3) as to the time within which, or the manner in which any evidence is to be produced, or any application, reference or appeal is to be made, (4) for the non-disclosure to a person of the particulars of any medical advice or medical evidence given or submitted for the purposes of a determination<sup>1</sup>.

11. Finality of decisions

Any decision made in accordance with specified provisions<sup>1</sup> is final; and subject to the provisions of any regulations<sup>2</sup>, any decision made in accordance with those regulations is final<sup>3</sup>.

If and to the extent that regulations so provide, any finding of fact or other determination embodied in or necessary to such a decision, or on which such a decision is based, is conclusive for the purposes of further such decisions, decisions made under the Child Support Act 1991, and decisions made under the Vaccine Damage Payments Act 1979<sup>4</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> I.e. the Social Security Act 1998 Pt 1 Ch 2 (ss 8-39), and to any provision made by or under the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 Pt 1 Ch 2 (ss 3-29).

12. Matters arising as respects decisions

Regulations may make provision as respects matters arising pending any decision<sup>1</sup> of the Secretary of State, or the First-tier Tribunal, or any decision of the Upper Tribunal which relates to any decision<sup>2</sup> of the First-Tier Tribunal, which relates to (1) any claim for a relevant benefit; (2) any person's entitlement to such a benefit or its receipt; or (3) out of the revision of a decision<sup>3</sup> or on appeal of any such decision<sup>4</sup>.

<sup>4</sup> Ibid s 18(1) (amended by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 7 para 29, Sch 10 Pt I). Regulations under the 1998 Act s 18(1) as it applies to child benefit may include provision as to the date from which child benefit is to be payable to a person in respect of a child or qualifying young person in a case where, before the benefit was awarded to that person, child benefit in respect of the child or qualifying young person was awarded to another person: s 18(2) (amended by Child Benefit Act 2005 Sch 1 para 26). See the Social Security and Child Support (Decisions and Appeals) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/991; and PARA 356A.13. As to qualifying young persons see PARA 238.

13. Medical examinations

Before making a decision on a claim for a relevant benefit<sup>1</sup>, or as to a person's entitlement to such a benefit, the Secretary of State may refer the person in respect of whom the claim is made, or whose entitlement is at issue, to a health care professional<sup>2</sup> approved by the Secretary of State for such examination and report as appears to the Secretary of State to be necessary for the purpose of providing him with information for use in making the decision<sup>3</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State has exercised this power, and the health care professional approved by the Secretary of State requests the person referred to him to attend for or submit himself to medical examination, if the person fails without good cause to comply with the request, the Secretary of State must make the decision against him<sup>4</sup>.

Where an appeal has been brought<sup>5</sup> against a decision on a claim for a relevant benefit, or as to a person's entitlement to such a benefit<sup>6</sup>, the First-tier Tribunal<sup>7</sup> may, if conditions prescribed by Tribunal Procedure Rules are satisfied, refer the person in respect of whom the claim is made, or whose entitlement is at issue, to a health care professional approved by the Secretary of State for such examination and report as appears to the First-tier Tribunal to be necessary for the purpose of providing it with information for use in determining the appeal<sup>8</sup>. At a hearing before the First-tier Tribunal, except in cases or circumstances prescribed by Tribunal Procedure Rules, the tribunal may not carry out a physical examination of the person in respect of whom the claim is made, or whose entitlement is at issue, and may not require that person to undergo any physical test for the purpose of determining whether he is suffering from physical disablement such that he is either unable to walk or virtually unable to do so<sup>9</sup>.

Regulations may provide for the suspension of benefit in prescribed circumstances<sup>10</sup> or for the suspension of benefit for failure to comply with information requirements<sup>11</sup>. Regulations may also provide that a person who has failed to furnish information, or a person whose benefit has been suspended, ceases to be entitled to the benefit<sup>12</sup>. In the case of a failure to submit to medical examination where required to do so, regulations may provide for the suspension or termination of the relevant benefit<sup>13</sup>.

2 'Health care professional' means (1) a registered medical practitioner, (2) a registered nurse, (3) an occupational therapist or physiotherapist registered with a regulatory body established by an Order in Council under the Health Act 1999 s 60, or (4) a member of such other profession regulated by a body mentioned in the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 25(3) as the Secretary of State may prescribe: Social Security Act 1998 s 39(1) (amended by Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 62(5)).

14. Appeals dependent on issues falling to be decided by the Inland Revenue

Regulations may make provision for the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal, where on any appeal there arises any issue which falls to be decided<sup>1</sup> by the Inland Revenue, to require the Secretary of State to refer the issue to the Inland Revenue<sup>2</sup>. Such regulations may provide for the appeal to be referred to the Secretary of State pending the decision by an officer of the Inland Revenue, enable or require the Secretary of State, in specified circumstances, to deal with any other issue arising on the appeal pending the decision on the referred issue, and enable the Secretary of State, on receiving the decision of an officer of the Inland Revenue, or any determination of the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal made on an appeal from his decision (1) to revise his decision, (2) to make a decision superseding his decision, or (3) to refer the appeal to the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal for determination<sup>3</sup>.

3 1998 Act s 24A(2) (s 24A as added and amended: see NOTE 2).

15. Decisions and appeals dependent on other cases

Where a decision by the Secretary of State falls to be made<sup>1</sup> in relation to a particular case, and an appeal is pending against the decision given in another case by the Upper Tribunal or a court (whether or not the two cases concern the same benefit), in a case relating to a relevant benefit<sup>2</sup>, the Secretary of State need not make the decision while the appeal is pending if he considers it possible that the result of the appeal will be such that, if it were already determined, there would be no entitlement to benefit<sup>3</sup>.

If the Secretary of State considers it possible that the result of the appeal will be such that, if it were already determined, it would affect the decision in some other way, (1) he need not, except in such cases or circumstances as may be prescribed, make the decision while the appeal is pending, (2) he may, in such cases or circumstances as may be prescribed, make the decision on such basis as may be prescribed<sup>4</sup>. Where the Secretary of State acts in accordance with head (2), following the determination of the appeal he must if appropriate revise his decision<sup>5</sup> in accordance with that determination<sup>6</sup>.

For these purposes, an appeal against a decision is pending if an appeal against the decision has been brought but not determined, an application for leave to appeal against the decision has been made but not determined, or in such circumstances as may be prescribed, an appeal against the decision has not been brought (or, as the case may be, an application for leave to appeal against the decision has not been made) but the time for doing so has not yet expired<sup>7</sup>.

Where (1) an appeal ('appeal A') in relation to a decision<sup>8</sup> is made to the First-tier Tribunal, or from the First-tier Tribunal to the Upper Tribunal<sup>9</sup>; and (2) an appeal ('appeal B') is pending against a decision given in a different case by the Upper Tribunal or a court (whether or not the two appeals concern the same benefit), if the Secretary of State considers it possible that the result of appeal B will be such that, if it were already determined, it would affect the determination of appeal A, he may serve notice requiring the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal (a) not to determine appeal A but to refer it to him, or (b) to deal with the appeal in accordance with the following provisions<sup>10</sup>.

Where appeal A is referred to the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup>, following the determination of appeal B and in accordance with that determination, he must if appropriate in a case where appeal A has not been determined by the First-tier Tribunal, revise<sup>12</sup> his decision which gave rise to that appeal, or in a case where appeal A has been determined by the First-tier Tribunal, make a decision<sup>13</sup> superseding the tribunal's decision<sup>14</sup>.

Where appeal A is to be dealt with in accordance with this provision, the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal must either (i) stay appeal A until appeal B is determined, or (ii) if the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal considers it to be in the interests of the appellant to do so, determine appeal A as if (A) appeal B had already been determined, and (B) the issues arising on appeal B had been decided in the way that was most unfavourable to the appellant<sup>15</sup>. Where the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal acts in accordance with head (ii) above, following the determination of appeal B the Secretary of State must, if appropriate, make a decision<sup>16</sup> superseding the decision of the First-tier Tribunal or Upper Tribunal in accordance with that determination<sup>17</sup>.

For these purposes, an appeal against a decision is pending if an appeal against the decision has been brought but not determined, an application for leave to appeal against the decision has been made but not determined, or in such circumstances as may be prescribed, an appeal against the decision has not been brought (or, as the case may be, an application for leave to appeal against the decision has not been made) but the time for doing so has not yet expired<sup>18</sup>.

Regulations may make provision supplementing these provisions<sup>19</sup>.

16. Cases of error

The following provisions apply, where (1) the effect of the determination, whenever made, of an appeal to the Upper Tribunal or the court<sup>1</sup> ('the relevant determination')<sup>2</sup> is that the adjudicating authority's<sup>3</sup> decision out of which the appeal arose was erroneous in point of law<sup>4</sup>, and (2) after the date of the relevant determination a decision falls to be made by the Secretary of State in accordance with that determination (or would, apart from this provision, fall to be so made) (a) in relation to a claim for benefit<sup>5</sup>, (b) as to whether to revise<sup>6</sup> a decision as to a person's entitlement to benefit<sup>7</sup>, or (c) on an application<sup>8</sup> for a decision as to a person's entitlement to benefit to be superseded<sup>9</sup>.

In so far as the decision relates to a person's entitlement to a benefit in respect of a period before the date of the relevant determination, or in the case of a widow's payment, a death occurring before that date, it must be made as if the adjudicating authority's decision had been found by the Upper Tribunal or court not to have been erroneous in point of law<sup>10</sup>.

Regulations may be made with respect to the correction of accidental errors in decisions of the Secretary of State or records of decisions of the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup>.

1 'The court' means the High Court, the Court of Appeal, the Supreme Court or the Court of Justice of the European Community: Social Security Act 1998 s 27(7) (amended as from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) by Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 9 para 64).

2 The date of the relevant determination must be determined, in prescribed cases, for the purposes of the 1998 Act s 27 in accordance with any regulations made for that purpose: s 27(9). Regulations under s 27(9) may include provision for a determination of a higher court to be treated as if it had been made on the date of a determination of a lower court or the Upper Tribunal, or for a determination of a lower court or the Upper Tribunal to be treated as if it had been made on the date of a determination of a higher court: s 27(10) (amended by SI 2008/2833).

3 'Adjudicating authority' means the Secretary of State, or any former officer, tribunal or body: 1998 Act s 27(7). 'Former officer, tribunal or body' means any of the following: (1) an adjudication officer or, in the case of a decision given on a reference under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 21(2) or 25(1) a social security appeal tribunal, a disability appeal tribunal or a medical appeal tribunal; (2) an adjudicating medical practitioner appointed under s 49 or a specially qualified adjudicating medical practitioner appointed in accordance with regulations under s 62(2); or (3) the National Assistance Board, the Supplementary Benefits Commission, the Attendance Allowance Board, a benefit officer, an insurance officer or a supplement officer: 1998 Act s 27(7).

4 Ibid s 27(1)(a) (amended by SI 2008/2833). This is to be read as including a case where the effect of the relevant determination is that part or all of a purported regulation or order is invalid, and the error of law made by the adjudicating authority was to act on the basis that the purported regulation or order (or the part held to be invalid) was valid: 1998 Act s 27(5).

5 'Benefit' means (1) benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pts II-V (ss 20-111), other than Old Cases payments; (2) benefit under the Social Security Act 1975 Pt II (ss 12-92) (repealed) (in respect of a period before 1 July 1992 but not before 6 April 1975); (3) benefit under the National Insurance Act 1946 or 1965, or the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act 1946 or 1965 (in respect of a period before 6 April 1975); (4) a jobseeker's allowance; (5) state pension credit; (6) an employment and support allowance; (7) any benefit corresponding to a benefit mentioned in heads (1)-(6); and (8) any income-related benefit: 1998 Act s 27(7) (amended by the State Pension Credit Act 2002 Sch 1 para 9; and the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 17(5)).

6 Ibid under the 1998 Act s 9: see PARA 356A.2.

7 Any reference to entitlement to benefit includes a reference to entitlement to any increase in the rate of a benefit, or to a benefit, or increase of benefit, at a particular rate: ibid s 27(8).

8 Ibid under ibid s 10: see PARA 356A.3.

9 Ibid s 27(1)(b). Section 27 does not apply where the decision of the Secretary of State mentioned in s 27(1)(b) is one which, but for s 25(2) or (3)(a) (see PARA 356A.15), would have been made before the date of the relevant determination, or is one made in pursuance of s 26(3) or (5): s 27(2). It is immaterial for the purposes of s 27(1) where such a decision as is mentioned in TEXT head (2)(a) falls to be made, whether the claim was made before or after the date of the relevant determination, where such a decision as is mentioned in head (2)(b) or (c) in the text falls to be made on an application under s 9 or 10, whether the application was made before or after that date: s 27(6).

10 Ibid s 27(3) (amended by SI 2008/2833). In deciding whether a person is entitled to benefit in a case where his entitlement depends on his having been entitled to the same or some other benefit before attaining a particular age, the 1998 Act s 27(3) must be disregarded for the purpose only of deciding whether he was so entitled before attaining that age: s 27(4).

11 Ibid s 28 (amended by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 7 para 34; the State Pension Credit Act 2002 Sch 1 para 10; the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 17(6), Sch 8; and SI 2008/2833).

358. Appeal from and review of determinations and decisions of the Secretary of State.

A question of law arising in connection with the determination by the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> of any relevant question<sup>2</sup>, is not subject to the normal forms of appeal<sup>3</sup>. Such a question may, if the Secretary of State thinks fit, be referred for decision to the High Court or, in Scotland, to the Court of Session<sup>4</sup>. Any person aggrieved by the decision of the Secretary of State on any such question of law which is not so referred may appeal from that decision to the court<sup>5</sup>. Notwithstanding anything in any Act, the decision of the court on such a reference or appeal is final<sup>6</sup>.

The Secretary of State may review any decision given by him on any such question, if:

- 1095 (1) new facts have been brought to his notice; or
- 1096 (2) he is satisfied that the decision was (a) given in ignorance of some material fact; (b) based on a mistake as to some material fact; or (c) erroneous in point of law<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 Ie any question as is mentioned in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 17(1) (as amended): see PARA 357 ante.

3 As to the normal forms of appeal see PARA 356 ante.

4 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 18(1). If the Secretary of State determines to refer any question of law to the court, he must give notice in writing of his intention to do so (1) in a case where the question arises on an application made to the Secretary of State, to the applicant; and (2) in any case, to such persons as appear to him to be concerned with the question: s 18(2).

5 Ibid s 18(3). The Secretary of State is entitled to appear and be heard on any such reference or appeal; and on any such reference or appeal the court may order him to pay the costs of any other person, whether or not the decision is in that other person's favour and whether or not the Secretary of State appears on the reference or appeal: see s 18(4), (7).

6 Ibid s 18(6). Rules of court are to include provision for regulating references and appeals under s 18 and for limiting the time within which such appeals may be brought: s 18(5). The relevant provisions are contained in RSC Ord 111.

7 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 19(1). A decision may not, however, be reviewed while an appeal under s 18 is pending against the decision of the Secretary of State on a question of law arising in connection with it, or before the time for so appealing has expired: s 19(2). On a review any question of law may be referred under s 18(1) or, where it is not so referred, may be the subject of an appeal under s 18(3), and the other provisions of s 18 apply accordingly: s 19(3). See also the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 17(2), which applies similar review powers to any determination given by the Secretary of State on any question referred to in reg 17(1): see PARA 357 ante. A decision of the Secretary of State on a question under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(7) (see PARA 101 ante) or on any question which by virtue of regulations falls to be determined by the Secretary of State in his discretion may be given so as to have effect with respect to a period before the date of the decision; and he may at any time and from time to time reconsider the exercise of his discretion with respect to such a question and decide it again with such other effects as may seem to him to be proper in the circumstances of the case: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 17(3).

358 Appeal from and review of determinations and decisions of the Secretary of State

TEXT AND NOTES--Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 18, 19 repealed: Social Security Act 1998 Sch 8. Appeals are now made to the tax appeal commissioners: see Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions) Act 1999 ss 10-12 (ss 10, 12 amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 77(6); s 11 amended by the Employment Act 2002 s 9). See the Social Security Contributions (Decisions and Appeals) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1027 (amended by SI 2001/4023, SI 2002/3120, SI 2009/56, SI 2009/777).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/359. Adjudication by adjudication officers.

359. Adjudication by adjudication officers.

Adjudication officers are appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup>, subject to the consent of the Treasury as to numbers, and may include officers of the Department for Education and Employment appointed with the concurrence of the Secretary of State in charge of that department, or officers of the Northern Ireland department appointed with the concurrence of that department<sup>2</sup>. An adjudication officer is appointed to perform all the functions of adjudication officers under any enactment or such functions of such officers as may be specified in his instrument of appointment<sup>3</sup>. The Secretary of State also appoints a chief adjudication officer, whose duty it is to advise adjudication officers on the performance of their functions under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 or any other Act, to keep under review the operation of the system of adjudication by adjudication officers and matters connected with the operation of that system and to report annually in writing to the Secretary of State on standards of adjudication<sup>4</sup>.

There must be submitted forthwith to an adjudication officer for determination<sup>5</sup>:

- 1097 (1) any claim for a relevant benefit<sup>6</sup>;
- 1098 (2) any question arising in connection with a claim for, or award of, such a benefit<sup>7</sup>;
- 1099 (3) any question whether, if he otherwise had a right to it, a person would be disqualified under or by virtue of any provision of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 for receiving such a benefit; and
- 1100 (4) any question whether a jobseeker's allowance is not payable, in specified circumstances<sup>8</sup>, to a person<sup>9</sup>.

An adjudication officer to whom a claim or question is so submitted<sup>10</sup> must take it into consideration and, so far as practicable<sup>11</sup>, dispose of it<sup>12</sup> within 14 days of its submission to him<sup>13</sup>.

The adjudication officer must decide a claim for or question relating to an attendance allowance, a disability living allowance or a disability working allowance himself<sup>14</sup>. In addition, if on consideration of any claim or question an adjudication officer is of the opinion that there arises any question which falls to be determined otherwise than by an adjudication officer, he must refer the question for such determination<sup>15</sup>. Subject to these exceptions, however, he may either decide a claim or question himself or refer it to a social security appeal tribunal<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 38(1).

3 Ibid s 38(2).

4 See ibid s 39(1)-(4). The Secretary of State must publish the annual report so provided: see s 39(4).

5 I.e. determination in accordance with the Social Security Administration Act 1992 Pt II (ss 17-70) (as amended): see PARAS 356-358 ante, 360 et seq post.

6 The relevant benefits are: (1) benefits as defined in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122 (as amended) (see PARA 13 note 8 ante); (2) a jobseeker's allowance (see PARA 258 et seq ante); (3) income support (see PARA 176 et seq ante); (4) family credit (see PARA 202 et seq ante); (5) disability working allowance (see PARA 218 et seq ante); (6) any social fund payment as is mentioned in s 138(1)(a) or (2) (see PARA 228 ante); (7) child benefit (see PARA 237 et seq ante); (8) statutory sick pay (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 498 et seq); and (9) statutory maternity pay (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 365 et seq): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 20(6) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 42).

7 This provision does not apply to any question which (1) may be determined by an adjudication officer under the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 9(6) or s 10(5) (see PARAS 297, 299 ante); or (2) falls to be determined otherwise than by an adjudication officer: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 20(2) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 42). If a person submits a question relating to the age, marriage or death of any person, and it appears to the adjudication officer that the question may arise if the person who has submitted it to him submits a claim to a benefit to which the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 20 (as amended) applies, the adjudication officer may determine the question: s 20(4).

Any question as to, or in connection with, entitlement to statutory sick pay or statutory maternity pay may be submitted to an adjudication officer by the Secretary of State or, subject to and in accordance with regulations, by the employee concerned, for determination in accordance with Pt II (ss 17-70) (as amended): s 20(3). A question in relation to statutory sick pay or statutory maternity pay to which s 20(3) applies may be submitted to an adjudication officer by the employee concerned by way of application in writing in a form approved for the purpose of the Secretary of State or in such other manner, being in writing, as he may accept as sufficient in the circumstances and such an application must be delivered or sent to a local office within six months of the earliest day in respect of which liability for statutory sick pay or statutory maternity pay is in dispute and state the grounds (if any) on which the applicant's employer has denied liability in respect of the period specified in the application: see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 20. As to the special provisions which apply in relation to certain questions concerning child benefit see reg 21.

8 Is not payable to a person by virtue of the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 19 (as amended): see PARAS 304-306 ante.

9 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 20(1) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), (5), Sch 2 para 42, Sch 3; and the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 para 46). Different aspects of the same claim or question may be submitted to different adjudication officers; and for that purpose the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 20 (as amended) and the other provisions of Pt II with respect to the determination of claims and questions apply with any necessary modifications: s 20(5).

10 Is submitted under ibid s 20 (as amended), other than a claim which under s 30(12), (13) or s 35(7) falls to be treated as an application for review: see s 21(1).

11 This requirement does not impose a duty on the Secretary of State to ensure that all claims be considered within 14 days and then disposed of within that time or as soon as practicable thereafter; instead it is sufficient if consideration of the claim enables it to be disposed of within 14 days or as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter and accordingly matters independent of the claim, such as the volumes of claims awaiting determination or the number of adjudication officers available, can be relevant in determining whether a claim has been disposed of within 14 days or as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter: R v Secretary of State for Social Services, ex p Child Poverty Action Group [1990] 2 QB 540, [1989] 1 All ER 1047, CA.

12 Is in accordance with the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 21 and with procedure regulations under s 59.

13 Ibid s 21(1). Subject to the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, regs 18(2), 55 (as substituted), the decision of an adjudication officer on any claim or question and the reasons for it must be notified in writing to the claimant who must at the same time be informed (1) in the case of a decision of an adjudication officer (a) under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 21 relating to attendance allowance, disability living allowance or disability working allowance; or (b) on a review under s 30(2), (4) or s 35, of his right to a review under s 30(1); (2) in the case of a decision of an adjudication officer under s 30(1), of his right of appeal (a) to a disability appeal tribunal where the appeal relates to the determination of a disability question; and (b) to an appeal tribunal in any other case; (3) in all other cases, of his right of appeal to an appeal tribunal under s 22: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 18(1). Regulation 18(1) does not apply in relation to a decision (other than a decision given on review) awarding benefit for a period which begins immediately after a period in respect of which the claimant had been awarded benefit of the same kind and at the same rate as that awarded by the first-mentioned decision: reg 18(2). A claimant may in certain cases also have to be informed of his right to have a question which was decided by an adjudication officer and with which the claimant is dissatisfied remitted to the Secretary of State for decision (see PARA 357 ante): see reg 19.

14 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 21(3).

15 Ibid s 37(1)(a). As to similar provision in the case of a social security appeal tribunal or commissioner see s 37(1)(b). The person or tribunal making or directing the reference must then deal with any other question as if the referred question had not arisen: s 37(2). The adjudication officer may (1) postpone the reference of, or dealing with, any question until other questions have been determined; or (2) in cases where the determination of any question disposes of a claim or any part of it, make an award or decide that an award cannot be made, as to the claim or that part of it, without referring or dealing with, or before the determination of, any other question: s 37(3).

16 See ibid s 21(2). Where an adjudication officer refers a question as to, or in connection with, entitlement to statutory sick pay or statutory maternity pay to a social security appeal tribunal, the employee and employer concerned must each be given notice in writing of the reference: s 21(4). In any other case notice in writing of the reference must be given to the claimant: s 21(5). Where a case has been referred to a social security appeal tribunal and the claimant makes a further claim which raises the same or similar questions, which is itself referred to the tribunal by the adjudication officer, then the tribunal may proceed to determine the further claim whether or not notice has been given under s 21(4) or (5): s 21(6).

Such an issue must be decided by the officer only on the basis of such an application or on his own initiative: reg 2(2). The application must be made in writing, in a form approved for the purpose by the Board, or in such manner, being in writing, as an officer may accept as sufficient in the circumstances: reg 3(1). Where such an application is made by an employee it must (1) be delivered or sent to an office of the Board within six months of the earliest day in respect of which entitlement to statutory sick pay or statutory maternity pay is in issue, (2) state the period in respect of which entitlement is in issue, and (3) state the grounds (if any) on which the applicant's employer has denied liability in respect of the period specified in the application: reg

3(2). In relation to statutory sick pay 'employee' and 'employer' have the meanings given by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 163(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 504, 511): SI 1999/776 reg 1(2). In relation to statutory maternity pay 'employee' and 'employer' have the meanings given by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 372, 378): SI 1999/776 reg 1(2).

360. Social security appeal tribunals.

The President of social security appeal tribunals, disability appeal tribunals and medical appeal tribunals<sup>1</sup>, constitutes for the whole of Great Britain<sup>2</sup>, to act for such areas as he thinks fit and be composed of such persons as he thinks fit to appoint, panels of persons to act as members of social security appeal tribunals<sup>3</sup>. A social security appeal tribunal consists of a chairman<sup>4</sup> and two other persons<sup>5</sup>. If practicable, at least one of the members of the appeal tribunal hearing a case must be of the same sex as the claimant<sup>6</sup>.

Where a matter before a social security appeal tribunal involves a question as to whether a person satisfies the 'all work test'<sup>7</sup> that tribunal must sit with a medical assessor<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the President of social security appeal tribunals, disability appeal tribunals and medical appeal tribunals see PARA 356 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

3 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 40(1). The panel for an area is composed of persons appearing to the President to have knowledge or experience of conditions in the area and to be representative of persons living or working in the area: s 40(2). Before appointing members of a panel, the President must take into consideration any recommendations from such organisations or persons as he considers appropriate: s 40(3). The members of the panels hold office for such period as the President may direct, but he may at any time terminate the appointment of any member of the panel: s 40(4).

4 The chairman is nominated by the President; and the President may so nominate as chairman (1) himself; (2) one of the full-time chairmen appointed under ibid s 51(1); or (3) a person drawn from the panel appointed by the Lord Chancellor or, as the case may be, the Lord President of the Court of Session under the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 6: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 41(3), (4) (amended by the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 18(1), Sch 3 para 36). No person may be appointed chairman of a tribunal under head (3) supra (Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 41(4)(c) (as amended)) unless he has a five-year general qualification or he is an advocate or solicitor in Scotland of at least five years' standing: see s 41(5). For the meaning of 'general qualification' see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 742.

5 Ibid s 41(1). The members other than the chairman are drawn from the appropriate panel constituted under s 40: s 41(2).

6 Ibid s 41(6). Every effort should be made to comply with this provision subject only to the 'practicability' exception, which is not to be construed loosely: see Decision R(SB)2/811. As to tenure of office, remuneration, staff and administration of a social security appeal tribunal see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 41(7), Sch 2 (as amended).

7 The 'all work test' is a test of the extent of a person's incapacity, by reason of some specific disease or bodily or mental disablement, to perform the activities prescribed in the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, Schedule (as amended): see the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 24; and PARA 68 ante.

8 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 61A(4) (added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(2)); and the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 21. This specific requirement is separate from and additional to the general power (rarely exercised) of a tribunal to appoint one or more assessors in a case involving a question of fact of special difficulty: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 56; and PARA 372 post.

360-373 Social security appeal tribunals ... Reviews

Following the transfer of functions relating to adjudication of social security matters from the Secretary of State to the Inland Revenue, the tax appeal commissioners (ie the General or the Special Commissioners of Inland Revenue) now hear appeals on both points of fact and law against a decision of an officer of the Inland Revenue: see the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 ss 11-14 (ss 11, 14 amended by the Employment Act 2002 s 9; 1999 Act s 12 amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 77(7), and SI 2009/777). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/361. Appeal to a social security appeal tribunal.

361. Appeal to a social security appeal tribunal.

Where an adjudication officer<sup>1</sup> has decided a claim or question (other than a claim or question relating to an attendance allowance, a disability living allowance or a disability working allowance) (1) if it relates to statutory sick pay or statutory maternity pay, the employee and employer concerned each has a right to appeal to a social security appeal tribunal; and (2) in any other case the claimant has the right to do so<sup>2</sup>. However, no such appeal lies where, in connection with the decision of the adjudication officer, there has arisen any question which under or by virtue of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 falls to be determined otherwise than by an adjudication officer, the question has been determined and the adjudication officer certifies the decision on that question is the sole ground of his decision<sup>3</sup>.

Where an appeal or reference is made to an appeal tribunal, the clerk to the tribunal must direct every party to the proceedings to notify him if that party wishes an oral hearing of that appeal or reference to be held<sup>4</sup>, and where he receives such notification the appeal tribunal must hold an oral hearing<sup>5</sup>. The chairman of an appeal tribunal may of his own motion require an oral hearing to be held if he is satisfied that such a hearing is necessary to enable the tribunal to reach a decision<sup>6</sup>. Any case may with the consent of the claimant or his representative, but not otherwise, be proceeded with in the absence of any one member of the tribunal other than the chairman<sup>7</sup>. Where an oral hearing is adjourned and at the hearing after the adjournment the tribunal is differently constituted, otherwise than through the operation on that occasion of the absence of one member with the consent of the claimant or representative, the proceedings at that hearing must be by way of a complete rehearing of the case<sup>8</sup>.

The decision of the majority of the appeal tribunal must be the decision of the tribunal but, where the tribunal consists of an even number, the chairman has a second or casting vote<sup>9</sup>. Every decision of an appeal tribunal must be recorded in summary by the chairman in such written form of decision notice as approved by the President and such decision notice must be signed by the chairman<sup>10</sup>. As soon as practicable after the case has been decided, a copy of the decision notice must be sent or given to every party to the proceedings, who must also be informed of his right to a copy of the statement of reasons and findings on questions of fact and the conditions governing appeals to a social security commissioner<sup>11</sup>. A statement of the reasons for the tribunal's decision and of its findings on questions of fact material thereto may be given orally at the hearing or in writing at such later date as the chairman may determine<sup>12</sup>, and a copy of the statement must be supplied to the parties to the proceedings if requested by any of them within 21 days after the decision notice has been sent or given<sup>13</sup>.

The proceedings of a social security appeal tribunal are inquisitorial in nature; the tribunal must listen fairly to the contentions of all persons entitled to be represented, uninhibited by the normal rules of evidence<sup>14</sup>. Although an appeal will normally be against a decision taken as at a particular date, it may be necessary for the tribunal also to consider the position after that date, sometimes up to the date of the hearing<sup>15</sup>.

Where a question which would fall to be determined by an adjudication officer first arises in the course of an appeal to a social security appeal tribunal, a disability appeal tribunal or a social security commissioner, the tribunal or the commissioner may, if they or he thinks fit, proceed to determine the question notwithstanding that it has not been considered by an adjudication officer<sup>16</sup>. However, a social security appeal tribunal may not determine such a question if an appeal in relation to it would have lain to a disability appeal tribunal<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to adjudication by adjudication officers see PARA 359 ante.

2 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 22(1). A person with a right of appeal must be given such notice of a decision falling within s 22(1) and of that right as may be prescribed: s 22(2). Where an adjudication officer has determined that any amount, other than an amount of an attendance allowance, disability living allowance, disability working allowance, statutory sick pay, or statutory maternity pay, is recoverable under or by virtue of ss 71 or 74 (both as amended) (overpayment and abatement cases: see PARA 385 et seq post), any person from whom he has determined that it is recoverable has the same right of appeal to a social security appeal tribunal as a claimant: s 22(5). In any case where an adjudication officer has decided any claim or question under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt V (ss 94-111) (as amended) (see PARA 126 et seq ante) and the right to claim benefit under Pt V (as amended) of any person other than the claimant is or may be, under s 106, Sch 7 Pt VI, affected by that decision, that other person has the like right of appeal to a social security appeal tribunal as the claimant: s 22(6). There is no right of appeal where the sole ground for the officer's decision is a determination on a question which arose but fell to be determined otherwise than by an adjudication officer (in particular, a Secretary of State's decision, which the officer merely applied: see PARA 357 ante). Regulations may make provision as to the manner in which, and the time within which, appeals are to be brought: s 22(4). Section 22(2) applies to a person with a right of appeal under s 22(5) or (6) as it applies to a claimant: s 22(7).

9 Ibid reg 23(1).

10 Ibid reg 23(2) (substituted by SI 1996/2450). In addition, a record of the proceedings at the hearing must be made by the chairman in such medium as he may direct and preserved by the clerk to the tribunal for 18 months, and a copy of such record must be supplied to the parties if requested by any of them within that period: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 23(4) (added by SI 1996/182; amended by SI 1996/2450).

12 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 23(3A) (added by SI 1996/2450). Where the statement is given orally, it must be recorded in such medium as the chairman may determine: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 23(3B) (added by SI 1996/2450). If a decision is not unanimous, the statement referred to in the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 23(3A) (as added) must record that one of the members dissented and the reasons given by him for dissenting: reg 23(3D) (added by SI 1996/2450).

13 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 23(3C) (added by SI 1996/2450). 14 See Decision R(IS)5/93, where a refusal to consider hearsay evidence was held to be an error of law. In making findings of fact, the tribunal may make reference to other documents (such as the adjudication officer's summary of facts in the appeal papers), but this must be done with care: Decision R(IS)4/93.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/363. Appeal to a social security commissioner.

363. Appeal to a social security commissioner.

An appeal lies to a social security commissioner<sup>1</sup> from any decision of a social security appeal tribunal<sup>2</sup>, a disability appeal tribunal<sup>3</sup> or a medical appeal tribunal<sup>4</sup>, on the ground that the decision of the tribunal was erroneous in point of law<sup>5</sup>.

An appeal may be brought at the instance of the following:

- 1101 (1) in the case of an appeal from a social security appeal tribunal or a disability appeal tribunal to a commissioner (subject to head (3) below), an adjudication officer, the claimant, in specified instances<sup>6</sup> the claimant's trade union<sup>7</sup>, and a person from whom it is determined any amount is recoverable<sup>8</sup> in respect of overpayment and abatement<sup>9</sup>;
- 1102 (2) in the case of an appeal from a decision of a medical appeal tribunal, an adjudication officer, the claimant, a trade union of which the claimant was a member at the time of the relevant accident (or, in a case relating to severe disablement allowance, at the prescribed time), or the Secretary of State<sup>10</sup>;
- 1103 (3) in the case of statutory sick pay or statutory maternity pay, an adjudication officer, the employee concerned, the employer concerned, a trade union<sup>11</sup> or an association of employers of which the employer is a member at the time of the appeal and was so immediately before the question at issue arose<sup>12</sup>;
- 1104 (4) in a case relating to industrial injuries benefit, a person whose right to benefit is, or may be<sup>13</sup>, affected by the decision appealed against, as well as at the instance of any person or body mentioned in head (1) above<sup>14</sup>.

No appeal lies without leave of either the person who was the chairman of the tribunal when the decision was given (or, in a prescribed case, the leave of some other chairman of a tribunal) or, subject to and in accordance with regulations, of a commissioner<sup>15</sup>.

For the purposes of bringing an appeal, a tribunal decision may be erroneous in point of law if:

- 1105 (a) it contains a false proposition ex facie;
- 1106 (b) it is supported by no evidence<sup>16</sup>;
- 1107 (c) the facts found are such that no person acting judicially and properly instructed as to the law could have come to the determination in question;
- 1108 (d) there has been any breach of the requirement to act according to the demands of natural justice<sup>17</sup>; or
- 1109 (e) there has been a failure adequately to comply with the statutory requirement<sup>18</sup> to record the tribunal's findings of fact and reasons<sup>19</sup>.

In addition, a commissioner may hear and determine an argument that a particular regulation under which a decision has been taken is ultra vires and void<sup>20</sup>.

Where the commissioner holds that a decision was erroneous in point of law, he must set it aside and he has the power, in the case of an appeal from a social security tribunal, either to give the decision which he considers the tribunal should have given (if he can do so without making fresh or further findings of fact) or, if he considers it expedient, to make such findings and to give such decision as he considers appropriate in light of them; and in any other case, he must refer the case to a tribunal, or medical appeal tribunal as the case may be, with directions for its determination<sup>21</sup>.

In addition, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security (Commissioners Procedure) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/214, Pt II (regs 3-9), have effect as if made under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 23(10). See also PARA 364 post.

6 The following are the cases in which an appeal lies at the instance of a trade union:

150 (1) in the case of an appeal from a social security appeal tribunal, (a) where the claimant is a member of the union at the time of the appeal and was so immediately before the issue arose; (b) where that question in any way relates to a deceased person who was a member of the union at the time of his death; (c) where the case relates to industrial injuries benefit and the claimant or, in relation to industrial death benefit, the deceased, was a member of the union at the time of the relevant accident (see ibid s 23(3)(c), (5));

151 (2) in the case of an appeal from a social security appeal tribunal or disability appeal tribunal, (a) where the claimant is a member of the union at the time of the appeal and was so immediately before the question at issue arose; (b) where that question in any way relates to a deceased person who was a member of the union at the time of his death (see s 34(2)(c)).

7 References to a trade union apply also to any other association which exists to promote the interests and welfare of its members: see ibid s 23(6), 34(3), 48(2).

20 Chief Adjudication Officer v Foster [1993] AC 754, [1993] 1 All ER 705, HL. This proposition applies primarily to an argument that a particular regulation is ultra vires the statutory power under which it is made (see also Decision R(SB)10/88); quaere whether it would apply to an argument that a regulation, though made intra vires, is in substance void for irrationality (see Decision CIS/391/1992, which gives support to such a possibility).

21 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 23(7), 34(4), 48(5). Subject to any direction of the commissioner, the tribunal on a reference must consist of persons who were not members of the tribunal which gave the erroneous decision: see ss 23(8), 34(4), 48(6). Section 23(7)-(10) also applies to appeals under the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 s 13: see s 13(3).

TEXT AND NOTE 10--Words '(or, in a case ... at the prescribed time)' omitted: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 48(1) (amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 13 Pt IV (amendment subject to a saving in respect of existing severe disablement allowance beneficiaries: see SI 2000/2958 art 4)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/364. Procedure on appeal to a social security commissioner.

364. Procedure on appeal to a social security commissioner.

An application may be made to a social security commissioner<sup>1</sup> for leave to appeal against a decision of an appeal tribunal<sup>2</sup> or a medical appeal tribunal<sup>3</sup> only where the applicant has been refused leave to appeal by the chairman of an appeal tribunal or, as the case may be, of a medical appeal tribunal<sup>4</sup>. Where there has been a failure to apply to the chairman for leave within the specified time, an application for leave to appeal may be made to a commissioner who may, if for special reasons he thinks fit, accept and proceed to consider and determine the application<sup>5</sup>. The application for leave to appeal must be made to the commissioner within 42 days from the date on which notice in writing of the refusal of leave to appeal was given to the applicant<sup>6</sup>. Application to the commissioner must be by a notice containing the name and address of the applicant, the grounds on which he intends to rely and an address for service of notices and documents, and the notice must have annexed to it a copy of the full statement of the tribunal's decision against which leave to appeal is being sought<sup>7</sup>.

The commissioner's decision is to be notified to the applicant and each respondent in writing; with their consent, a successful application may also be treated as the substantive appeal and determined accordingly<sup>8</sup>. Refusal of leave to appeal is not itself subject to appeal<sup>9</sup>.

The appeal itself is also commenced by a notice of appeal, containing the name and address of the appellant, the date on which leave to appeal was granted, the grounds on which the appellant intends to rely and an address for service of notices and other documents and the notice must have annexed to it a copy of the determination granting leave to appeal and a copy of the full statement of the tribunal's decision against which leave to appeal was granted<sup>10</sup>. This notice must be served on a commissioner within 42 days of the date on which the applicant was given notice in writing that leave to appeal had been granted<sup>11</sup>. The appeal may and will normally be dealt with from written observations from the parties rather than orally<sup>12</sup>, but a party may request an oral hearing which is to be granted unless the commissioner is satisfied that the matter can properly be determined without a hearing<sup>13</sup>; alternatively, a commissioner may at any stage order an oral hearing of his own motion if he is satisfied that an oral hearing is desirable<sup>14</sup>.

An oral hearing before a commissioner must be in public except where the commissioner is satisfied that intimate personal or financial circumstances may have to be disclosed or that considerations of public security are involved in which case the hearing or any part thereof must be in private<sup>15</sup>. At any oral hearing a party may conduct his case himself, with assistance from any person if he wishes, or be represented by any person whom he may appoint for the purpose<sup>16</sup>. Any person entitled to be heard<sup>17</sup> at an oral hearing may address the commissioner and, with his leave, give evidence, call witnesses and put questions directly to any other person called as a witness<sup>18</sup>. The commissioner has a broad power to determine the procedure in any proceedings before him<sup>19</sup>.

The determination of a commissioner on an appeal, or an application for leave to appeal, must be in writing and signed by him, and except in respect of a decision made with the consent of the parties, he must record the reasons and send them to the parties<sup>20</sup>.

365. Appeal from social security commissioners on point of law.

An appeal on a question of law lies to the appropriate court<sup>1</sup> from any decision of a social security commissioner<sup>2</sup>. However, no appeal will lie from a decision except (1) with the leave of the commissioner who gave the decision or, in a prescribed case, with the leave of a commissioner selected in accordance with regulations; or (2) if he refuses leave, with the leave of the appropriate court<sup>3</sup>. Further, an application for leave under this provision in respect of a commissioner's decision may only be made by (a) a person who, before the proceedings before the commissioner were begun, was entitled to appeal to the commissioner from the decision to which the commissioner's decision relates; (b) any other person who was a party to the proceedings in which the first decision was given; (c) the Secretary of State, in a case where he is not entitled to apply for leave by virtue of head (a) or head (b) above; and (d) any other person who is authorised by regulations to apply for leave<sup>4</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 24, except s 24(4), 'the appropriate court' means the court specified in pursuance of s 24(4): see s 24(5); and note 3 infra.

2 See ibid s 24(1). As to social security commissioners see PARA 362 ante.

3 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 24(2). On an application to a commissioner for leave under s 24, it is the duty of the commissioner to specify as the appropriate court (1) the Court of Appeal, if it appears to him that the relevant place is in England or Wales; (2) the Court of Session, if it appears to him that the relevant place is in Scotland; and (3) the Court of Appeal in Northern Ireland, if it appears to him that the relevant place is in Northern Ireland, except that if it appears to him, having regard to the circumstances of the case and in particular to the convenience of the persons who may be parties to the proposed appeal, that he should specify a different court as the appropriate court, it is his duty to specify that court: s 24(4). In s 24, 'the relevant place', in relation to an application for leave to appeal from a decision of a commissioner, means the premises where the authority whose decision was the subject of the commissioner's decision usually exercises its functions: see s 24(5).

A decision of a commissioner to grant or refuse leave to appeal to him from a decision of a tribunal is not a 'decision' from which s 24 contemplates there is an appeal to the Court of Appeal with leave since it is not a decision determinative of the matters in dispute. If a commissioner's refusal of leave to appeal to him causes a wrong decision of a tribunal to stand, the proper remedy is to seek judicial review of the tribunal's decision. It follows that the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to grant leave under s 24(2)(b) to appeal from a commissioner's refusal of leave to appeal in such a case: see Bland v Chief Supplementary Benefit Officer [1983] 1 All ER 537, [1983] 1 WLR 262, CA.

4 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 24(3). Regulations may make provision with respect to the manner in which and the time within which applications must be made to a commissioner for leave under s 24 and with respect to the procedure for dealing with such applications. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made, but by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security Commissioners Procedure Regulations 1987, SI 1987/214, reg 31 partly has effect as if so made. An application to a commissioner for leave to appeal against a decision of a commissioner must be made in writing and must be made within three months from the date on which the appellant was given written notice of the decision: see reg 31(1). See further reg 31(2)-(9). The powers to make regulations conferred by the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 24 are exercisable by the Lord Chancellor: s 24(6). Section 24 applies to a decision of a commissioner under s 34 (appeal from a social security appeal tribunal or disability appeal tribunal) as it applies to a decision of a commissioner under s 23: s 34(5). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

366. Time limits for making applications, appeals or references.

In general, the time limit for making applications, appeals or references is three months<sup>1</sup>. In the case of the following matters that time limit is calculated beginning with the date when notice of the relevant decision was given to the appellant:

- 1110 (1) an appeal to a medical board from an adjudication officer's determination of a diagnosis or recrudescence question;
- 1111 (2) an appeal to a medical appeal tribunal<sup>2</sup> from a decision of an adjudicating medical authority<sup>3</sup>;
- 1112 (3) an appeal to an appeal tribunal from a decision of an adjudicating officer;
- 1113 (4) an appeal to a disability appeal tribunal from a decision on review of an adjudication officer<sup>4</sup>;
- 1114 (5) an appeal to an appeal tribunal from a decision on a review of an adjudication officer<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1115 (6) an application to an adjudicating authority<sup>6</sup> to set aside a decision<sup>7</sup>.

In the case of a reference by the Secretary of State notifying the adjudication officer that a decision of an adjudicating medical practitioner ought to be considered by a medical appeal tribunal, the three month time limit is calculated beginning with the date of the decision of the adjudicating medical practitioner<sup>9</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/367. Extension of time.

367. Extension of time.

Except in the case of an application to the chairman of an appeal tribunal, a medical appeal tribunal or a disability appeal tribunal for leave to appeal to a commissioner, the time limit for making an application, appeal or reference<sup>1</sup> may be extended, even though the time so specified may already have expired, (1) in the case of an application or reference, for 'special reasons'<sup>2</sup>; and (2) in the case of an appeal, provided certain specified conditions are satisfied; any application for an extension of time must be made to and determined by the person or body to whom the application, appeal or reference is sought to be made or, in the case of a tribunal or board, its chairman<sup>3</sup>. However, no appeal may in any event be brought later than six years after the beginning of the time limit specified<sup>4</sup>. The conditions so specified for the purpose of extending time in the case of an appeal are as follows:

- 1116 (a) an application for extension of time for an appeal may not be granted unless the applicant has satisfied the person considering the application that (i) if the application is granted there are reasonable prospects that such an appeal will be successful; and (ii) it is in the interests of justice that the application be granted<sup>5</sup>;
- 1117 (b) it may not be considered to be in the interests of justice to grant an application unless the person considering the application is satisfied that (i) special reasons exist, which are wholly exceptional and which relate to the history or facts of the case; and (ii) such special reasons have existed throughout the period beginning with the day following the expiration of the specified time limit for the making of an appeal and ending with the day on which the application for an extension of time is made; and (iii) such special reasons manifestly constitute a reasonable excuse of compelling weight for the applicant's failure to make an appeal within the time specified<sup>6</sup>;
- 1118 (c) in determining whether there are special reasons for granting an application for an extension of time, the person considering the application must have regard to the principle that the greater the amount of time that has elapsed between the expiration of the time specified for the making of the appeal and the making of the application for an extension of time, the more cogent should be the special reasons on which the application is based<sup>7</sup>;
- 1119 (d) in determining whether facts constitute special reasons, no account is to be taken of the following: (i) that the applicant or anyone acting for him or advising him was unaware of or misunderstood the law applicable to his case (including ignorance or misunderstanding of any time limits imposed); (ii) that a commissioner or a court has taken a different view of the law from that previously understood and applied<sup>8</sup>.

In the case of an application for an extension of time for making an appeal, the person who determines that application must record his decision in writing together with a statement of the reasons for the decision<sup>9</sup>; and as soon as practicable after the decision has been made it must be communicated to the applicant and to every other party to the proceedings and if within three months of such communication being sent the applicant or any other party to the proceedings so requests in writing, a copy of the record must also be supplied to him<sup>10</sup>.

- 1 See PARA 366 ante.
- 2 'Special reasons' is a broad phrase, which means that all the circumstances can be taken into consideration, not just the particular reasons for the delay: see Decisions R(M)1/87; R(I)5/91.

368. Manner of making an application, appeal, or reference; withdrawal and striking out.

Any application, appeal or reference must contain, in the case of an appeal, the date of the notification of the decision against which the appeal is made, the claim or question to which the decision relates and a summary of the arguments relied on by the person making the appeal to support his contention that the decision was wrong; in the case of an application for extension of time in which to appeal<sup>1</sup>, in relation to the appeal which it is proposed to bring, the particulars of the special reasons<sup>2</sup> on which the application is based are required in addition to those previously mentioned; and in the case of any other application or any reference, the grounds on which it is made or given<sup>3</sup>. A chairman of an appeal tribunal, a medical appeal tribunal or a disability appeal tribunal may give directions for the disposal of any purported appeal where he is satisfied that the tribunal does not have jurisdiction to entertain the appeal<sup>4</sup>.

An application, appeal or reference may be withdrawn by written notice<sup>5</sup>, or may be struck out for want of prosecution<sup>6</sup>.

3 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 3(5) (substituted by SI 1996/2450). Where it appears (1) to the chairman of a tribunal or board or the clerk to the tribunal that an application, appeal or reference which is made to him or to the tribunal or board; or (2) to the Secretary of State or an adjudication officer that an application or reference which is made to him, does not contain the particulars required under the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 3(5) (as substituted), he may direct the person making the application, appeal or reference to provide such particulars: reg 3(6) (substituted by SI 1996/2450). As to the position where further particulars are required see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 3(6A)-(6C) (as added). 5 See ibid reg 6 (as amended). In the case of an appeal, withdrawal is only possible before the hearing begins if no notice opposing a withdrawal has been received from an adjudication officer or the Secretary of State and consent in writing is received from any other party; after a hearing has begun, withdrawal needs the leave of the adjudicating authority, or in the case of a tribunal or board, its chairman: see reg 6(2), (2A) (respectively substituted and added by SI 1996/2450). As to the postponement and adjournment of hearings see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 5 (as amended).

6 See ibid reg 7 (as amended). A tribunal chairman may do so on application of any party or of his own motion: see reg 7(1) (amended by SI 1996/2450). Before doing so, notice must be given to the person concerned giving them a reasonable opportunity to show cause why such an order should not be made: see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 7(2). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/369. Hearings.

369. Hearings.

Any oral hearing before an adjudicating authority<sup>1</sup> and any inquiry must be in public except where (in the case of an oral hearing) the claimant requests a private hearing or (in any case) the chairman or the person holding the inquiry is satisfied that intimate personal or financial circumstances may have to be disclosed or that considerations of public security are involved, in which case the hearing must be in private<sup>2</sup>. At any oral hearing of an application, appeal or reference and any inquiry, any party to the proceedings is entitled to be present and to be heard<sup>3</sup>, and may address the adjudicating authority or person holding the inquiry, give evidence, call witnesses and put questions directly to any other person called as a witness<sup>4</sup>. Any such person may be accompanied and may be represented by another person whether having professional qualifications or not<sup>5</sup>.

There is a general requirement that an adjudicating authority (particularly a tribunal) should act in accordance with the rules of natural justice<sup>6</sup>, though this must be considered in the context of a tribunal's inquisitorial function and the fact that it is not bound by the formal rules of evidence<sup>7</sup>.

For the purposes of arriving at its decision a tribunal must, and for the purpose of discussing any question of procedure may, order all persons not being members of the tribunal or board, other than the person acting as clerk to the tribunal or board, to withdraw from the sitting<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'adjudicating authority' see PARA 366 note 6 ante.

2 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 4(4). Whether the hearing is private or public, certain persons are entitled to be present (eg another chairman or a chairman, member or department officer undertaking training): see reg 4(6)-(8).

Except where reg 4(2C) (as added) applies, not less than seven day's notice beginning with the day on which the notice is given and ending on the day before the hearing of the case or, as the case may be, the inquiry is to take place of the time and place of any oral hearing before an adjudicating authority or of an inquiry must be given to every party to the proceedings, and if such notice has not been given to a person to whom it should have been given the hearing or inquiry may proceed only with the consent of that person: reg 4(2) (amended by SI 1996/2450). The chairman of an appeal tribunal, a medical appeal tribunal or a disability appeal tribunal may give notice for the determination forthwith of an appeal notwithstanding that a party to the proceedings has failed to indicate his availability for a hearing or to provide all the information which may have been requested, if the chairman is satisfied that such a party has failed to comply with a direction regarding his availability or requiring information under the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 2(1)(aa) or (ab) (as added) and has not given any explanation for his failure to comply with such a direction, provided that the chairman is satisfied that the tribunal has sufficient particulars in order for the appeal to be determined: reg 4(2A) (added by SI 1996/2450). The chairman of an appeal tribunal, a medical appeal tribunal or a disability appeal tribunal may give notice for the determination forthwith of an appeal which he believes has no prospect of success: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 4(2B) (added by SI 1996/2450). Any party to the proceedings may waive his right to receive not less than seven days' notice of the time and place of any oral hearing as specified in the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 4(2) (as substituted): reg 4(2C) (added by SI 1996/2450). As to the absence of a duly notified party at the proceedings see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 4(3) (amended by SI 1996/2450), reg 4(3A) (added by SI 1996/2450).

In the absence of mala fides or bias, this in practice means (1) basing a decision on evidence before the tribunal; and (2) listening fairly to the contentions of all persons entitled to be represented: R v Deputy Industrial Injuries Comr, ex p Moore supra. One statutory exception to the normal requirement of full and open consideration of the evidence is that medical evidence of which a person is not aware, the disclosure of which could be harmful to his health, is not required to be disclosed to that person: see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 8.

7 See Decision R(S)5/93. This may mean a positive duty to investigate further than the parties' initial contentions, and to consider matters such as hearsay evidence: Decision R(S)5/93; and see TA Miller Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1968] 2 All ER 633 at 634, [1968] 1 WLR 992 at 995, CA, per Lord Denning MR.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/370. Errors and setting aside decisions.

370. Errors and setting aside decisions.

Regulations may make provision with respect to (1) the correction of accidental errors in any decision or record of a decision given with respect to a claim or question arising under or in connection with any relevant enactment<sup>1</sup> by a body or person authorised to decide the claim or question; and (2) the setting aside of any such decision in a case where it appears just to set the decision aside on the ground that (a) a document relating to the proceedings in which the decision was given was not sent to, or was not received at an appropriate time by, a party to the proceedings or a party's representative or was not received at an appropriate time by the body or person who gave the decision; or (b) a party to the proceedings or a party's representative was not present at a hearing related to the proceedings<sup>2</sup>.

Accidental errors in any decision or any record of a decision may at any time be corrected by the adjudicating authority<sup>3</sup> who gave the decision or by an authority of like status<sup>4</sup>.

On an application made by a party to the proceedings, a decision may be set aside by the adjudicating authority who gave the decision, or by an authority of like status, in a case where it appears just to set the decision aside, on the ground that (i) a document relating to the proceedings in which the decision was given was not sent to, or was not received at an appropriate time by, a party to the proceedings or the party's representative or was not received at an appropriate time by the adjudicating authority who gave the decision<sup>5</sup>; or (ii) a party to the proceedings in which the decision was given or the party's representative was not present at a hearing or inquiry relating to the proceedings<sup>6</sup>; or (iii) the interests of justice so require<sup>7</sup>. There is no appeal against a correction of an accidental error (or a refusal to make such a correction) or against a determination on an application to set aside<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 70 (as amended), 'relevant enactment' means any enactment contained in (1) the National Insurance Acts 1965 to 1974 (repealed); (2) the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Acts 1965 to 1974 (repealed); (3) the Industrial Injuries and Diseases (Old Cases) Acts 1967 to 1974 (largely repealed); (4) the Social Security Act 1973 (largely repealed); (5) the Social Security Acts 1975 to 1991 (largely repealed); (6) the Industrial Injuries and Diseases (Old Cases) Act 1975 (repealed); (7) the Child Benefit Act 1975 (repealed); (8) the Family Income Supplements Act 1970 (repealed); (9) the Supplementary Benefits Act 1976 (largely repealed); (10) the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992; (11) the Pension Schemes Act 1993; or (12) the Jobseekers Act 1995: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 70(3) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), (5), Sch 2 para 47, Sch 3; and the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 25). As to the Acts that were cited by the collective titles given in heads (1)-(3), (5) supra see 40 Halsbury's Statutes (1997 Reissue) 597, 611.

2 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 70(1). Nothing in s 70(1) is to be construed as derogating from any power to correct errors or set aside decisions which is exercisable apart from regulations made by virtue of s 70(1): s 70(2).

3 For the purposes of the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, regs 9, 10 (as amended), 'adjudicating authority' includes the Secretary of State: reg 11(1). For the meaning of 'adjudicating authority' generally see PARA 366 note 6 ante.

4 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 70 (as amended); and the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 9(1). A correction made to, or to the record of, a decision is deemed to be part of the decision or of that record and written notice of it must be given as soon as practicable to every party to the proceedings: reg 9(2). Nothing in Pt II (regs 2-11) (as amended) is to be construed as derogating from any power to correct errors or set aside decisions which is exercisable apart from these regulations: reg 11(4).

5 For the purposes of determining an application to set aside a decision, ibid reg 1(3)(b), and any provision in any enactment or instrument to the effect that any notice or other document required or authorised to be given or sent to any person is deemed to have been given or sent if it was sent by post to that person's last known or notified address, is to be disregarded: reg 10(5).

6 In determining whether it is just to set aside a decision on the ground set out in ibid reg 10(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text), the adjudicating authority must determine whether the party making the application gave notice that he wished an oral hearing to be held, and if that party did not give such notice the adjudicating authority must not set the decision aside unless it is satisfied that the interests of justice manifestly so require: reg 10(1A) (added by SI 1996/2450).

7 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 10(1). Regulation 10(1)(c) (see head (3) in the text), though apparently wide, is limited to procedural irregularities and is not to be used to rectify substantive mistakes by a tribunal as to the relevant law: see Decisions R(S)89; R(SB)4/90. Likewise, it is not to be used merely where a party failed to produce sufficient evidence at a hearing: Decision R(SB)1/92. Where an application to set aside a decision is entertained, every party to the proceedings must be sent a copy of the application and be afforded a reasonable opportunity of making representations on it before the application is determined: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 10(3). Notice in writing of a determination on an application to set aside a decision must be given to every party to the proceedings as soon as may be practicable and the notice must contain a statement giving the reasons for the determination: reg 10(4). Such an application must be made in accordance with reg 3, Sch 2 (both as amended): reg 10(2). In calculating any time specified in Sch 2 (as amended) there must be disregarded any day falling before the day on which notice was given of a correction of a decision or the record of it pursuant to reg 9, or on which notice is given of the determination that a decision is not to be set aside following an application made under reg 10, as the case may be: reg 11(2).

As to substance, it is these stated grounds that have to be considered, not whether the content of the applicant's evidence would have been likely to affect the outcome of the case: Decision R(S)12/81.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/371. Restrictions on entitlement to benefit following erroneous decision.

371. Restrictions on entitlement to benefit following erroneous decision.

Where (1) on the determination, whenever made, of a social security commissioner<sup>1</sup> or the court<sup>2</sup> (the relevant determination), a decision made by an adjudicating authority<sup>3</sup> is or was found to have been erroneous in point of law; and (2) after both 13 July 1990<sup>4</sup> and the date of the relevant determination, a claim which falls, or which would apart from this provision fall, to be decided in accordance with the relevant determination is made or treated as made by any person for any benefit<sup>5</sup>, any question which arises on, or on the review of a decision which is referable to, the claim set out in head (2) above and which relates to the entitlement of the claimant or any other person to any benefit (a) in respect of a period before the relevant date<sup>6</sup>; or (b) in the case of a widow's payment, in respect of a death occurring before that date, must be determined as if the decision referred to in head (1) above had been found by the commissioner or court in question not to have been erroneous in law<sup>7</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> 'The court' means the High Court, the Court of Appeal, the Court of Session, the High Court or Court of Appeal of Northern Ireland, the House of Lords or the Court of Justice of the European Community: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 68(4).

<sup>3</sup> 'Adjudicating authority' means, for these purposes, (1) an adjudication officer or, where the original decision was given on a reference under ibid s 21(2) or 25(1) (as amended), a social security appeal tribunal, a disability appeal tribunal or a medical appeal tribunal; (2) any of the following former bodies or officers, that is to say, the National Assistance Board, the Supplementary Benefits Commission, the Attendance Allowance Board, a benefit officer, an insurance officer or a supplement officer; or (3) any of the officers who, or tribunals or other bodies which, in Northern Ireland correspond to those mentioned above: see s 68(4).

<sup>4</sup> I.e. the date of the coming into force of the Social Security Act 1975 s 165D (repealed), the provision of that Act corresponding to the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 68 (as amended): see s 68(1)(b)(i).

<sup>5</sup> 'Benefit' means, for these purposes, (1) benefit as defined in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122 (as amended) (see PARA 13 note 8 ante); (2) a jobseeker's allowance (see PARA 258 et seq ante); and (3) any income-related benefit (see PARA 173 et seq ante): see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 68(4) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 46).

<sup>6</sup> 'The relevant date' means, for these purposes, whichever is the latest of (1) the date of the relevant determination; (2) the date which falls 12 months before the date on which the claim referred to in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 68(1)(b) is made or treated under s 7(1) as made; and (3) the earliest date in respect of which the claimant would, apart from s 68 (as amended), be entitled on that claim to the benefit in question: see s 68(4).

<sup>7</sup> Ibid s 68(1), (2). In determining whether a person is entitled to benefit in a case where (1) his entitlement depends on his having been entitled to the same or some other benefit before attaining a particular age; and (2) he attained that age before both the date of the relevant determination and the date of the claim referred to in s 68(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text), but not before the earliest day in respect of which benefit could, apart from s 68 (as amended) have been awarded on that claim, s 68(2) must be disregarded for the purpose only of determining the question whether he was entitled as mentioned in head (2) supra: see s 68(3). For the purposes of s 68 (as amended) any reference to entitlement to benefit includes a reference to entitlement to any increase in the rate of benefit or to a benefit, or increase of benefit, at a particular rate; and any reference to a decision which is 'referable to' a claim is a reference to a decision on the claim, a decision on a review of the decision on the claim, or a decision on a subsequent review of the decision on the review and so on: s 68(5). The date of the relevant determination must, in prescribed cases, be determined for the purposes of s 68 (as amended) in accordance with any regulations made for that purpose: s 68(6).

372. References by authorities.

An adjudication officer<sup>1</sup>, an adjudicating medical practitioner (or two or more such practitioners acting together), a specially qualified adjudicating medical practitioner (or two as the case may be)<sup>2</sup>, a social security appeal tribunal<sup>3</sup>, a disability appeal tribunal<sup>4</sup>, a medical appeal tribunal, a social security commissioner<sup>5</sup> and the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup> all have the power to refer any question of special difficulty arising for decision by the authority to one or more experts for examination and report<sup>7</sup>. For these purposes, 'expert' means a person appearing to the authority to have knowledge or experience which would be relevant in determining the question of special difficulty<sup>8</sup>. Equally, where it appears to any of the authorities listed above<sup>9</sup> that a matter before the authority involves a question of fact of special difficulty, then, unless regulations otherwise provide, the authority may direct that in dealing with that matter it is to have the assistance of one or more assessors<sup>10</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(i) Determination of Claims by the Statutory Authorities/373. Reviews.

373. Reviews.

There are two general statutory powers<sup>1</sup> for an adjudicating authority to review a decision on a question of fact:

- 1120 (1) any decision under the provisions of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 of an adjudication officer<sup>2</sup>, a social security appeal tribunal<sup>3</sup> or a social security commissioner<sup>4</sup>, other than a decision relating to an attendance allowance<sup>5</sup>, a disability living allowance<sup>6</sup> or a disability working allowance<sup>7</sup>, may be reviewed<sup>8</sup> at any time by an adjudication officer, or, on a reference by an adjudication officer, by a social security appeal tribunal, if:
173. (a) the officer or tribunal is satisfied that the decision was given in ignorance of, or was based on a mistake as to, some material fact<sup>9</sup>; or
174. (b) there has been any relevant change of circumstances<sup>10</sup> since the decision was given<sup>11</sup>; or
175. (c) it is anticipated that a relevant change of circumstances will so occur<sup>12</sup>; or
176. (d) the decision was based on a decision of a question which by statute falls to be determined otherwise than by an adjudication officer, and the decision of that question is revised; or
177. (e) the decision falls to be reviewed under specified provisions<sup>13</sup> of the Jobseekers Act 1995<sup>14</sup>;
- 128
- 1121 (2) in any case where benefit is awarded in respect of days subsequent to the date of claim the award is subject to the condition that the claimant satisfies the requirements for entitlement; and where those requirements are not satisfied the award must be reviewed<sup>15</sup>.

Any decision of an adjudication officer, other than a decision relating to an attendance allowance, a disability living allowance or a disability working allowance, may be reviewed, upon the ground that it was erroneous in point of law, by an adjudication officer or, on a reference from an adjudication officer, by a social security appeal tribunal<sup>16</sup>.

1 There are specific provisions relating to reviews in relation to attendance allowance, disability living allowance and disability working allowance (necessary because a challenge to an award of one of those benefits lies in the first instance only by way of review, with appeal lying against an unfavourable review decision): see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 30-35; and PARAS 376-378 ante. There are separate provisions applying to the review of medical decisions (see PARA 382 post) and the review of a social security commissioner's decision (see PARA 362 ante).

2 As to adjudication by adjudication officers see PARA 359 ante.

3 As to social security appeal tribunals see PARA 360 ante.

4 As to social security commissioners see PARA 362 ante.

5 As to attendance allowance see PARA 112 et seq ante.

6 As to disability living allowance see PARA 102 et seq ante.

7 As to disability working allowance see PARA 218 et seq ante.

8 A question may be raised with a view to such a review by means of an application in writing to an adjudication officer, stating the grounds of the application: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 26(1). On receipt of any such application, the adjudication officer must proceed to deal with or refer any question arising on it in accordance with ss 21-23 (see PARA 359 et seq ante): s 26(2). Regulations may provide for enabling, or requiring, in prescribed circumstances, a review under s 25 (as amended) notwithstanding that no application for a review has been made: see s 26(3); and the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801 (as amended).

A decision given on a review, and a refusal to review, is subject to appeal in like manner as the original decision and the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 21-23 apply, with the necessary modifications, in relation to a decision given on such a review as they apply to the original decision of a question: s 28. Where a claimant has appealed against a decision of an adjudication officer and the decision is reviewed by an adjudication officer under s 25 (as amended), (1) if the adjudication officer considers that the decision which he has made on the review is the same as the decision that would have been made on the appeal had every ground of the claimant's appeal succeeded, the appeal lapses; but (2) in any other case, the review is of no effect and the appeal proceeds accordingly: s 29.

9 A fact is material if it would have influenced, or required serious consideration by, the person or body making the decision: Saker v Secretary of State for Social Services (1988) Times, 16 January, CA, applied in Decision R(A)2/90. Regulations may provide that a decision may not be reviewed on the ground set out in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(1)(a) (see head (1)(a) in the text) unless the officer or tribunal is satisfied as mentioned in that paragraph by fresh evidence: s 25(3). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made and no such regulations have effect by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2).

10 The question whether a change is relevant is similar to the question whether a fact is material under the previous heading: see Decision R(A)2/90. The two heads remain, however, separate grounds for review: Decision R(M)5/86. The giving of a new medical opinion on the claimant's condition is not per se a relevant change of circumstances: Decisions R(S)6/78; R(S)4/86. The fact that some assumption or estimate made by an adjudication officer in determining the claim later proves to have been inaccurate does not mean that there has been such a change: Decision R(I)3/87. Regulations (1) may prescribe what are, or are not, relevant changes of circumstances for the purposes of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25 (as amended); and (2) may make provision restricting the payment of any benefit, to which a person would, but for this provision, be entitled by reason of a review in respect of any period before or after the review (whether that period falls wholly or partly before or after the making of the regulations): s 27(1); and see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801 (as amended); and the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973 (as amended). Regulations under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 27(1)(b) do not restrict the payment to or for a woman of so much of any widow's benefit, any incapacity benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 40 (as substituted) or any Category A or Category B retirement pension, or any increase of such a benefit or pension, as falls to be paid by reason of a review which takes place by virtue of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(1)(a) or (b) in consequence of a claim for a widowhood benefit, within the meaning of s 3 (as amended) (see PARA 347 ante), which is made or treated as made by virtue of s 3 (as amended): s 27(2) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 Pt II para 48).

11 In its application to family credit, the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(1)(b), (c) (see heads (1)(b)-(1)(c) in the text) have effect subject to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 128(3) (change of circumstances not to affect award or rate during specified period: see PARA 203 ante): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(4).

12 Where a decision is reviewed on this ground (ie ibid s 25(1)(c)), the decision given on the review takes effect on the day prescribed for that purpose by reference to the date on which the relevant change of circumstances is expected to occur and must be reviewed again if the relevant change of circumstances either does not occur or occurs otherwise than on that date: s 25(5). At the date at which this volume states the law, no regulations had been made under or for the purposes of s 25(5)(a) and no such regulations have effect by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2).

13 Ie the Jobseekers Act 1995 ss 6(6), 7(7), which permit reviews of determinations that a claimant is available for employment and actively seeking employment: see PARAS 276, 285 ante.

14 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(1) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 43). As to the date from which a review is to take effect in the case of the various different benefits see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, regs 58-67A (amended by, inter alia, SI 1997/2290). As to the date on which a revised decision has effect on a review see reg 57 (as amended).

15 Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 17(4). The application of this provision, and its relationship with the review power in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(1), has caused difficulties. The Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 17(4) has been held to provide the adjudication officer with an independent, concurrent and alternative review power to that in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(1): Decision R(S)5/89. See also Decision R(S)3/94, where a challenge to the vires of the regulation was dismissed and it was stated that an adjudication officer can 'review' a case at any time, but that to actually 'revise' it he must have statutory authority.

The Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 17(4) requires a decision that the claimant no longer satisfies the requirements for entitlement, and on that question the burden of proof is on the adjudication officer: Decisions R(S)3/90; R(S)1/92. It is possible that Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 17(4) can only be used to deprive a claimant of a benefit altogether, and so cannot be used in an income support case where only one element of entitlement is in issue: see Decision CIS/627/1992. Where, however, an adjudication officer has wrongly relied on the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 17(4) (where the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25 should have been relied on), it appears that this mistake does not vitiate the review decision and can be rectified by a tribunal on appeal: see Decisions CSIS/134/94; CSIS/137/94; CSS/035/95 (joint decision).

16 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 25(2). Where, however, the ground for arguing that the decision was erroneous is a later decision of a commissioner or court that a similar decision was erroneous in point of law, any review must (in so far as it relates to a period before the date of the commissioner's or court's decision in the other case) be determined as if in that other case the decision had not been found to have been erroneous: see s 69. This provision has the effect that any change in the law through a decision of a commissioner or court is not to be back-dated through reviews of similar cases already determined. The effectiveness of this unusual rule (introduced in 1990 to ensure prospective effect only for a change in legal interpretation through a decision of a commissioner or court, especially in a test case) was accepted in Bate v Chief Adjudication Officer [1996] 2 All ER 790, [1996] 1 WLR 814, HL. There are similar provisions in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 68 to prevent retrospectivity by bringing a fresh claim (as opposed to an application for review) based on the new interpretation in the test case: see PARA 371 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(ii) Disability Adjudication/375. Medical examination.

375. Medical examination.

Before a claim for an attendance allowance<sup>1</sup>, a disability living allowance<sup>2</sup> or a disability working allowance<sup>3</sup> or any question relating to such an allowance is submitted to an adjudication officer<sup>4</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup> may refer the person in respect of whom the claim is made or the question is raised to a medical practitioner for such examination and report as appears to him to be necessary for the purpose of providing the adjudication officer with information for use in determining the claim or question or for the purpose of general monitoring of claims for attendance allowances, disability living allowances and disability working allowances<sup>6</sup>. Similarly, an adjudication officer may refer a person in respect of whom such a claim is made or such a question is raised or a person in respect of whom an application for a review<sup>7</sup> has been made or is treated as having been made, to a medical practitioner for such examination and report as appears to the adjudication officer to be needed to enable him to reach a decision on the claim or question or the matter under review<sup>8</sup>. Where there has been such a reference and the medical practitioner has requested the person to attend for or submit himself to medical examination, but the person has failed without good cause to do so, the adjudication officer must decide the claim or question or matter under review against him<sup>9</sup>. Further, regulations may make provision (1) enabling the Secretary of State to require a person to whom attendance allowance or disability living allowance has been awarded to submit to medical examination in prescribed circumstances; (2) for withholding payments of benefit in prescribed circumstances where a person has failed to submit himself to a medical examination to which he has been required to submit in accordance with those regulations; and (3) for the subsequent making in prescribed circumstances of payments withheld in accordance with those regulations<sup>10</sup>.

Where an appeal has been brought to a disability appeal tribunal from a review of a decision of an adjudication officer<sup>11</sup>, the chairman of the appeal tribunal may, if he is satisfied that an appeal by the claimant cannot be properly determined unless the claimant is examined by a medical practitioner and the medical practitioner has provided the disability appeal tribunal with information for use in determining the appeal, refer the claimant to a medical practitioner for such examination and report as appears to him to be necessary for the purpose of providing a disability appeal tribunal with information for use in determining the appeal, but only if he is satisfied that the appeal cannot be properly determined otherwise<sup>12</sup>. Other than that, the tribunal has no power to carry out a physical examination of the claimant or require him to undergo any physical test for specified purposes<sup>13</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(ii) Disability Adjudication/376. Review of adjudication officer's decision and appeal.

376. Review of adjudication officer's decision and appeal.

On an application made within the prescribed period of three months beginning with the date on which notice in writing of the decision was given to the claimant<sup>1</sup>, a decision of an adjudication officer which relates to an attendance allowance, a disability living allowance or a disability working allowance may be reviewed on any ground<sup>2</sup>. On an application made after the end of the prescribed period, a decision of an adjudication officer which relates to an attendance allowance or a disability allowance may be reviewed if:

- 1126 (1) the adjudication officer is satisfied that the decision was given in ignorance of, or was based on a mistake as to, some material fact<sup>3</sup>; or
- 1127 (2) there has been any relevant, or in the case of disability working allowance<sup>4</sup> prescribed, change of circumstances since the decision was given; or
- 1128 (3) Except in the case of disability working allowance, it is anticipated that a relevant change of circumstances<sup>5</sup> will so occur<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1129 (4) the decision was erroneous in point of law; or
- 1130 (5) the decision was to make an award for a period wholly or partly after the date on which the claim was made or treated as made but subject to a condition being fulfilled and that condition has not been fulfilled<sup>7</sup>.

Where an adjudication officer has made a decision on such a review, the claimant or such other person as may be prescribed<sup>8</sup> may appeal to a disability appeal tribunal in any case in which there arises a disability question<sup>9</sup> or both a disability question and any other question relating to attendance allowance, disability living allowance or disability working allowance, and in any other case he may appeal to a social security appeal tribunal<sup>10</sup>.

There can be an application to review a review decision, as well as a refusal to review a decision<sup>11</sup>.

An award of an attendance allowance, a disability living allowance or a disability working allowance on such a review replaces any award which was the subject of the review<sup>12</sup>. No decision which relates to an attendance allowance or a disability living allowance can be reviewed on the ground that the person is or was at any time terminally ill<sup>13</sup> unless an application for review is expressly made on that that ground either by the person himself or by any other person purporting to act on his behalf, whether or not that other person is acting with his knowledge or authority<sup>14</sup>.

1    le the period prescribed by the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 25(1). Where a claimant submits an application for such review by post which would have arrived in a local office in the ordinary course of the post within the period prescribed but is delayed by postal disruption caused by industrial action whether within the postal service or elsewhere, that period expires on the day the application is received in the local office if that day does not fall within the period prescribed: see reg 25(2).

2    Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 30(1). In the case of disability working allowance, the ground of review is subject to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 129(6) (see PARA 219 ante): see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 30(1). The claimant must be given such notification as may be prescribed of a decision which may be reviewed under s 30 (as amended) and of his right to a review under s 30(1): s 30(6). A question may be raised with a view to a review under s 30 (as amended) by means of an application made in writing to an adjudication officer stating the grounds of the application and supplying such information and evidence as may be prescribed: s 30(7). The Secretary of State may undertake investigations to obtain information and evidence for the purposes of making applications under s 30(7): s 30(7A) (added by the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 s 17(1)). Regulations (1) may provide for enabling or requiring, in prescribed circumstances, a review under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 30 (as amended) notwithstanding that no application under s 30(7) has been made; and (2) if they do so provide, must specify under which provision of s 30 (as amended) a review carried out by virtue of any such regulation falls: s 30(8). Reviews under s 30 (as amended) must be carried out by adjudication officers: s 30(9). Different aspects of any question which arises on such a review may be dealt with by different adjudication officers; and for this purpose s 30 (as amended) and the other provisions of Pt II (ss 17-70) (as amended) which relate to reviews must apply with any necessary modifications: s 30(10). If a review is under s 30(1), the officer who took the decision under review must not deal with any question which arises on the review: s 30(11). Except in prescribed circumstances, where a claim for a disability living allowance in respect of a person already awarded such an allowance by an adjudication officer is made or treated as made during the period for which he has been awarded the allowance, it must be treated as an application for a review under s 30 (as amended): s 30(12). Where a claim for an attendance allowance, a disability living allowance or a disability working allowance in respect of a person has been refused and a further claim for the same allowance is made in respect of him within the period prescribed under s 30(1), the further claim must be treated as an application for a review under s 30(1): s 30(13).

Where the Secretary of State is undertaking an investigation under s 30(7A) (as added), a person who is awarded attendance allowance or disability living allowance may be required to attend for, or submit himself to, a medical examination: see the Attendance Allowance Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2470, reg 8C; the Disability Living Allowance Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 5A (both added by SI 1997/1839). Where a person fails to comply, payment of benefit may be withheld: see the Attendance Allowance Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2470, reg 8D; the Disability Living Allowance Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 5B (both as so added). Where the Secretary of State is satisfied that no question arises in connection with his investigation, payment of the amount withheld and of the relevant allowance must be made forthwith: see the Attendance Allowance Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2470, reg 8E; the Disability Living Allowance Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 5C (both as so added).

3 Regulations may provide that a decision may not be reviewed on this ground (Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 30(2)(a)) unless the officer is satisfied as mentioned therein by fresh evidence: see s 30(2), (5).

4 Ie subject to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 129(6) (see PARA 219 ante): see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 30(5)(b).

5 Regulations may prescribe what are, or are not, relevant changes of circumstances for the purposes of ibid s 30(2)(b), (c) (see heads (2)-(3) in the text): s 30(3). Failure by a person to attend for, or submit to, a medical examination under the provisions made under s 57A (as added) (see PARA 375 ante) is prescribed as a relevant change of circumstances for these purposes: see PARA 375 note 10 ante.

6 Where a decision is reviewed under ibid s 30 (as amended) on the ground that it is anticipated that a change of circumstances will occur, the decision given on review takes effect on the day prescribed for that purpose by reference to the date on which the change of circumstances is expected to occur and is reviewed again if the change of circumstances either does not occur or occurs otherwise than on that date: s 32(6).

7 See ibid s 30(2), (5). An adjudication officer can reconsider a decision at any time, but can only revise it if one of these conditions is satisfied: Decision CDLA/1715/1995. A decision that a person is or was at any time terminally ill for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 66(1), 72(5) or 73(12) (see PARA 110 note 1 ante) may be reviewed if there has been a change of medical opinion with respect to his condition or his reasonable expectation of life: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 30(4). Where a claimant has appealed against a decision of an adjudication officer under s 33 and the decision is reviewed again under s 30(2), (4) or (5) by an adjudication officer, then (1) if the adjudication officer considers that the decision which he has made on the review is the same as the decision that would have been made on the appeal had every ground of the appeal succeeded, then the appeal lapses; but (2) in any other case, the review is of no effect and the appeal proceeds accordingly: s 32(7). Regulations may make provision restricting the payment of any benefit, or any increase of benefit, to which a person would, but for this provision, be entitled by reason of a review in respect of any period before or after the review (whether that period falls wholly or partly before or after the making of the regulations): s 32(8). Where an adjudication officer has determined that any amount paid by way of an attendance allowance, a disability living allowance or a disability working allowance is recoverable under or by virtue of s 71 (as amended) (see PARA 385 post), any person from whom he has determined that it is recoverable has the same right of review under s 30 (as amended) as a claimant: s 32(9). The Social Security Administration Act 1992 and the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 have effect in relation to a review by virtue of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 32(9) as if any reference to the claimant were a reference to the person from whom the adjudication officer has determined that the amount in question is recoverable: s 32(10).

8 A person purporting to act on behalf of a person who is terminally ill (as defined in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 66(2): see PARA 110 note 1 ante), whether or not that other person is acting with his knowledge or authority, may appeal to a disability appeal tribunal or an appeal tribunal, as appropriate, in accordance with the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 33(1) in any case where the ground of appeal is that that person is or was at any time terminally ill: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 28.

9 For the meaning of 'disability question' see PARA 374 ante.

10 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 33(1); Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 27(1). Regulations may make provision as to the manner in which, and the time within which, appeals are to be brought: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 33(2); and see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801 (as amended).

An award on an appeal under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 33 replaces any award which was the subject of appeal: s 33(3). Where a person who has been awarded a disability living allowance consisting of one component alleges on an appeal that he is also entitled to the other component, the tribunal need not consider the question of his entitlement to the component which he has already been awarded or the rate of that component; and where a person who has been awarded a disability living allowance consisting of both components alleges on an appeal that he is entitled to one component at a rate higher than that at which it has been awarded, the tribunal need not consider the question of his entitlement to the other component or the rate of that component: s 33(4), (5). The tribunal is not to consider (1) a person's entitlement to a component which has been awarded for life; or (2) the rate of a component so awarded; or (3) the period for which a component has been so awarded, unless (a) the appeal expressly raises that question; or (b) information is available to the tribunal which gives it reasonable grounds for believing that entitlement to the component, or entitlement to it at the rate awarded or for that period, ought not to continue: s 33(6). See also Decision CSDLA/251/94.

11 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 31. Section 30(2), (4)-(5) applies to a decision on a review under s 30(1) as it applies to a decision of an adjudication officer under s 21 but as if the words 'made after the end of the prescribed period' were omitted from each subsection: s 31(1). Section 30(1)-(2), (4)-(5) applies to a decision on a review under s 30(2), (4)-(5) and to a refusal to review a decision under those provisions as they apply to a decision of an adjudication officer under s 21: s 31(2). The claimant must be given such notification as may be prescribed (1) of a decision on a review under s 30 (as amended); (2) if the review was under s 30(1), of his right of appeal under s 33; and (3) if it was under s 30(2), (4) or (5), of his right to a further review under s 30(1): s 31(3).

12 See ibid s 32(1). Where a person who has been awarded a disability living allowance consisting of one component applies or is treated as applying for a review under s 30 (as amended) and alleges that he is also entitled to the other component, the adjudication officer need not consider the question of his entitlement to the component which he has already been awarded or the rate of that component: s 32(2). Where a person who has been awarded a disability living allowance consisting of both components applies or is treated as applying for a review under s 30 (as amended) and alleges that he is entitled to one component at a rate higher than that at which it has been awarded, the adjudication officer need not consider the question of his entitlement to the other component or the rate of that component: s 32(3). Where a person has been awarded a component for life, on a review under s 30 (as amended) the adjudication officer must not consider the question of his entitlement to that component or the rate of that component or the period for which it has been awarded unless (1) the person awarded the component expressly applies for the consideration of that question; or (2) there has been supplied to the adjudication officer by the Secretary of State, or is otherwise available to him, information which gives him reasonable grounds for believing that entitlement to the component, or entitlement to it at the rate awarded or for that period, ought not to continue: s 32(4) (amended by the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 s 17(2)).

Any decision under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 of a social security appeal tribunal<sup>1</sup>, a disability appeal tribunal<sup>2</sup> or a social security commissioner<sup>3</sup> which relates to an attendance allowance<sup>4</sup>, a disability living allowance<sup>5</sup> or a disability working allowance<sup>6</sup> may be reviewed at any time by an adjudication officer<sup>7</sup> if:

- 1131 (1) he is satisfied that the decision was given in ignorance of, or was based on a mistake as to, some material fact<sup>8</sup>; or
- 1132 (2) there has been any relevant, or in the case of disability working allowance<sup>9</sup> prescribed, change of circumstances since the decision was given; or
- 1133 (3) Except in the case of disability working allowance, it is anticipated that a relevant change of circumstances<sup>10</sup> will so occur<sup>11</sup>; or
- 1134 (4) Except in the case of disability working allowance, the decision was that a person is or was terminally ill<sup>12</sup> and there has been a change of medical opinion with respect to his condition or his reasonable expectation of life; or
- 1135 (5) the decision was to make an award for a period wholly or partly after the date on which the claim was made or treated as made but subject to a condition being fulfilled and that condition has not been fulfilled<sup>13</sup>.

Such reviews must be carried out by adjudication officers<sup>14</sup>. The person whose claim was the subject of the appeal the decision on which has been reviewed must be given such notification as may be prescribed of the decision on the review and of his right to a further review<sup>15</sup>.

A question may be raised with a view to review under s 35 by means of an application made in writing to an adjudication officer, stating the grounds of the application and supplying such information and evidence as may be prescribed: s 35(4). Regulations may provide for enabling or requiring, in prescribed circumstances, a review under s 35 notwithstanding that no application for a review has been made under s 35(4): s 35(5). Except in prescribed circumstances, where a claim for a disability living allowance in respect of a person already awarded such an allowance on an appeal is made or treated as made during the period for which he has been awarded the allowance, it must be treated as an application for a review under s 35: s 35(7). Section 30(1),(2), (4),(5) (see PARA 376 ante) applies (1) to a decision on a review under s 35; and (2) to a refusal to review a decision such as is mentioned in s 35(1), as it applies to a decision of an adjudication officer under s 21: see s 35(8).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(ii) Disability Adjudication/378. Disability appeal tribunals.

378. Disability appeal tribunals.

The President of social security appeal tribunals, disability appeal tribunals and medical appeal tribunals<sup>1</sup> constitutes, for the whole of Great Britain<sup>2</sup>, to act for such areas as he thinks fit and be composed of such persons as he thinks fit to appoint, panels of persons to act as members of disability appeal tribunals<sup>3</sup>. There are two such panels for each area<sup>4</sup>. One panel is composed of medical practitioners and the other of persons who are experienced in dealing with the needs of disabled persons either in a professional or voluntary capacity or because they are themselves disabled, but may not include medical practitioners<sup>5</sup>. A disability appeal tribunal consists of a chairman<sup>6</sup>, nominated by the President, and two other persons<sup>7</sup>, one from an area panel of medical practitioners and one from an area panel of persons experienced in dealing with the needs of disabled persons (in a professional or voluntary capacity or because themselves disabled)<sup>8</sup>.

Where an appeal is made to a disability appeal tribunal, the clerk to the tribunal must direct every party to the proceedings to notify him if that party wishes an oral hearing of that appeal to be held<sup>9</sup>, and where he receives such notification the tribunal must hold an oral hearing<sup>10</sup>.

Where any member of a disability appeal tribunal is not present at the consideration of the case, the tribunal must not proceed to determine the case but must adjourn it for consideration by another tribunal<sup>11</sup>. The chairman may refer a claimant to a medical practitioner for examination and report, but only if satisfied that the appeal cannot be properly determined otherwise<sup>12</sup>. Where a disability appeal tribunal is unable to reach a unanimous decision on any case the decision of the majority of its members is to be the decision of the tribunal<sup>13</sup>.

Appeal lies from a decision of a disability appeal tribunal (or a social security appeal tribunal) to a social security commissioner<sup>14</sup>, on the ground that the decision of the tribunal was erroneous in point of law<sup>15</sup>, at the suit of an adjudication officer, the claimant, a trade union<sup>16</sup> (or other association existing to promote the interests and welfare of its members<sup>17</sup>) or any other person where it is determined that any amount is recoverable<sup>18</sup> from him<sup>19</sup>.

1 As to the President of social security appeal tribunals, disability appeal tribunals and medical appeal tribunals see PARA 356 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

3 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 42(1). In considering the appointment of members of the panels the President must have regard to the desirability of appointing disabled persons: s 42(5). Before appointing members of a panel, the President must take into consideration any recommendations from such organisations or persons as he considers appropriate: s 42(6).

4 Ibid s 42(2). The members of the panels hold office for such periods as the President may direct, but the President may at any time terminate the appointment of any member of a panel: s 42(7).

5 Ibid s 42(3), (4).

6 The chairman may be (1) the President himself; (2) one of the full-time chairmen appointed under ibid s 51(1); or (3) a person drawn from the panel appointed by the Lord Chancellor or, as the case may be, the Lord President of the Court of Session under the Tribunal and Inquiries Act 1992 s 6: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 43(5) (amended by the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 18(1), Sch 3 para 36). No person may be appointed chairman of a tribunal under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 43(5)(c) (see head (3) supra) unless he has a five-year general qualification or he is an advocate or solicitor in Scotland of at least five years' standing: s 43(6). For the meaning of 'general qualification' see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 742.

7 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 43(1), (4). The tribunal is convened by its clerk, who is to have regard to the desirability of at least one of the members being a disabled person: see s 43(7).

8 See ibid s 43(2), (3). If practicable, at least one of the members of the tribunal is to be of the same sex as the claimant: s 43(8). A person may not act as a member of a disability appeal tribunal if he (1) is or may be directly affected by that case; or (2) has taken any part in the case as an assessor, a medical practitioner who has regularly attended the claimant or to whom any question has been referred for report or advice, or as a witness: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 31(1). If a disability appeal tribunal is unable to determine a question by reason of the provisions of reg 31(1) the case must be referred to another such tribunal: reg 31(2). As to tenure of office, remuneration and officers and staff relating to disability appeal tribunals see also the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 43(9), Sch 2 (as amended).

9 See the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(1) (substituted by SI 1996/2450). A notification under the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(1) (as substituted) must be in writing and made within ten days of receipt of the direction from the clerk to the tribunal or within such other period as the clerk to the tribunal or the chairman of the tribunal may direct: reg 29(1A) (added by SI 1996/2450).

10 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(1B) (added by SI 1996/2450). The chairman of a disability appeal tribunal may of his own motion require an oral hearing to be held if he is satisfied that such a hearing is necessary to enable the tribunal to reach a decision: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(1C) (added by SI 1996/2450).

11 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(2). Where an oral hearing is adjourned and at the hearing after the adjournment the tribunal is differently constituted, otherwise than through the operation on that occasion of reg 29(2), the proceedings at that hearing must be by way of a complete rehearing of the case: reg 29(3).

12 See ibid reg 30; and PARA 375 ante.

13 Ibid reg 29(4). Every decision of a disability appeal tribunal must be recorded in summary by the chairman in such written form of decision notice as has been approved by the President, and such decision notice must be signed by the chairman: reg 29(5) (substituted by SI 1996/2450). As soon as may be practicable after a case has been decided by a disability appeal tribunal, a copy of the decision notice made in accordance with the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(5) (as substituted) must be sent or given to every party to the proceedings who must also be informed of his right to a statement of reasons for the tribunals' decision and of its findings on questions of fact material thereto (which may be given orally at the hearing or in writing at such later date as the chairman may determine) if requested by him, and of the conditions governing appeal to a commissioner: see reg 29(6), (6A), (6C) (substituted by SI 1996/2450). If a decision is not unanimous, the statement of reasons and findings on material facts must record that one of the members dissented and the reasons given by him for dissenting: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(6D) (added by SI 1996/2450). A record of the proceedings at the hearing must be made by the chairman in such medium as he may direct and preserved by the clerk to the tribunal for 18 months, and a copy of such record must be supplied to the parties if requested by any of them within that period: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 29(7) (added by SI 1996/182; amended by SI 1996/2450).

14 As to social security commissioners see PARA 362 ante.

15 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 34(1). For the interpretation of the phrase 'erroneous in point of law' in the analogous context of appeals from social security appeal tribunals see PARA 362 ante.

16 Ie where the claimant is a member of the union at the time of the appeal and was so immediately before the question at issue arose; and where that question in any way relates to a deceased person who was a member of the union at the time of his death: see ibid s 34(2).

17 See ibid s 34(3).

18 Ie recoverable under ibid s 71(1) (as amended): see PARA 385 post.

19 Ibid s 34(2). Section 23(7)-(10) has effect for the purposes of s 34 as it has effect for the purposes of s 23 (see PARA 363 ante): s 34(4). Section 24 (as prospectively amended) (see PARA 365 ante) applies to a decision of a commissioner under s 34 as it applies to a decision of a commissioner under s 23: s 34(5).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(iii) Medical Adjudication/379. Determination of disablement questions.

(iii) Medical Adjudication

379. Determination of disablement questions.

In relation to industrial injuries benefit<sup>1</sup> and severe disablement allowance<sup>2</sup>, the 'disablement questions' are the questions:

- 1136 (1) in relation to industrial injuries benefit, whether the relevant accident<sup>3</sup> has resulted in a loss of faculty;
- 1137 (2) in relation to both benefits, at what degree the extent of disablement resulting from a loss of faculty is to be assessed, and what period is to be taken into account by the assessment<sup>4</sup>.

Such disablement questions are to be referred to and determined by (a) an adjudicating medical practitioner<sup>5</sup>; or (b) by two or more adjudicating medical practitioners; or (c) by a medical appeal tribunal<sup>6</sup>; or (d) in such cases relating to severe disablement allowance as may be prescribed, by an adjudication officer<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to industrial injuries benefit see PARA 126 et seq ante.

2 As to severe disablement allowance see PARA 92 et seq ante.

3 A primary question is whether the relevant accident was or was not an 'industrial accident' for the purposes of the legislation; a person may apply for a declaration to be made on this question (either before or after making a claim), and this is to be determined in the normal way (ie by an adjudication officer, with appeal lying to a social security appeal tribunal), not under the special provisions for medical adjudication: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 44; and PARA 129 ante. A decision (given under s 44(2) or otherwise) that an accident was an industrial accident is to be taken as determining only that s 44(5)(a)-(c) is satisfied in relation to the accident, and neither any such decision nor the reference to an adjudicating medical practitioner or a medical appeal tribunal under s 45 (see the text and notes 4-7 infra) of the disablement questions in connection with any claim to or award of disablement benefit is to be taken as importing a decision as to the origin of any injury or disability suffered by the claimant, whether or not there is an event identifiable as an accident apart from any injury that may have been received; but (1) a decision that on a particular occasion when there was no such event a person had an industrial accident by reason of an injury is to be treated as a decision that, if the injury was suffered by accident on that occasion, the accident was an industrial accident; and (2) a decision that an accident was an industrial accident may be given, and a declaration to that effect be made and recorded in accordance with s 44, without its having been found that personal injury resulted from the accident (saving always the discretion under s 44(3) to refuse to determine the question if it is unlikely to be necessary for the purposes of a claim for benefit): s 60(3). Notwithstanding anything in s 60(2) (see PARA 333 ante) or s 60(3), but subject to the provisions of Pt II (ss 17-70) (as amended) as to appeal and review, where for the purposes of disablement pension or disablement gratuity in respect of an accident it has been found by an adjudicating medical practitioner or a medical appeal tribunal, on the determination or last determination of the disablement questions, that an injury resulted in whole or in part from the accident, then for the purposes of industrial death benefit in respect of that accident the finding is to be conclusive that the injury did so result: s 60(4). Section 60(2)-(4) applies as regards the effect to be given in any proceedings to any decision, or to a reference under s 45, whether the decision was given or reference made or the proceedings were commenced before or after the passing of the National Insurance Act 1972 (repealed) (s 5 (repealed) originally containing the provisions contained in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 60), except that it does not affect the determination of any appeal under s 48 (see PARA 381 post) from a decision of a medical appeal tribunal given before the passing of that Act, nor affect any proceedings consequent on such an appeal from a decision so given; and accordingly: (a) any decision given before the passing of that Act that a claimant was not entitled to industrial death benefit may be reviewed in accordance with the Social Security Administration Act 1992 Pt II (as amended) to give effect to s 60(4); and (b) the references in s 60(2), (3) to provisions of that 1992 Act, and the reference in this provision to s 45 include, so far as necessary, the corresponding provisions of previous Acts: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 60(5).

4 Ibid s 45(1). Questions relating to the aggregation of percentages of disablement resulting from different accidents (see PARA 146 ante) are not disablement questions (and accordingly fall to be determined by an adjudication officer): see s 45(1). Where the case of a claimant for disablement benefit has been referred by the adjudication officer to one or more adjudicating medical practitioners for determination of the disablement questions and on that or any subsequent reference, the extent of the disablement is provisionally assessed, the case must again be referred under s 45, to one or more adjudicating medical practitioners as regulations may provide for the purposes of such subsequent references, not later than the end of the period taken into account by the provisional assessment: s 45(3). On such a referral, the assessment of disablement is at large: see Parker v Chief Adjudication Officer (1991), CA, reported as an Appendix to Decision R(I)2/90.

5 As to adjudicating medical practitioners see PARA 380 post.

6 As to medical appeal tribunals see PARA 381 post.

7 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 45(2). Where, in the case of a claimant for disablement benefit, the extent of any disablement of his resulting from an aggregable accident (ie, an accident other than the one which is the basis of the claim in question) has been assessed in accordance with the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 6 para 6(3) at less than 14% (see PARA 145 note 6 ante), then the adjudication officer may refer the disablement questions relating to the aggregable accident to one or more adjudicating medical practitioners for fresh determination and on any such reference (1) those questions must be determined as at the first day of the common period; and (2) the period to be taken into account is the period beginning with that day; and for these purposes 'the first day of the common period' means whichever is the later of (a) the first day of the period taken into account by the assessment of the extent of the claimant's disablement resulting from the accident which is the basis of the claim in question; (b) the first day of the period taken into account by the assessment of the extent of his disablement resulting from the aggregable accident: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 45(4), (5).

In relation to severe disablement allowance, the disablement question is determinable by an adjudication officer where the Department of Social Security has an official record of the person's relevant loss of faculty: see the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 10(1)-(3) (as amended); and PARA 94 ante. There are further specialised provisions applying to adjudication of claims relating to prescribed industrial diseases: see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, regs 43-54 (as amended).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(iii) Medical Adjudication/380. The adjudicating medical authorities.

380. The adjudicating medical authorities.

'Adjudicating medical authority' means, as the case may be, an adjudicating medical practitioner<sup>1</sup>, a specially qualified adjudicating medical practitioner, a medical board<sup>2</sup> or a special medical board<sup>3</sup>. Adjudicating practitioners (ordinary or specially qualified) are appointed by the Secretary of State to act for such area or areas as may be specified in the instrument of appointment<sup>4</sup>.

In general, any question which falls to be determined by an adjudicating medical authority is to be referred to and determined by an adjudicating medical practitioner<sup>5</sup>. However, questions relating to certain prescribed industrial diseases<sup>6</sup> are to be referred to a specially qualified adjudicating medical practitioner<sup>7</sup>. Further, in either case the Secretary of State may refer the matter to a medical board, if he is of the opinion that it should be determined by more than one adjudicating practitioner<sup>8</sup>.

In general, a person may not act as an adjudicating medical authority, or as a member thereof, or as a member of a medical appeal tribunal<sup>9</sup>, in any case if he (1) is or may be directly affected by that case; (2) has taken any part in such case as a medical assessor or as a medical practitioner who has regularly attended the claimant or to whom any question has been referred for report or as an employer or as a witness; or (3) in the case only of a medical appeal tribunal, has acted as an adjudicating medical authority, or a member thereof, to whom the case was referred<sup>10</sup>.

Reasonable notice<sup>11</sup> of the time and place at which the adjudicating medical authority will sit for the consideration of any case must be given to the claimant<sup>12</sup>. A sitting of an adjudicating medical authority is not an oral hearing, and the only persons entitled to be present and be heard during the consideration of any question by such an authority are the claimant and any other person whom the authority may, with the claimant's consent, allow to be present as being a person who, in his or their opinion, is likely to assist in the determination of that question<sup>13</sup>.

An adjudicating medical authority must in each case record his or their decision in writing in such form as may from time to time be approved by the Secretary of State and must include in that record (which must be signed by all members of the authority) (a) a statement of his or their findings on all questions of fact material to the decision; and (b) in a case in which the decision of a medical board or special medical board consisting of three members was not unanimous, a statement that one of the members dissented and of the reasons given by him for dissenting<sup>14</sup>.

1 'Adjudicating medical practitioner' means, in relation to any case, one such practitioner, unless regulations applicable to cases of that description provide for references to more than one: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 45(6). Adjudicating medical practitioners are appointed by the Secretary of State and their appointment is determined by regulations: see s 49(1), (2); and the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801 reg 35. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 'Medical board' means two or more adjudicating medical practitioners nominated by the Secretary of State to act jointly in the consideration of a case: ibid reg 34. If a board of two members is unable to agree, the reference to that board is revoked and the case referred to a board consisting of three members and if they are not unanimous the decision of the majority is to be the decision of the board: reg 36(5). One member of a medical or special medical board is to be appointed chairman: see reg 36(6). A board may not determine any question unless all members thereof are present at the consideration of that question, and if any member of the board is absent the reference must be revoked and the case referred to another such board: reg 36(7).

3 Ibid reg 34. 'Special medical board' means a medical board of which at least two of the members are specially qualified adjudicating medical practitioners: see reg 34. Regulations 36(5)-(7) (see note 2 supra) apply equally to special medical boards.

4 See ibid reg 35.

5 See ibid reg 36(3).

6 In any question arising in connection with a claim made in respect of any of the diseases numbered B6, C15, C17, C18, C22(b), D1, D2, D3, D7, D8, D9, D10, D11 or D12 in the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967 (as amended): see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 36(2). As to prescribed industrial diseases see PARA 150 et seq ante; and as to the special adjudication provisions applying to such claims see PARA 379 ante.

7 See ibid reg 36(2). Regulation 36(2) is subject to the provisions of Pt IV Section A (regs 43-54) (as amended): see reg 36(2).

8 See ibid reg 36(1)(b), (2).

9 As to medical appeal tribunals see PARA 381 post.

10 See ibid reg 40(1). A medical practitioner to whom a question has been referred under reg 45(1) (reference of diagnosis and recrudence questions for medical report) is not precluded from acting as an adjudicating medical practitioner or a specially qualified adjudicating medical practitioner solely by reason of his having prepared, under that regulation, a report on the case of the claimant (whether in relation to the question for determination or otherwise) if he proposes to determine the question in favour of the claimant: reg 40(2). A medical practitioner is not precluded from acting as a member of a special medical board for the purposes of the consideration of a case solely because he has taken part in that case as a medical practitioner to whom a question relating to any of the diseases numbered B6, C15, C17, C18, C22(b), D1, D2, D3, D7, D8, D9, D10, D11 or D12 in the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, Sch 1 Pt I (as amended) has been referred for report: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 40(3). If an adjudicating medical authority or a medical appeal tribunal is unable to determine a question by reason of the provision of reg 40(1), the reference to that authority or tribunal is revoked and the case referred to another such authority or tribunal: reg 40(4).

11 In being not less than ten days beginning with the day on which the notice is given and ending on the day before the sitting is to take place: see ibid reg 36(8).

12 Ibid reg 36(8). If such notice is not given or if, after such notice has been given, the claimant should fail to appear at the sitting of the authority, the authority may proceed to determine the questions referred to him or them only with the claimant's consent: see reg 36(8).

13 Ibid reg 36(9).

14 Ibid reg 37(1). As soon as may be practicable, the claimant must be sent written notice of the decision of the adjudicating medical authority, and such notice must be in such form as may from time to time be approved by the Secretary of State and must contain a summary of the findings of the authority, including, where the decision was not unanimous, a statement that one of the members dissented and of the reasons given by him for dissenting: reg 37(2). A person to whom written notice of the decision of an adjudicating authority is sent in accordance with reg 36(2) must be informed in writing of the conditions governing an appeal to a medical appeal tribunal: reg 37(3).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(iii) Medical Adjudication/381. Medical appeal tribunals.

381. Medical appeal tribunals.

A claimant who is dissatisfied with a decision of an adjudicating medical practitioner<sup>1</sup> on a disablement question<sup>2</sup> may appeal to a medical appeal tribunal<sup>3</sup>. A medical appeal tribunal consists of a chairman<sup>4</sup> and two other persons, who are medical practitioners appointed by the President of social security appeal tribunals, disability appeal tribunals and medical appeal tribunals<sup>5</sup> after consultation with such academic medical bodies as appear to him to be appropriate<sup>6</sup>. Where an appeal or reference is made to a medical appeal tribunal, the clerk to the tribunal must direct every party to the proceedings to notify him if that party wishes an oral hearing of that appeal or reference to be held<sup>7</sup>, and where he receives such notification the medical appeal tribunal must hold an oral hearing<sup>8</sup>.

At a medical appeal tribunal hearing the tribunal may reconsider any relevant question within its jurisdiction, but in doing so must observe the rules of natural justice and give the claimant a proper opportunity to consider and address any such matter arising<sup>9</sup>. Where a medical appeal tribunal is unable to reach a unanimous decision on any case the decision of the majority of its members is to be the decision of the tribunal<sup>10</sup>, but if a member is not present at the consideration of the case the tribunal must not proceed to determine that case but must instead adjourn it for consideration by another tribunal<sup>11</sup>. Every decision of a medical appeal tribunal must be recorded in summary by the chairman in such written form of decision notice as approved by the President, and such decision notice must be signed by the chairman<sup>12</sup>. A statement of the reasons for the tribunal's decision and of its findings on questions of fact material thereto may be given (1) orally at the hearing (in which case it must be recorded in such medium as the chairman may determine); or (2) in writing at such later date as the chairman may determine<sup>13</sup>. As soon as may be practicable after a case has been decided by a medical appeal tribunal, a copy of the decision notice must be sent or given to every party to the proceedings who must also be informed of his right to a statement of the reasons for the tribunal's decision and of its findings on questions of fact material thereto and the conditions governing appeals to a commissioner<sup>14</sup>.

An appeal lies from any decision of a medical appeal tribunal if given after 27 September 1959<sup>15</sup>, to a social security commissioner<sup>16</sup> on the ground that the decision is erroneous in point of law, at the instance of (a) an adjudication officer; (b) the claimant; (c) a trade union<sup>17</sup> of which the claimant was a member at the time of the relevant accident or, in the case relating to severe disablement allowance<sup>18</sup> at the prescribed time; or (d) the Secretary of State<sup>19</sup>. No appeal lies, however, without (i) the leave of the person who was the chairman of the medical appeal tribunal when the decision was given or, in a prescribed case, the leave of some other chairman of a medical appeal tribunal; or (ii) subject to and in accordance with regulations, of a commissioner<sup>20</sup>. Where the commissioner holds that the decision was erroneous in point of law, he must set it aside and refer the case to a medical appeal tribunal with directions for its determination<sup>21</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'adjudicating medical practitioner' see PARA 380 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'disablement question' see PARA 379 ante.

3 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 46(1), (2). A reference to an adjudicating medical practitioner and an appeal to a medical appeal tribunal under s 46 are proceedings for the determination by experts of matters of medical fact and opinion relevant to a claim for benefit, which are not analogous to a lis inter partes. On such an appeal, therefore, the tribunal's unfettered power under s 46 to determine disablement questions ought not to be limited by applying rules of practice adopted by appellate courts in litigation between adverse parties, and the tribunal has jurisdiction to make a new determination and substitute that for the conclusions of the adjudicating medical practitioner, whether the tribunal's determination is more or less favourable to the claimant than were the conclusions of the practitioner: see R v Medical Appeal Tribunal (North Midland Region), ex p Hubble [1958] 2 All ER 374; affd [1959] 2 QB 408, [1959] 3 All ER 40, CA.

If the Secretary of State notifies the adjudication officer within the prescribed time that he is of the opinion that any decision of the adjudicating medical practitioner ought to be considered by a medical appeal tribunal or the adjudication officer is of the opinion that any such decision ought to be so considered, the adjudication officer must refer the case to a medical appeal tribunal for its consideration, and the tribunal may confirm, reverse or vary the decision in whole or in part as on an appeal: s 46(3). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

4 The President of social security appeal tribunals, disability appeal tribunals and medical appeal tribunals must nominate the chairman of the tribunal, who may be (1) himself; (2) one of the full-time chairmen appointed under s 51(1); or (3) a person drawn from the panel appointed by the Lord Chancellor or, as the case may be, the Lord President of the Court of Session under the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 6: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 50(3), (4) (amended by the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 18(1), Sch 3 para 36). No person can be appointed chairman of a tribunal under s 50(4)(c) (see head (3) supra) unless he has a five-year general qualification, or he is an advocate or solicitor in Scotland of at least five years' standing: s 50(5). For the meaning of 'general qualification' see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 742.

5 As to the President of social security appeal tribunals, disability appeal tribunals and medical appeal tribunals see PARA 356 ante.

6 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 50(1), (2). Subject to s 50(1)-(5), the constitution of medical appeal tribunals is determined by regulations: s 50(6). As to the disqualification of particular medical practitioners from sitting to hear a particular case see PARA 380 ante. Schedule 2 (as amended) has effect for supplementing s 50 (as amended): s 50(7).

7 Social Security (Adjudications) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(1) (substituted by SI 1996/2450). A notification under the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(1) (as substituted) must be in writing and must be made within ten days of receipt of the direction from the clerk to the tribunal or within such other period as the clerk to the tribunal or the chairman of the tribunal may direct: reg 38(1A) (added by SI 1996/2450).

8 See the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(1B) (added by SI 1996/2450). The chairman of a medical appeal tribunal may of his own motion require an oral hearing to be held if he is satisfied that such a hearing is necessary to enable the tribunal to reach a decision: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(1C) (added by SI 1996/2450).

13 Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(5A), (5B) (both added by SI 1996/2450).

14 See the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(5) (substituted by SI 1996/2450), reg 38(5C) (added by SI 1996/2450). A copy of the statement referred to in the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(5A) (as added) must be supplied to the parties to the proceedings if requested by any of them within 21 days after the decision notice has been sent or given, and if the statement is one which was given orally at the hearing, that copy must be supplied in such medium as the chairman may direct: see reg 38(5C) (as so added). If a decision is not unanimous, the statement referred to in the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(5A) (as added) must record that one of the members dissented and the reasons given by him for dissenting: reg 38(5D) (added by SI 1996/2450). A record of the proceedings at the hearing must be made by the chairman in such medium as he may direct and preserved by the clerk to the tribunal for 18 months, and a copy of such record must be supplied to the parties if requested by any of them within that period: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 38(6) (added by SI 1996/182; amended by SI 1996/2450).

Older case law tended to minimise the requirement for a medical appeal tribunal to set out its reasons fully, or to explain any departure from earlier decisions relating to the claimant: see eg R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Viscusi [1974] 2 All ER 724, [1974] 1 WLR 646, CA; and Baron v Secretary of State for Social Services (1986), CA, reported as an Appendix to Decision R(M)6/86. In particular, the expert nature of this form of tribunal was stressed: R v Medical Appeal Tribunal, ex p Hubble [1958] 2 QB 228, [1958] 2 All ER 374, DC, affd in [1959] 2 QB 408, [1959] 3 All ER 40, CA. However, when the matter was reconsidered in the leading modern case of Evans v Secretary of State for Social Services [1993] TLR 474, [1993] NLJR 1370, CA, a significantly stricter approach was taken. Neil LJ gave this guidance:

- 152 (1) the decision should record the medical question(s) at issue so that the parties can tell what was addressed;
- 153 (2) where the tribunal have medically examined the claimant they should record their findings;
- 154 (3) if the clinical findings do not point to an obvious diagnosis, it might be necessary for the tribunal to explain why they decided on the particular diagnosis that they chose (especially where this differs from the diagnosis below);
- 155 (4) questions of causation may require more than a statement as to the tribunal's conclusion, especially where the claimant has previously been in receipt of some relevant benefit or allowance; in fairness, a claimant or his advisers ought to be able to tell why the tribunal thought the chain of causation was broken.

15 The day preceding that on which the Family Allowances and National Insurance Act 1959 s 2 (repealed) came into force.

16 As to social security commissioners see PARA 362 ante.

17 This also applies to any other association which exists to promote the interests and welfare of its members: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 48(2).

18 As to severe disablement allowance see PARA 92 et seq ante.

19 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 48(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante. On any such appeal, the question of law arising for the decision of the commissioner and the facts on which it arises must be submitted for his consideration in the prescribed manner: s 48(4).

20 Ibid s 48(3). Regulations may make provision as to the manner in which, and the time within which, appeals are to be brought and applications made for leave to appeal: see s 48(3); and the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801 (as amended). As to the relevant time limits see PARA 366 ante.

21 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 48(5). Subject to any direction of the commissioner, the tribunal on a reference under s 48(5) must consist of persons who were not members of the tribunal which gave the erroneous decision: s 48(6). Subject to the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 48(2), (3), the provisions of these regulations apply for the disposal by a medical appeal tribunal of a case remitted to it following an appeal to a commissioner as if it were an original hearing of an appeal to the medical appeal tribunal: reg 42(1). If on appeal from the medical appeal tribunal to him, the commissioner has decided that the decision of the medical appeal tribunal is not erroneous in point of law, the medical appeal tribunal need not hold a hearing for the purpose of confirming its decision: see reg 42(2). If the case is remitted to the medical appeal tribunal following an appeal to the commissioner in which it was decided that the decision of the medical appeal tribunal was erroneous in point of law, the proceedings must, subject to any direction of the commissioner, be by way of a complete rehearing of the appeal by persons who were not members of the tribunal which gave the erroneous decision: reg 42(3).

382. Review of medical decisions.

Any decision under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 of an adjudicating medical practitioner<sup>1</sup> or a medical appeal tribunal<sup>2</sup> may be reviewed at any time by a medical board<sup>3</sup> if satisfied that it was given in ignorance of a material fact or was based on a mistake as to a material fact<sup>4</sup>, but only if so satisfied by fresh evidence<sup>5</sup>. Similarly, any decision of an adjudicating medical practitioner may be reviewed at any time by a medical board if it is satisfied that the decision was erroneous in law<sup>6</sup>.

Any assessment of the extent of disablement resulting from the relevant loss of faculty may be reviewed by an adjudicating medical practitioner if he is satisfied that, since the making of the assessment, there has been an unforeseen aggravation of the results of the relevant injury<sup>7</sup>. Where, however, such an assessment has been made, confirmed or varied by a medical appeal tribunal it may only be reviewed with the leave of a medical appeal tribunal<sup>8</sup>.

An adjudicating medical practitioner may deal with a case on a review in any manner in which he could deal with it on an original reference to him, and in particular may in any case relating to disablement benefit make a provisional assessment notwithstanding that the assessment under review was final<sup>9</sup>. The provisions relating to medical appeals<sup>10</sup> apply to an application for a review and to a decision of an adjudicating medical practitioner in connection with such an application as they apply to an original claim for disablement benefit or severe disablement allowance, as the case may be, and to a decision of an adjudicating medical practitioner in connection with such a claim<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'adjudicating medical practitioner' see PARA 380 note 1 ante.

2 As to medical appeal tribunals see PARA 381 ante.

3 As to medical boards see PARA 380 ante.

4 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(1) (amended by the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 36(1)(a), 52). A 'material fact' is one which would influence the decision of the practitioner or tribunal: see Locker and Woolf Ltd v Western Australian Insurance Co Ltd [1936] 1 KB 408; and cf Smith v Chadwick (1884) 9 App Cas 187 at 194.

5 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(3); and the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 61. Evidence is 'fresh' for this purpose if it is evidence which the claimant was unable to produce before the decision was given or which he could not reasonably be expected to have produced in the circumstances of the case: see Saker v Secretary of State for Social Services (1988) Times, 16 January, CA; and R v Medical Appeal Tribunal, ex p Hubble [1959] 2 QB 408, [1959] 3 All ER 40, CA.

6 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(2) (amended by the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 36(1)(a), 52).

7 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(4). A review on this basis supersedes the decision under review (even if that decision was expressed as final), thus potentially putting the issue at large: see Parker v Chief Adjudication Officer (1991), CA, reported as an Appendix to Decision R(I)2/90. On review of any assessment under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(4) the period to be taken into account by any revised assessment may include any period not exceeding one month before (1) if the review was in consequence of an application by a claimant, or a person acting on his behalf, the date of that application; or (2) if the review was in consequence of a decision on a recrudescence question within the meaning of the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 43(3)(b) given under the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 7(4), the date of the claim on which that decision was given, if the medical board is satisfied that throughout that period there has been unforeseen aggravation of the results of the relevant injury since the making of the assessment under review: Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 62 (amended by SI 1997/793).

8 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(7). Notwithstanding the provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt V (ss 94-111) (as amended) (see PARA 126 et seq ante), on a review under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(4) the period to be taken into account by any revised assessment may only include a period before the date of the application for the review if and in so far as regulations provide: see s 47(7). The adjudication officer must submit the application to a medical appeal tribunal so that such tribunal may consider whether such leave is to be granted and may not refer the question to an adjudicating medical authority with a view to review of that decision unless the medical appeal tribunal grants such leave: see the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 41. Where in connection with a claim for disablement benefit made after 25 August 1953 it is decided that the relevant accident has not resulted in a loss of faculty, the decision (1) may be reviewed under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(4) as if it were an assessment of the extent of disablement resulting from a relevant loss of faculty; but (2) subject to any further decision on appeal or review, must be treated as deciding the question whether the relevant accident had so resulted both for the time about which the decision was given and for any subsequent time: s 47(5). For the purposes of s 47(5), a final assessment of the extent of the disablement resulting from a loss of faculty made for a period limited by reference to a definite date must be treated as deciding that at that date the relevant accident had not resulted in a loss of faculty: s 47(6). In s 47(6), the reference to a final assessment does not include an assessment made for the purpose of the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act 1946 s 12(1)(a) or (b) (repealed) as originally enacted and having the effect that benefit is not payable: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(10). For the meaning of 'relevant loss of faculty' see PARA 142 note 7 ante.

9 Ibid s 47(8) (amended by the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 36(1)(a), 52). Where a final assessment of the extent of disablement resulting from a loss of faculty has been made for a period limited by reference to a definite date and an application for review on the ground that there has been unforeseen aggravation of the results of the relevant disease is made within a period of three months immediately following that date, the adjudicating medical authority must determine the extent of disablement resulting from the relevant loss of faculty both for the period limited by reference to a definite date and any time after that period: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(8A) (added by the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, reg 36(1)(a), 52).

383 Social fund officers, inspectors and commissioner

TEXT AND NOTES--There continues to be an officer known as the social fund commissioner, who is appointed by the Secretary of State: Social Security Act 1998 s 37(1), (2). The social fund commissioner must appoint, from persons made available to the him by the Secretary of State, such social fund inspectors, and may appoint such officers and staff for himself and for social fund inspectors, as he thinks fit, but with the consent of the Secretary of State as to numbers: s 37(3), (4). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(4) ADJUDICATION/(iv) Social Fund Adjudication/384. Reviews of social fund decisions.

384. Reviews of social fund decisions.

Challenges to social fund<sup>1</sup> decisions operate by way of internal reviews, not by way of appeal to an independent tribunal<sup>2</sup>. There are two stages to such a review:

- 1141 (1) a social fund officer<sup>3</sup> must review a determination made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 by himself or some other social fund officer, if an application<sup>4</sup> for a review is made within such time and in such form and manner as may be prescribed by or on behalf of the person who applied for the payment to which the determination relates, and may review such a determination in such other circumstances as he thinks fit<sup>5</sup>. The Social Fund Directions<sup>6</sup> further regulate this review power, as to both the circumstances in which a determination is to be reviewed<sup>7</sup> and the manner in which the review is to be conducted<sup>8</sup>;
- 1142 (2) on an application made by or on behalf of the person to whom a determination relates within such time and in such form and manner as may be prescribed, a determination of a social fund officer which has been reviewed must be further reviewed by a social fund inspector<sup>9</sup>, who has the power to confirm that determination, make any determination which a social fund officer could have made or refer the matter to such an officer for determination<sup>10</sup>. In addition, special directions to social fund inspectors further regulate the form of this review by an inspector<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the social fund generally see PARA 228 et seq ante.

2 Arguments that this form of adjudication was unlawful failed in R v Social Fund Inspector and the Secretary of State for Social Security, ex p Healey, Stitt and Ellison [1992] COD 335, (1992) 4 Admin LR 713, CA. R v Social Fund Inspector and the Secretary of State for Social Security, ex p Healey, Stitt and Ellison supra also upheld the use of social fund directions to determine the manner of review.

3 As to social fund officers see PARA 383 ante.

4 Any application for a review of any determination made by a social fund officer and a further review by a social fund inspector of a determination of a social fund officer which has been reviewed must be in writing and made within 28 days of the date the determination or the determination on review was issued: see the Social Fund (Application for Review) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/34, reg 2(1), (2). For these purposes, the date on which a determination or determination on review is issued is the date on which notice of that determination was given or sent to the applicant for review or further review and, if sent by post to the applicant's last known or notified address, that notice must be treated as having been sent on the day that it was posted: reg 2(7). This time may be extended for special reasons, even though the time so specified may already have expired, by the social fund officer or, as the case may be, the social fund inspector. As to the particulars of such an application see reg 2(4), (5); and as to the making of such an application on behalf of a person see reg 2(6) (as substituted).

5 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 66(1). On such a review the social fund officer may exercise any power exercisable by an officer under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt VIII (ss 138-140) (see PARA 228 et seq ante): see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 66(1). The power to review a determination so conferred on a social fund officer includes the power to review a determination made by a social fund officer on a previous review: s 66(2).

6 As to the power to make such directions see PARA 228 ante.

7 A reviewing officer must review a determination if (1) it was based on a mistake as to the law or the directions; (2) it was given in ignorance of, or was based on a mistake as to, some material fact; or (3) there has been any relevant change of circumstances since the decision was given: see Social Fund Direction 31.

8 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 66(7), (8). The reviewing officer must have full regard initially to (1) whether the previous officer applied the law correctly; (2) whether he acted fairly and exercised his discretion to arrive at a reasonable conclusion; and (3) whether the required procedural steps were followed (including whether the applicant had sufficient opportunity to put his case and there was no bias): Social Fund Direction 39. After such initial consideration, the officer, in thereafter reviewing the determination, must have full regard to (a) all the circumstances which existed at the time the original determination was made; (b) any new evidence which has since been produced; and (c) any relevant change of circumstances: see Social Fund Direction 32. Social Fund Directions 33-35 provide for the applicant to be given an opportunity to attend an interview with the officer (accompanied by a friend or representative if he wishes) if the officer decides not to review a determination wholly in the applicant's favour. If an applicant does not agree with a revised determination, or if the officer decides not to revise the previous determination, the officer must pass all the relevant papers to a social fund review officer who must freshly determine the review application: see Social Fund Directions 36-38.

9 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 66(3). As to social fund inspectors see PARA 383 ante. An officer or inspector must determine any question on a review in accordance with any general directions issued by the Secretary of State under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 140(2) (see PARA 228 ante) and any general directions issued by him with regard to reviews and in determining any such questions must take account of any general guidance issued by him under that provision or with regard to reviews: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 66(7).

10 See ibid s 66(4). A social fund inspector may review a determination under s 66(3) made by himself or some other social fund inspector: s 66(5). In determining a question on a review a social fund officer or social fund inspector must have regard, subject to s 66(7), to all the circumstances of the case and, in particular, to the matters specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 140(1)(a)-(e) (see PARA 228 ante): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 66(6). A social fund inspector reviewing a determination is under the same duties in relation to such guidance as the social fund officer or inspector who made the determination: s 66(10).

11 See ibid s 66(7), (10). There are two stages in the review. The inspector is to consider initially whether the officer applied the law correctly, whether he acted fairly and exercised his discretion to reach a reasonable conclusion and whether the required procedural steps were followed: see Social Fund Direction 1. If satisfied that the decision was reached correctly, the inspector, in reviewing the determination, is to have full regard to (1) all the circumstances, including the state of the social fund budget and local priorities, that existed at the time that the original decision was made; (2) any new evidence which has since been produced; and (3) any relevant change of circumstances: see Social Fund Direction 2. In applying head (3) supra, the inspector is to apply the law in force at the date of his decision, not at the date of the original decision (where there has been a change in the law in the meantime): R v Social Fund Inspector, ex p Ledicott [1995] TLR 307, DC.

384 Reviews of social fund decisions

TEXT AND NOTES--Replaced. An appropriate officer (see PARA 228) (1) must review a social fund determination, if an application for a review is made, within such time and in such form and manner as may be prescribed, by or on behalf of the person who applied for the payment to which the determination relates; (2) may review such a determination on the ground that the person who applied for the payment to which the determination relates misrepresented, or failed to disclose, any material fact; and (3) may review such a determination in such other circumstances as he thinks fit: Social Security Act 1998 s 38(1). The power to review a social fund determination includes power to review a determination made on a previous review: s 38(2). 'Social fund determination' means a determination made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 by an appropriate officer: Social Security Act 1998 s 38(13).

A social fund determination which has been reviewed under s 38(1) must be further reviewed by a social fund inspector if an application is made, within such time and in such form and manner as may be prescribed, by or on behalf of the person who applied for the payment to which the determination relates: s 38(3). On a review under s 38(3) a social fund inspector has (a) power to confirm the determination made by the appropriate officer, (b) power to make any determination which an appropriate officer could have made, (c) power to refer the matter to such an officer for determination: s 38(4).

A social fund inspector may review a determination under s 38(3) made by himself or some other social fund inspector: s 38(5). In making a determination on a review an appropriate officer or a social fund inspector need not consider (i) in the case of a determination on a review under head (1), any issue that is not raised by the application, (ii) in the case of a determination on a review under head (2), any issue that is not raised by the material fact, (iii) in the case of a determination on a review under head (3), any issue that did not cause him to carry out the review: s 38(6). In making a determination on a review under head (1) or (3) an appropriate officer or a social fund inspector must (A) subject to s 38(7)(b), (c), have regard to criteria specified in s 38(7)(a); (B) act in accordance with any general directions issued by the Secretary of State under s 38(2), and any general directions issued by him with regard to reviews; and (C) take account of any general guidance issued by the Secretary of State under s 38(2) or with regard to reviews: s 38(7) (amended by Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 7 para 4, Sch 8).

In making a determination on a review under head (2) an appropriate officer or a social fund inspector must act in accordance with any general directions issued by the Secretary of State, and take account of any general guidance issued by the Secretary of State: s 38(8). Any reference in s 38(6), (7) or (8) to a determination on a review under a particular provision of s 38(1) above is to be construed, in relation to a social fund inspector, as a reference to a determination on a further review of a determination which has been reviewed under that provision: s 38(9).

Directions under s 38 may specify the circumstances in which a social fund determination is to be reviewed, and the manner in which a review is to be conducted: s 38(10). In making a determination on a review under head (1) or (3) an appropriate officer must take account (subject to any directions or guidance issued by the Secretary of State under s 38) of any guidance issued by the appropriate officer nominated for his area under s 36(2) (see PARA 228): s 38(11). A social fund inspector reviewing a social fund determination which has been reviewed under head (1) or (3) is under the same duties in relation to such guidance as the appropriate officer or social fund inspector who made the determination: s 38(12).

NOTE 4--Now any application for a review of any determination made by an appropriate officer and a further review by a social fund inspector which has been reviewed must be in writing and be made within the time specified: SI 1988/34 reg 2(1), (2) (amended by SI 2006/961).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(5) OVERPAYMENTS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF BENEFIT/385. Overpayment of benefit.

(5) OVERPAYMENTS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF BENEFIT

385. Overpayment of benefit.

Where it is determined that, whether fraudulently or otherwise<sup>1</sup>, any person<sup>2</sup> has misrepresented<sup>3</sup>, or failed to disclose<sup>4</sup>, any material fact and in consequence<sup>5</sup> of the misrepresentation or failure either a payment has been made in respect of certain benefits<sup>6</sup> or any sum recoverable by or on behalf of the Secretary of State<sup>7</sup> in connection with any such payment has not been recovered, then the Secretary of State is entitled to recover the amount of any payment which he would not have made or any sum which he would have received but for the misrepresentation or failure to disclose<sup>8</sup>. Where such a determination is made, the person making the determination must also determine whether any, and if so what, amount is recoverable by the Secretary of State and specify the period during which that amount was paid to the person concerned<sup>9</sup>. An amount is not so recoverable unless the determination in pursuance of which it was paid has been reversed or varied on an appeal or revised on a review<sup>10</sup>. In an overpayment case, the burden of proof is on the adjudication officer<sup>11</sup>.

Regulations may provide (1) that amounts recoverable<sup>12</sup> are to be calculated or estimated in such manner and on such basis as may be prescribed<sup>13</sup>; (2) for treating any amount paid to any person under an award which it is subsequently determined was not payable as properly paid or as paid on account of a payment which it is determined should be or should have been made, and for reducing or withholding any arrears payable by virtue of the subsequent determination<sup>14</sup>; (3) for treating any amount paid to one person in respect of another as properly paid for any period for which it is not payable in cases where in consequence of a subsequent determination the other person is himself entitled to a payment for that period or a third person is entitled in priority to the payee to a payment for that period in respect of the other person, and for reducing or withholding any arrears payable for that period by virtue of the subsequent determination<sup>15</sup>.

1 This provision applies to innocent as well as fraudulent misrepresentation or failure to disclose: Page v Chief Adjudication Officer (1991) (reported as an Appendix to Decision R(IS)2/92), CA.

2 As to the persons from whom recovery may be sought see PARA 388 post.

3 See PARA 386 post; and MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD.

4 See PARA 387 post. While misrepresentation and failure to disclose are separate heads under this provision, a misrepresentation may be based on a statement that proper disclosure has been made, and so there may be an overlap between the two: Jones v Chief Adjudication Officer [1994] 1 All ER 225, [1994] 1 WLR 62, CA.

5 Causation must be shown: Decisions R(SB)21/82; R(SB)13/89. Thus, the proximate cause of an overpayment may be administrative error, especially where the claimant has made disclosure; however, a misrepresentation may still be the cause of an overpayment where there has been some earlier disclosure if the adjudication officer relies on that misrepresentation, since it is not sufficient for the claimant to argue that the officer had the means of checking his statement: Decision R(SB)3/90. There may be recovery as long as the claimant's misrepresentation or failure to disclose remained a cause, if not necessarily the sole cause: Duggan v Chief Adjudication Officer (1988) Times, 19 December, CA.

SI 1988/664 now replaced, in so far as it relates to child benefit or guardian's allowance, by Child Benefit (General) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/223 (see PARA 237-257). ### 385 Overpayment of benefit

TEXT AND NOTES--As to the approach of the court when considering whether to adjourn civil proceedings for the recovery of overpaid benefits in light of related criminal proceedings for dishonesty, see Mote v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions [2007] EWCA Civ 1324, [2008] HLR 427, [2007] All ER (D) 212 (Dec).

NOTE 4--Failure by a person to disclose any material fact is a breach of a duty of strict liability even though he does not appreciate that there is a duty to make disclosure: B v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions [2005] EWCA Civ 929, [2005] 1 WLR 3796.

NOTE 6--Now also state pension credit, an employment and support allowance and health in pregnancy grant: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 70(11) (amended by the State Pension Credit Act 2002 Sch 2 para 10; the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 10(6); and the Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 132(4)). Heads (4) and (5) omitted: 2002 Act Sch 6.

NOTE 8--Overpaid benefits fall within the insolvency legislation: R (on the application of Steele) v Birmingham City Council [2005] EWCA Civ 1824, [2006] 1 WLR 2380 (overpayments received prior to person's bankruptcy, but decision to recover not taken until after his discharge, recoverable); R (on the application of Balding) v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions [2007] EWCA Civ 1327, [2008] 3 All ER 217 (overpaid benefit not recoverable on bankruptcy). See Hooper v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions [2007] EWCA Civ 495, [2007] All ER (D) 421 (May) (overpayment due to failure to give notification of return to work not recoverable, as fact sheet not sufficiently clear and unambiguous to impose mandatory requirement). The Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71 is exhaustive of the rights of the Secretary of State to recover overpaid benefits; there is no coexisting right at common law to recover overpayments that do not fall within the scope of s 71: R (on the application of Child Poverty Action Group) v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions [2009] EWCA Civ 1058, [2010] 2 All ER 113.

TEXT AND NOTE 9--This is a duty in the case of the Secretary of State or the First-tier tribunal, and a discretion in the case of the Upper Tribunal or a court: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71(2) (amended by the Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 81(1); SI 2008/2833).

TEXT AND NOTE 10--For 'revised on a review' read 'has been revised under the 1998 Act s 9 (see PARA 356A) or superseded under s 10 (see PARA 356A.3): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71(5A) (amended by the 1998 Act Sch 7 para 81(3)).

1992 Act s 71(5A) further amended: Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 44(3).

NOTE 10--An amount is not recoverable under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71, as it applies in relation to social fund payments to which s 71ZA (see PARA 385-396) applies, unless the determination in pursuance of which it was paid has been revised on a review under s 38 (see PARA 359): s 71(5A) (modified by s 71ZA(2)(a) (s 71ZA added by the 1998 Act s 75)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(5) OVERPAYMENTS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF BENEFIT/386. Misrepresentation.

386. Misrepresentation.

A misrepresentation<sup>1</sup> may arise from a written or oral statement<sup>2</sup>, but in order to decide whether such a misrepresentation actually occurred it may be necessary to consider all the facts surrounding the statement<sup>3</sup>. It may also be necessary to consider the form of any declaration signed by the claimant<sup>4</sup> which is said to give rise to the misrepresentation<sup>5</sup>. The necessary causal link must be established, in that the misrepresentation must have induced the representee to act or fail to act in such a way as to give rise to the overpayment<sup>6</sup>.

Mental incapacity on the part of the claimant does not mean that there cannot be a misrepresentation by that person<sup>7</sup>. Further, previous disclosure of facts on a previous claim is not a defence to an allegation of a misrepresentation as to the existence of those facts in a subsequent claim<sup>8</sup>.

A misrepresentation may be fraudulent or innocent<sup>9</sup> and may arise from what would otherwise come under the heading of failure to disclose<sup>10</sup> if the claimant has signed a declaration stating that he has disclosed or reported all material facts<sup>11</sup>. In such a case, however, a claimant cannot be guilty of misrepresentation in relation to a fact which was unknown to him<sup>12</sup>.

1 See PARA 385 ante.

2 Misrepresentation is founded on positive and deliberate action, such as signing a declaration: Decision R(SB)9/85.

3 Decision R(SB)18/85 (statement that claimant had no income negated by his production of his army pension book at interview); Decision R(SB)2/91 (misrepresentation significantly modified by reading letter and claim form together).

4 For the meaning of 'claimant' see PARA 19 note 5 ante. A misrepresentation may also be made by a person other than the claimant, in which case recovery of benefit is from that other person: see PARAS 385 ante, 388 post.

5 Jones v Chief Adjudication Officer [1994] 1 All ER 225, [1994] 1 WLR 62, CA (no misrepresentation where facts were unknown to the claimant and the declaration on the form he signed that the information was true and complete was qualified by the words 'as far as I know').

6 Decision R(SB)3/90.

7 Chief Adjudication Officer v Sherriff [1995] TLR 269, [1995] 22 LS Gaz R 41, CA (recovery permitted from 80-year old claimant, on the basis of a form filled out for her in the nursing home and merely signed by her).

8 Decision R(SB)3/90 (entitled to rely on the claimant's statements on a particular claim form without having to check their veracity against earlier documents).

9 See PARA 385 note 1 ante. Innocent misrepresentation may arise, for example, due to forgetfulness (Decision R(SB)21/82) or failure to realise the materiality of a particular fact (Decision CIS/695/1992).

10 See PARAS 385 ante, 387 post.

11 Jones v Chief Adjudication Officer [1994] 1 All ER 225, [1994] 1 WLR 62, CA. In such a case, an adjudication officer may therefore seek recovery under either limb (ie misrepresentation or failure to disclose).

12 Franklin v Chief Adjudication Officer [1995] TLR 720, CA (no recovery from claimant who had correctly reported her initial rate of mortgage interest, who had not known of subsequent changes to it, but who had signed further declarations stating that she had correctly reported any facts which could affect her entitlement); Jones v Chief Adjudication Officer [1994] 1 All ER 225, [1994] 1 WLR 62, CA. Cf Decisions R(SB)21/82; R(SB)9/85 (while knowledge of the facts was essential to show failure to disclose, it was not necessary where the allegation was of misrepresentation); and see also Chief Adjudication Officer v Sherriff [1995] TLR 269, [1995] 22 LS Gaz R 41, CA.

See also Child Benefit and Guardian's Allowance (Administrative Arrangements) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/494 (amended by SI 2006/203).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(5) OVERPAYMENTS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF BENEFIT/387. Failure to disclose.

387. Failure to disclose.

A failure to disclose a material fact<sup>1</sup> necessarily imports the concept of some breach of obligation, moral or legal, so that the non-disclosure occurred in circumstances in which disclosure by the person in question<sup>2</sup> was reasonably to be expected<sup>3</sup>. The failure may be either fraudulent or innocent<sup>4</sup>.

In order to recover overpaid benefit on the basis of failure to disclose, it must be shown that<sup>5</sup>:

- 1143 (1) the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup> seeking to recover the expenditure is the Secretary of State who incurred it;
- 1144 (2) the person from whom it is sought to recover the expenditure knew the material fact<sup>7</sup>;
- 1145 (3) disclosure by the person in question was reasonably to be expected<sup>8</sup>;
- 1146 (4) there was a failure to disclose<sup>9</sup>;
- 1147 (5) the failure related to a material fact; and
- 1148 (6) the expenditure by the relevant Secretary of State was incurred in consequence of the failure<sup>10</sup>.

1 See PARA 385 ante.

2 The failure to disclose will usually be by the claimant but it may be by some other person, in which case recovery of the benefit is from that other person: see PARAS 385 ante, 388 post.

3 Decision R(SB)21/82 para 4. There is no requirement for these purposes that the disclosure be in writing: Decision R(SB) 40/84.

4 See PARA 385 ante. A failure to disclose will be innocent if, for example, the person did not realise the materiality of the fact or had simply forgotten it: Decision R(SB)28/83.

5 As to these requirements see Decision R(SB)54/83 para 13. A decision is not automatically erroneous in law because it fails to deal expressly with each of the requirements set out in heads (1)-(6) in the text: Decision R(IS)17/95.

6 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

7 Knowledge has always been a requirement under this head: R v Medical Appeal Tribunal, ex p Hubble [1958] 2 QB 228, [1958] 2 All ER 374, CA; Franklin v Chief Adjudication Officer [1995] TLR 720, CA; and see PARA 386 note 12 ante. If the person had the knowledge in the past, that will not be affected by his having forgotten it: Decision R(SB)21/82 para 20. It is enough if the person knew or with reasonable diligence ought to have known of the material fact: Decision R(SB)28/83 para 10.

8 Previous practice may be relevant when deciding what it was reasonable to disclose on the occasion in question: Decision R(SB)3/81. It may not be reasonable to expect disclosure of a matter entirely under the control of another party: Decision R(SB)2/91 para 8. Mental incapacity of the claimant may be a factor in determining whether it was reasonable to expect disclosure: Decisions R(SB)28/83; R(SB)40/84, Appendix; cf Decision CF/26/1990 (which emphasised the objective nature of the test; learning and reading difficulties not relevant). As to the effect of mental incapacity in relation to misrepresentation see PARA 386 text and note 7 ante.

9 The primary obligation is to disclose the material fact in question to the person or office handling the claim; provided this is done, there is no further obligation to disclose the same fact again: Decision R(SB)15/87. In cases where benefit is payable by one department but disclosure is made to another, the disclosure may be good: Decisions R(SB)54/83; R(SB)36/84; R(SB)10/85; R(SB)2/91. If the disclosure is to another person or office, then there may be a continuing duty to disclose again if it becomes apparent that the original disclosure has not been effective (eg, because the rate of benefit paid remains unaltered when the material fact should have led to a change): Decision R(SB)15/87. Disclosure may be made on behalf of a claimant by another person, but casual or incidental disclosure by some other person does not suffice and where disclosure is made by another person in the course of some entirely different transaction the disclosure is only sufficient if (1) the information was given to the relevant benefit office; (2) the claimant was aware that the information had been so given; and (3) in the circumstances it was reasonable for the claimant to believe that it was unnecessary for him to take any action himself: Decision R(SB)15/87 para 29.

10 The failure to disclose need not be the sole cause of the overpayment, provided it is an operative cause: see Duggan v Chief Adjudication Officer (1988) Times, 19 December, CA. If normally efficient internal procedures for the passing on of information break down in the case in question, then the operative cause is likely to be administrative error rather than any failure by the claimant to make disclosure or further disclosure: Decisions R(SB)15/87; CIS/159/90.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(5) OVERPAYMENTS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF BENEFIT/388. Recovery of overpaid benefit.

388. Recovery of overpaid benefit.

Where the necessary misrepresentation or failure to disclose has been shown<sup>1</sup>, the amount in question is in all cases recoverable from the person who misrepresented the fact or failed to disclose it<sup>2</sup>. Where that person was the appointee for a claimant unable to act in person, recovery lies against the claimant, not the appointee<sup>3</sup>. If necessary, there can be recovery from the estate of the person liable after his death<sup>4</sup>.

The exact amount of benefit overpaid must be calculated by the adjudicating authority, on the basis of what benefit would have been payable had there been no misrepresentation or failure to disclose; and, if there is an appeal, the amount must be confirmed or, if necessary, recalculated by the appeal tribunal<sup>5</sup>. From the amount initially determined to have been overpaid the following amounts may be set off:

- 1149 (1) any amount which is subject to the general offsetting provisions in the case of arrears of entitlement<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1150 (2) any additional amount of income support<sup>7</sup> or income-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>8</sup> which was not payable under the original (or any other) determination but which should have been determined to be payable on the basis of the claim as presented<sup>9</sup> to the adjudicating authority or on the basis of the claim as it would have appeared had the misrepresentation or non-disclosure been remedied before the determination<sup>10</sup>.

No other deduction may be made in respect of any other entitlement to benefit which may be, or might have been, determined to exist<sup>11</sup>. Where an overpayment of certain benefits<sup>12</sup> was the consequence of a misrepresentation as to the capital a claimant possesses or a failure to disclose its existence, the diminishing capital rule applies on a quarterly basis<sup>13</sup>.

Once an amount has been determined by the adjudicating authorities to be properly recoverable, the question whether and how it should be recovered are matters for the Secretary of State whose decision on such a matter is not subject to appeal<sup>14</sup>.

5 Decisions R(SB)9/85; Decision R(SB)10/85. An appeal tribunal may properly remit an issue of assessment of the amount back to the adjudication officer to be resolved between him and the claimant, provided it is made clear to the claimant that in the event of disagreement the matter is to be restored for decision by the tribunal:

13 Re the adjudicating authority must treat that capital as having been reduced at the end of each quarter from the start of the overpayment period by the amount overpaid by way of income support, income-based jobseeker's allowance or family credit within that quarter: see the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 14(1) (as amended: see note 12 supra). As to the diminishing capital rule see also PARA 196 note 8 ante. Capital must not be treated as reduced in any other circumstances or over any period other than a quarter: see reg 14(2). 'A quarter' means a period of 13 weeks starting with the first day on which the overpayment period began and ending on the ninetieth consecutive day thereafter; and 'overpayment period' is a period during which income support, income-based jobseeker's allowance, family credit or disability working allowance is overpaid in consequence of a misrepresentation as to capital or a failure to disclose its existence: reg 14(3) (amended by SI 1991/2742; SI 1996/2519).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(5) OVERPAYMENTS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF BENEFIT/388A. Non-recoverable overpayment of benefit.

388A. Non-recoverable overpayment of benefit.

An overpayment<sup>1</sup> to which this provision applies is not recoverable<sup>2</sup> from the payee<sup>3</sup>, whether by the Secretary of State or a local authority<sup>4</sup>. This provision applies to an overpayment if (1) it is in respect of a qualifying benefit<sup>5</sup>; (2) it is referable to a decision given on a review<sup>6</sup> that there has been an alteration in the relevant person's<sup>7</sup> condition, being a decision to which effect is required to be given as from a date earlier than that on which it was given<sup>8</sup>; (3) the decision was given before 1 June 1999; and (4) the overpayment is not an excluded overpayment<sup>9</sup>. Nothing in these rules applies to an overpayment to the extent that it was recovered from the payee by any means before 26 February 1999<sup>10</sup>.

1 'Overpayment' means an amount of benefit paid in excess of entitlement: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 68(8).

2 Ie pursuant to any provision made by or under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 Pt III (ss 71-80).

3 'The payee', in relation to an overpayment, means the person to whom that amount was paid: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 68(8).

4 Ibid s 68(1).

5 'Qualifying benefit' means (1) attendance allowance; (2) disability living allowance; (3) any benefit awarded wholly or partly by reason of a person being (or being treated as being) in receipt of a component (at any rate) of disability living allowance or in receipt of attendance allowance; (4) incapacity benefit; (5) any benefit (other than incapacity benefit) awarded wholly or partly by reason of a person being (or being treated as being) incapable of work; or (6) any benefit awarded wholly or partly by reason of a person being (or being treated as being) in receipt of any benefit falling within head (3), (4) or (5) above: ibid s 68(4). 'Benefit' includes any amount included in (a) the applicable amount in relation to an income-related benefit (as defined by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 135(1): see PARA 174), or (b) the applicable amount in relation to a jobseeker's allowance (as defined by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 4(5): see PARA 272); and 'income-related benefit' has the meaning given by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 123(1) (see PARA 173): Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 68(8).

6 'Review' means a review taking place by virtue of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 25(1)(a) or (b), 30(2)(a) or (b) or 35(1)(a) or (b): Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 68(5)(a).

7 'The relevant person', in relation to a review, means the person to whose entitlement to a qualifying benefit or to whose incapacity for work the review related: ibid s 68(5)(b).

8 The reference to a decision on a review that there has been an alteration in the relevant person's condition is a reference to a decision so given that that person's physical or mental condition either was at the time when the original decision was given, or has subsequently become, different from that on which that decision was based, with the result (1) that he did not at that time, or (as the case may be) has subsequently ceased to, meet any of the conditions contained in the following provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, namely (a) s 64 (attendance allowance: see PARA 113); (b) s 72(1) or (2) (care component of disability living allowance: see PARAS 104, 105); and (c) s 73(1) or (2) (mobility component of that allowance: see PARA 106); or (2) that he was at that time, or (as the case may be) has subsequently become, capable of work in accordance with regulations made under s 171C(2) (the all work test: see PARA 68): Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 68(3). 'The original decision', in relation to a review, means the decision as to any such entitlement or incapacity to which the review related: s 68(5)(c).

9 Ie by virtue of ibid s 68(6): s 68(2). Section 68(6) provides that an overpayment is excluded if, before or after 11 November 1999, (1) the payee has agreed to pay a penalty in respect of the overpayment under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 115A; (2) the payee has been convicted of any offence, under ss 111A or 112(1) or (1A) or otherwise, in connection with the overpayment; or (3) proceedings have been instituted against the payee for such an offence and the proceedings have not been determined or abandoned.

389. Offsetting and recovery of interim payments.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> has a general discretion to make an interim payment, that is to say a payment on account of any benefit to which it appears to him that a person is or may be entitled, where it is impracticable for a claim to be made immediately in the proper manner, or for it to be determined immediately or for the award to be paid to the beneficiary immediately<sup>2</sup>. Any such interim payment is to be brought into account; and, if the interim payment is made in anticipation of an award of benefit, it must be offset in reduction of the benefit to be awarded or, if it not so offset, the interim payment must be deducted from any sum payable under the award of benefit<sup>3</sup>. Where the adjudicating authority<sup>4</sup> has determined that an interim payment has been overpaid, that authority must determine the amount of the overpayment, which is then recoverable by the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 5(1)(r); and the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 2(1) (amended by SI 1996/30). This does not apply pending the determination of an appeal unless the Secretary of State is of the opinion that there is entitlement to benefit: Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 2(1A) (added by SI 1996/30). The recipient must generally be given notice in writing of his liability to have the interim payment brought into account or to repay any overpayment: see the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 2(2), (3) (respectively amended and added by SI 1991/2742).

3 Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 3 (substituted by SI 1993/650).

4 'Adjudicating authority' means, as the case may be, the chief or any other adjudication officer, a social security appeal tribunal, a disability appeal tribunal, the chief or any other social security commissioner or a tribunal of commissioners: Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 1 (definition amended by SI 1991/2742).

5 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71(7); and the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 4 (amended by SI 1993/650). The overpayment is recoverable by the same procedures and subject to the same conditions as if it were an ordinary overpayment case: see PARAS 388 ante, 390-391 post.

Where it is determined by the adjudicating authority<sup>1</sup> that a payment in excess of entitlement has been credited to a bank or other account under an arrangement for automated or other direct credit transfer, the excess or any specified part of it is recoverable<sup>2</sup> provided that:

1151 (1) the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> has certified that the overpayment is materially due to the arrangement for payments to be made by automated or other direct credit transfer<sup>4</sup>; and

1152 (2) notice of the effect of these provisions for recovery was given in writing to the beneficiary, or to a person acting for him, before he agreed to the arrangement<sup>5</sup>.

This does not, however, apply where the fact and circumstances of the misrepresentation or non-disclosure do not provide a basis for reviewing and revising the determination under which payment was made: Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 12.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(5) OVERPAYMENTS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF BENEFIT/391. Recovery of overpayments by deductions from benefit.

391. Recovery of overpayments by deductions from benefit.

An overpayment which is recoverable<sup>1</sup> may, without prejudice to any other method of recovery, be recovered by deduction from prescribed benefits<sup>2</sup>. Recovery may be made from any arrears of benefit<sup>3</sup>, but there are limits on the amounts that may be deducted from a payment of current income support or jobseeker's allowance<sup>4</sup>. Where the overpayment is of income support, income-based jobseeker's allowance, family credit or disability working allowance to one of a married or unmarried couple<sup>5</sup>, the amount to be recovered may be deducted from any of those benefits which is payable to either of them, provided that the two of them are still such a couple at the date of the deduction<sup>6</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> Ibid s 71(8); and see the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 15(1) (amended by SI 1988/688). Amounts recoverable under any corresponding enactment or instrument having effect in Northern Ireland are also recoverable by deduction from the prescribed benefits: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 79(a).

The prescribed benefits are (1) any benefit under the Social Security Act 1975 (repealed: see now the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pts II-V (ss 20-111) (as amended); and PARA 54 et seq ante); (2) child benefit (see PARA 237 et seq ante); (3) family credit (see PARAS 202-217 ante); (4) income support (see PARAS 176-201 ante); (5) jobseeker's allowance (see PARA 258 et seq ante); (6) disability working allowance (see PARAS 218-227 ante); and (7) incapacity benefit (see PARA 59 et seq ante): Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 15(2) (amended by SI 1991/2742; SI 1995/829; SI 1996/1345; SI 1996/2519).

Where a person is subject to a bankruptcy order or his estate is sequestrated, a sum deducted from his jobseeker's allowance under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71(8) must not be treated as income for the purposes of the Insolvency Act 1986 or the Bankruptcy (Scotland) Act 1985: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 71(10A), (10B) (both added by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 32(1)). As to bankruptcy generally see BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY.

The power of recovery may be exercised when the intended recipient of the benefits from which recovery is to be made has become bankrupt: R v Secretary of State for Social Security, ex p Taylor [1996] TLR 54.

Deductions may only be made from guardian's allowance (see PARAS 117-120 ante) or child benefit in respect of an overpayment of that benefit: Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 16(1), (2) (amended by SI 1988/688; SI 1991/2742).

<sup>4</sup> See ibid reg 16(4)-(8) (amended by SI 1996/672; SI 1996/1345; SI 1996/2519; SI 1996/3195). A higher amount may be deducted where a person responsible for the misrepresentation of or failure to disclose a material fact has been found guilty of an offence, or has made a written statement after caution in admission of deception or fraud for the purpose of obtaining benefit: see the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 16(5).

Where a severe hardship direction<sup>1</sup> is revoked and it is determined by an adjudication officer that, whether fraudulently or otherwise, any person has misrepresented<sup>2</sup> or failed to disclose<sup>3</sup> any material fact and in consequence payment of a jobseeker's allowance has been made during the relevant period<sup>4</sup> to the person to whom the direction related, then an adjudication officer may determine that the Secretary of State is entitled to recover the amount of the payment<sup>5</sup>. The Secretary of State has the power to certify (1) that there has been a misrepresentation of, or failure to disclose, a material fact<sup>6</sup>; (2) who made the misrepresentation or failed to make the disclosure<sup>7</sup>; (3) whether or not an allowance has been paid in consequence of the misrepresentation or failure<sup>8</sup>; and (4) the period during which the allowance would not have been paid but for the misrepresentation or failure to disclose<sup>9</sup>. 395. Recovery of excess income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance by abatement or otherwise.

Where a payment by way of prescribed income<sup>1</sup> is made after the prescribed date<sup>2</sup> and it is determined that an amount which has been paid by way of income support or an income-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>3</sup> would not have been paid if the payment had been made on the prescribed date, then the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> is entitled to recover that amount from the person to whom it was paid<sup>5</sup>.

Where a prescribed payment<sup>6</sup> which falls to be made from public funds in the United Kingdom<sup>7</sup> or under the law of another member state<sup>8</sup> is not made on or before the prescribed date<sup>9</sup> and it is determined that an amount ('the relevant amount') has been paid as income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance that would not have been paid if the payment had been made on time, then (1) in the case of a payment from public funds in the United Kingdom, the authority responsible for making it may abate it by the relevant amount; and (2) in the case of any other payment, the Secretary of State is entitled to receive the relevant amount out of the payment<sup>10</sup>.

Where (a) a person is entitled to any prescribed benefit<sup>11</sup> for any period in respect of another person who has received, or was during that period a member of the same family as some other third person who received, income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance for that period; and (b) the amount of income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance has been determined on the basis that the first person has not made maintenance payments at a rate equal to or exceeding the amount, then the amount of the prescribed benefit may be abated at the discretion of the authority administering it<sup>12</sup>.

Where an amount could have been recovered under this power of abatement but has not been, the Secretary of State may recover it otherwise than by abatement<sup>13</sup>.

1 For these purposes, a person's prescribed income is income required to be taken into account for income support (see PARAS 176-201 ante) or jobseeker's allowance purposes (see PARA 258 et seq ante): see the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 7(1) (substituted by SI 1993/650; and amended by SI 1996/1345).

As to the value of a payment in a currency other than sterling see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 74(5); and the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 10.

2 As to the prescribed date see ibid reg 7(2), (3), (4) (reg 7(2) amended, and reg 7(3), (4) both added, by SI 1993/650).

3 As to income-based jobseeker's allowance see PARA 271 et seq ante.

4 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

5 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 74(1) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 50).

7 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

8 ie a state which is a member of the European Union: see EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES.

9 The prescribed date, in relation to a prescribed payment, is the date by which receipt of or entitlement to that benefit would have to be notified to the Secretary of State if it were to be taken into account in determining (whether on review or otherwise) the amount of or entitlement to income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance: Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 8(2) (amended by SI 1996/1345).

10 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 74(2) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 Sch 2 para 50).

11 For these purposes, the prescribed benefits are: (1) child benefit (see PARA 237 et seq ante); (2) increases for dependants of any benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (see PARAS 122-125 ante); (3) child's special allowance under s 56 (see PARA 54 ante); and (4) guardian's allowance (see PARAS 117-120 ante): see the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayments and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 9.

12 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 74(3) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 Sch 2 para 50). The benefit may be abated by the amount by which the income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance exceeds what it would have been had he been making maintenance payments at a rate equal to the amount of the prescribed benefit: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 74(3) (as so amended). For the meaning of 'family' see PARAS 175 note 1, 265 note 6 ante.

Where (1) a person ('the claimant') is entitled to a benefit to which this provision applies<sup>1</sup>; (2) the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> is collecting periodical payments of child or spousal maintenance<sup>3</sup> made in respect of the claimant or a member of the claimant's family<sup>4</sup>; and (3) the inclusion of any such periodical payment in the claimant's relevant income<sup>5</sup> would otherwise have the effect of reducing the amount of the benefit to which the claimant is entitled<sup>6</sup>, the Secretary of State may (to such extent as he considers appropriate) treat any such periodical payment as not being relevant income for the purposes of calculating the amount of benefit to which the claimant is entitled<sup>7</sup>. The Secretary of State may also, to the extent that any periodical payment collected by him is treated as not being relevant income for those purposes, retain the whole or any part of that payment<sup>8</sup>.

1. Income support, income-based jobseeker's allowance and such other benefits (if any) as may be prescribed: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 74A(7) (s 74A added by the Child Support Act 1995 s 25).

As to the meanings prescribed see the Social Security Benefits (Maintenance Payments and Consequential Amendments) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/940, reg 2. 'Child' means a person under the age of 16: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 74A(5) (as so added).

4. For these purposes, 'family' means (1) a married or unmarried couple; (2) a married or unmarried couple and a member of the same household for whom one of them is, or both are, responsible and who is a child or a person of a prescribed description; (3) except in prescribed circumstances, a person who is not a member of a married or unmarried couple and a member of the same household for whom that person is responsible and who is a child or a person of a prescribed description: ibid s 74A(5) (as added: see note 1 supra). 'Married couple' means a man and a woman who are married to each other and are members of the same household; and 'unmarried couple' means a man and a woman who are not married to each other but are living together as husband and wife (as to which see generally para 83 ante) otherwise than in prescribed circumstances: s 74A(5) (as so added). A person of a prescribed description is any person who is referred to as a young person for income support or jobseeker's allowance purposes (see PARA 176 et seq, 258 et seq ante): see the Social Security Benefits (Maintenance Payments and Consequential Amendments) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/940, reg 3. ## (6) ENFORCEMENT OF THE DUTY TO MAINTAIN

397. Criminal liability.

If a person persistently refuses or neglects to maintain himself or any other person whom he is liable to maintain<sup>1</sup>, and in consequence of his refusal or neglect income support or an income-based jobseeker's allowance is paid to or in respect of him or such a person, he is guilty of an offence<sup>2</sup>. For these purposes, a person is not to be taken to refuse or neglect to maintain himself or any other person by reason only of anything done or omitted in furtherance of a trade dispute<sup>3</sup>.

1 For these purposes (1) a man is liable to maintain his wife and any children of whom he is the father; (2) a woman is liable to maintain her husband and any children of whom she is the mother; and (3) a person is liable to maintain another person throughout any period in respect of which the first person has given an undertaking in writing in pursuance of immigration rules to be responsible for the maintenance and accommodation of the other person: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 78(6) (applied by s 105(3)). 'Child' includes a person who has attained the age of 16 but not the age of 19 and in respect of whom either parent, or some other person acting in the place of either parent, is receiving income support or an income-based jobseeker's allowance: s 78(6) (as so applied; and amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 51). Any reference in this provision to children of whom the man or the woman is the father or the mother must be construed in accordance with the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1 (see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 125); Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 78(7) (as so applied). A document bearing a certificate, which is signed by a person authorised in that behalf by the Secretary of State and states that the document apart from the certificate is, or is a copy of, such an undertaking as is mentioned in head (3) supra, is conclusive of the undertaking in question for these purposes; and a certificate purporting to be so signed must be deemed to be so signed until the contrary is proved: s 78(9) (as so applied). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

In the application s 105 to an income-based jobseeker's allowance, a person is liable to maintain another if that other person is his or her spouse: s 105(4) (added by the Jobseekers Act 1995 Sch 2 para 53).

2 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 105(1) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 Sch 2 para 53). Such a person is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale, or to both: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 105(1) (as so amended). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(6) ENFORCEMENT OF THE DUTY TO MAINTAIN/398. Recovery of expenditure on benefit from the person liable for maintenance.

398. Recovery of expenditure on benefit from the person liable for maintenance.

If income support is claimed by or in respect of a person whom another person is liable to maintain<sup>1</sup>, or paid to or in respect of such a person, the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> may make a complaint against the liable person to a magistrates' court for an order to pay such sum (weekly or otherwise) as the court may consider appropriate<sup>3</sup>. Any such payments are to be made to the Secretary of State in so far as they are attributable to any income support (whether paid before or after the making of the order); and otherwise to the person claiming income support or, if different, the dependant or to such other person as appears to the court expedient in the interests of the dependant<sup>4</sup>.

In any case where the claim for income support is or was made by the parent of one or more children<sup>5</sup> in respect of both himself and those children, and the other parent is liable to maintain those children but, by virtue of not being the claimant's husband or wife, is not liable to maintain the claimant, then the sum which the court may order that other parent to pay<sup>6</sup> may include an amount in respect of any income support paid to or for the claimant<sup>7</sup>.

In any case where (1) there is an order<sup>8</sup> in force against a person ('the liable parent') who is the parent of one or more children, in respect of the other parent or the children; and (2) payments under the order fall to be made to the Secretary of State<sup>9</sup>; and (3) that other parent ('the dependent parent') ceases to claim income support, then the Secretary of State may transfer to the dependent parent the right to receive the payments under the order (exclusive of the personal allowance element) and to exercise the relevant rights in relation to the order<sup>10</sup>. The Secretary of State makes the transfer by giving notice in writing to the court which made the order and to the liable parent<sup>11</sup> and the dependent parent<sup>12</sup>. Such notice may not be given and, if purportedly given is of no effect, at a time when there is a maintenance order<sup>13</sup> in force against the liable parent in favour of the dependent parent or one or more of the children or in favour of some other person for the benefit of the dependent parent or one or more of the children<sup>14</sup>. Where the Secretary of State gives notice under these provisions, he ceases to be entitled to receive any payment under the order in respect of any personal allowance element or to exercise the relevant rights, so far as relating to any such element; and this is so notwithstanding that the dependent parent does not become entitled to receive any payment in respect of that element or to exercise the rights<sup>15</sup>.

If, in a case where the Secretary of State has given notice, the dependent parent makes a further claim for income support, then the Secretary of State may, by giving a further notice in writing, transfer back from the dependent parent to himself the right to receive the payments and to exercise the relevant rights; and that transfer revives the right of the Secretary of State to receive payment under the order in respect of any personal allowance element<sup>16</sup>.

A transfer<sup>17</sup> does not transfer or otherwise affect the right of any person to receive a payment which fell due to him at a time before the transfer took effect or to exercise the rights in relation to any such payment<sup>18</sup>.

Regulations may make provision for the court<sup>19</sup> to have power to make a recovery order<sup>20</sup> against any person where an award of income-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>21</sup> has been made to that person's spouse<sup>22</sup>. Such regulations may make provision for the transfer by the Secretary of State of the right to receive payments under, and to exercise rights in relation to, a recovery order<sup>23</sup>. In particular, regulations may include provision as to the matters to which the court is, or is not, to have regard in determining any application under the regulations and as to the enforcement of recovery orders<sup>24</sup>.

1 As to liability to maintain see PARA 397 note 1 ante.

2 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

3 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 106(1), (2). On the hearing of a complaint the court must have regard to all the circumstances and, in particular, to the income of the liable person; in relation to a person liable to maintain and accommodate an immigrant (see PARA 397 note 1 head (3) ante) the sum ordered must not include any amount which is not attributable to income support: see s 106(2). In determining whether to order any payments to be made in respect of income support for any period before the complaint was made, or the amount of any such payments, the court must disregard any amount by which the liable person's income exceeds the income that was his during that period: s 106(3).

An order made under these provisions is enforceable as a magistrates' court maintenance order within the meaning of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 150(1) (definition as added) (see MAGISTRATES): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 106(5).

6 Ie under ibid s 106(2) (see the text and note 3 supra).

7 See ibid s 107(1). Where, by virtue of this provision, the sum which a court orders a person to pay under s 106 includes a personal allowance element (ie an amount allowed for income support purposes in respect of the personal allowance for a lone parent: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 17 (as amended), Sch 2 para 1(2) (as amended); and PARA 184 ante), the order must separately identify the amount of the personal allowance element: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 107(2).

9 See the text and note 4 supra.

10 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 107(3). 'Relevant rights', in relation to an order under s 106(2), means the right to bring any proceedings, take any steps or do any other thing under or in relation to the order which the Secretary of State could have brought, taken or done apart from the transfer under these provisions: s 107(15).

11 Any notice required to be given to the liable parent must be taken to have been given if it has been sent to his last known address: ibid s 107(14).

12 See ibid s 107(3). For these purposes, a transfer takes effect on the day on which the dependent parent ceases to be in receipt of income support in consequence of the cessation referred to in head (3) in the text, irrespective of the day on which notice is given: see s 107(13)(a).

If a payment under the order is or has been made to the Secretary of State wholly or partly in respect of the whole or any part of the period beginning with the day on which the transfer takes effect and ending with the day on which the notice is given to the liable parent, the Secretary of State must (1) repay to or for the liable parent so much of the payment as is referable to any personal allowance element in respect of that period or the part of it in question; and (2) pay to or for the dependent parent so much of any remaining balance of the payment as is referable to that period or part, and such a payment must be taken to discharge (to that extent) the liability of the liable parent to the dependent parent under the order in respect of that period or part: s 107(7).

In any case where (a) notice is given to a magistrates' court; (b) payments under the order are required to be made by any method of payment falling within the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 59(6) (as substituted) (see MAGISTRATES); and (c) the clerk to the justices decides that payment by that method is no longer possible, then the clerk must amend the order to provide that payments under the order are to be made by the liable parent to the clerk: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 107(5).

13 'Maintenance order' means (1) any order for the making of periodical payments or for the payment of a lump sum which is, or has at any time been, a maintenance order within the meaning of the Attachment of Earnings Act 1971; (2) any order under the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 Pt III (ss 12-27) (as amended) for the making of periodical payments or for the payment of a lump sum: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 107(15).

14 Ibid s 107(4). If such a maintenance order is made at any time after such notice has been given, the order under s 106(2) ceases to have effect: s 107(4).

15 Ibid s 107(6). This does not deprive the Secretary of State of his right to receive a payment in respect of any personal allowance element which fell due to him at a time before the transfer took effect or to exercise the relevant rights in relation to such a payment: see s 107(12).

16 Ibid s 107(8). For these purposes, a transfer takes effect on the first day in respect of which the dependent parent receives income support after the transfer under s 107(3) took effect or such later day as may be specified for the purpose in the notice under s 107(8), irrespective of the day on which notice is given: s 107(13)(b).

Where such further notice is given, and the method of payment under the order which subsists immediately before the day on which the transfer back takes effect differs from the method of payment which subsisted immediately before the day on which the transfer or, if more than one, the last transfer under s 107(3) took effect, then the clerk to the justices must amend the order by reinstating the method of payment under the order which subsisted immediately before the day on which the transfer or the last transfer under s 107(3) took effect: s 107(9). The clerk must not, however, amend the order if the Secretary of State gives notice in writing to the clerk, on or before the day on which the notice under s 107(8) is given, that the method of payment under the order which subsists immediately before the day on which the transfer takes effect is to continue: s 107(10).

In any case where (1) notice is given to a magistrates' court under s 107(8); (2) the method of payment under the order which subsisted immediately before the day on which the transfer or, if there has been more than one, the last transfer under s 107(3) took effect was any method of payment falling within the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 59(6) (as substituted) (see MAGISTRATES); and (3) the clerk decides that payment by that method is no longer possible, then the clerk must amend the order to provide that payments under the order are to be made by the liable parent to the clerk: s 107(11).

18 See ibid s 107(12).

19 For these purposes, 'the court' means, in relation to England and Wales, a magistrates' court: Jobseekers Act 1995 s 23(5).

20 'Recovery order' means an order requiring the person against whom it is made to make payments to the Secretary of State or to such other person or persons as the court may determine: ibid s 23(2).

21 As to jobseeker's allowance see PARA 258 et seq ante.

22 Jobseekers Act 1995 s 23(1). As to the regulations made see the Jobseeker's Allowance Regulations 1996, SI 1996/207 (as amended).

399. Enforcement of maintenance orders by the Secretary of State.

Where a person ('the claimant') who is the parent of one or more children<sup>1</sup> is in receipt of income support, either in respect of those children or in respect of both himself and the children, and there is in force a maintenance order<sup>2</sup> made against the other parent ('the liable person')<sup>3</sup>, then if the liable person fails to comply with any of the terms of the maintenance order:

- 1158 (1) the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> may bring any proceedings or take any other steps to enforce the order that could have been brought or taken by or on behalf of the primary recipient<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1159 (2) any court before which such proceedings are brought by the Secretary of State has the same powers in connection with those proceedings as it would have had if they had been brought by the primary recipient<sup>6</sup>.

These powers of the Secretary of State are exercisable at his discretion and whether or not the primary recipient or any other person consents to their exercise; but any sums recovered by virtue of these provisions are payable to or for the primary recipient, as if the proceedings or steps in question had been brought or taken by him or on his behalf<sup>7</sup>.

Notice must be given to the Secretary of State of any application to alter, vary, suspend, discharge, revoke, revive or enforce the maintenance order in question, or to remit arrears under it; and the Secretary of State is entitled to appear and be heard on the application<sup>8</sup>.

Where, by virtue of these provisions, the Secretary of State commences any proceedings to enforce a maintenance order, he must, in relation to those proceedings, be treated<sup>9</sup> as if he were a person entitled to payment under the maintenance order in question but he does not thereby become entitled to any such payment<sup>10</sup>.

1 'Child' is not statutorily defined for these purposes; but see PARA 398 note 5 ante.

2 In favour of the claimant or one or more of the children, or in favour of some other person for the benefit of the claimant or one or more of the children: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 108(1). For the meaning of 'maintenance order' see PARA 398 note 13 ante; but note that, for these purposes, it does not include any such order for the payment of a lump sum: see s 108(8).

4 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

5 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 108(2)(a). 'The primary recipient' means the person in whose favour the maintenance order was made: see s 108(1).

The powers conferred on the Secretary of State by this provision include power to apply for the registration of the maintenance order (see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 664 et seq) and to make an application for enforcement in a reciprocating country (see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 310 et seq): see s 108(4).

6 Ibid s 108(2)(b).

7 Ibid s 108(3). The Secretary of State must inform the Legal Aid Board of any order for arrears due under the maintenance order to be paid as a lump sum if he knows that the primary recipient received legal aid in connection with the order and that contributions towards that legal aid remain unpaid: see s 108(7).

(7) OTHER ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS

400. Redirection of post.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, a social security authority<sup>2</sup> may require the Post Office or any other person who conveys postal packets<sup>3</sup> to return to the sender social security post<sup>4</sup> sent by or on behalf of the authority which would otherwise be redirected<sup>5</sup>.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>6</sup>, for use in (1) the prevention, detection, investigation or prosecution of offences relating to social security; or (2) in checking the accuracy of information relating to benefits, contributions or national insurance numbers or to any other matter relating to social security and, where appropriate, amending or supplementing such information, the Secretary of State or the Northern Ireland department may require the Post Office or any other person who conveys postal packets to supply to the Secretary of State or the department (or to a person supplying services to the Secretary of State or the department) information relating to arrangements for the redirection of postal packets<sup>7</sup>. Information supplied under this provision must not be supplied by the recipient to any other person or body unless it could be supplied to that person or body under this provision or it is supplied for the purposes of certain civil or criminal proceedings<sup>8</sup>. However, where information has been used in amending or supplementing other information, it is lawful for it to be supplied to any person or body to whom that other information could be supplied or for it to be used for any purpose for which that other information could be used<sup>9</sup>.

1 At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed, except that the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 182A (prospectively added by the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 s 20(1)) came into force in relation to the area falling within the London borough of Richmond and the area falling within the London borough of Hounslow on 25 August 1997: see the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 (Commencement No 2) Order 1997, SI 1997/2056.

4 'Social security post' means postal packets (1) the contents of which relate to any benefit, contributions or national insurance number or to any other matter relating to social security; and (2) which are marked, in a manner approved by the Post Office or other person conveying them, with the name and address of the sender and with an indication that they are to be returned rather than redirected: ibid s 182A(4) (as prospectively added: see note 1 supra). 'Redirected', in relation to any postal packet, means delivered to an address other than that indicated by the sender on the packet: s 182A(5)(a) (as so prospectively added).

5 Ibid s 182A(1) (as prospectively added: see note 1 supra). A social security authority must make payments of such amount as the Secretary of State considers reasonable in respect of the return of social security post in compliance with a requirement imposed by the authority under these provisions: s 182A(2) (as so prospectively added).

Any requirement imposed under s 182A(1) (as prospectively added) has effect subject to any order under (a) the Insolvency Act 1986 s 371 or the equivalent Northern Ireland provision (redirection of bankrupt's letters to trustee in bankruptcy: see BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 264); (b) the 7 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 182B(1) (s 182B prospectively added by the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 s 21(1)). Information must be supplied in such manner and form, and in accordance with such requirements, as may be prescribed: s 182B(3) (as so prospectively added).

Payments of such amount as the Secretary of State considers reasonable must be made by a person or authority imposing a requirement under these provisions in respect of the supply of information in compliance with the requirement: s 182B(4) (as so prospectively added).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(7) OTHER ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS/401. Appointment and powers of inspectors.

401. Appointment and powers of inspectors.

For certain purposes<sup>1</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> may appoint such inspectors, and pay to them such salaries or remuneration, as he may determine with the consent of the Treasury<sup>3</sup>. Such an inspector has power of entry at all reasonable times on to premises liable to inspection<sup>4</sup>, to make such examination and inquiry as may be necessary for certain purposes<sup>5</sup>, to examine persons and to exercise such other powers as may be necessary for carrying the statutory provisions into effect<sup>6</sup>. Certain persons<sup>7</sup> must furnish to an inspector all such information, and produce for his inspection all such documents, as he may reasonably require<sup>8</sup>.

An inspector appointed under these provisions also has power, for the purposes of the Jobseekers Act 1995<sup>9</sup> (1) to enter at all reasonable times any premises liable to inspection<sup>10</sup>; (2) to make such examination and inquiry there as may be necessary for ascertaining whether the provisions of the Act are being, or have been, complied with; (3) to examine, in relation to any matters arising under the Act on which he may reasonably require information, any person whom he finds there; (4) to exercise such other powers as may be necessary for carrying the Act into effect<sup>11</sup>. Certain persons<sup>12</sup> must furnish to an inspector all such information, and produce for his inspection all such documents, as the inspector may reasonably require for these purposes<sup>13</sup>.

1    le for the purposes of the Social Security Act 1973 (largely repealed), the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, the Social Security Administration Act 1992, the Social Security Pensions Act 1975 (largely repealed), the Pension Schemes Act 1993 and the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(8) (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 26; and the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 s 33(1), Sch 3 paras 2, 4(5)).

2    As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

3    Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(1).

The power of entry does not extend to any private dwelling house not used by, or by permission of, the occupier for the purposes of a trade or business: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(3) (as so amended). 'Compensation payment' is a payment made to or in respect of a person in consequence of any accident, injury or disease suffered by him: see the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 s 1; applied by the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(9) (substituted by the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 Sch 3 paras 2, 4(6)).

5    The purposes are ascertaining whether the provisions of the Acts referred to in note 1 supra are being, or have been, complied in with any such premises; or investigating the circumstances of any accident, injury or disease which has given or may give rise to a claim for industrial injuries benefit or for any listed benefit: ibid s 110(2)(b) (amended by the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 Sch 3 paras 2, 4(2)). As to the meaning of 'listed benefit' see the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 ss 8, 29, Sch 2 col 2; applied by the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(9) (substituted by the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 Sch 3 paras 2, 4(6)).

6    le the provisions of the Acts referred to in note 1 supra: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(2) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 151, Sch 5 para 15; the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 Sch 3 paras 2, 4(2), (3); and the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 s 22, Sch 2).

Every inspector must be furnished with a certificate of appointment, and on applying for admission to any premises for these purposes must, if so required, produce the certificate: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(4).

Where any premises are liable to be inspected by an inspector or officer appointed or employed by, or are under the control of, some other government department, the Secretary of State may make arrangements with that department for any of the powers or duties of inspectors under these provisions to be carried out by an inspector or officer employed by that department: s 110(5).

However, no one is required under these provisions to answer any questions or to give evidence tending to incriminate himself or, in the case of a person who is married, his or her spouse: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(7) (as so amended). As to personal pension schemes see PARA 710 et seq post; as to occupational pension schemes see PARA 741 et seq post; and as to contributions-equivalent premiums see PARA 922 post.

8 le for the purpose of ascertaining (1) whether any national insurance contributions or any contributions-equivalent premium or any compensation payment or payment to the Secretary of State under the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 s 6 (see PARA 6 ante; and DAMAGES) is or has been payable or has been duly paid; or (2) whether benefit is or was payable to or in respect of any person: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(6) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 Sch 5 para 15; the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 Sch 3 paras 2, 4(3); and the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 Sch 2). Except where the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 33(5) applies (see the text and note 13 infra), the provisions of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(6), (7) (as amended) have effect as if the Jobseekers Act 1995 were among those mentioned in note 1 supra: see s 33(7). In the application of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(7) (as amended) in relation to the Jobseekers Act 1995, the reference in note 7 head (1) supra must be read as a reference to the provisions of s 33: s 33(8).

9 As to the Jobseekers Act 1995 see PARA 258 et seq ante.

10 The premises liable to inspection are any premises where an inspector has reasonable grounds for supposing that (1) one or more persons are employed; (2) a trade or business is being carried on; (3) a personal or occupational pension scheme is being administered; or (4) information relating to the carrying on of any trade or business is kept by the person carrying on that trade or business: ibid s 33(2). However, a private dwelling house is not included unless the inspector has reasonable grounds for supposing that it is being used for the purposes of a trade or business: s 33(2).

For these purposes, and in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 110(7) (as amended) as it applies in relation to the Jobseekers Act 1995, 'premises' includes any (a) place; (b) movable structure; (c) vehicle, vessel, aircraft or hovercraft; (d) installation which is an offshore installation for the purposes of the Mineral Workings (Offshore Installations) Act 1971: Jobseekers Act 1995 s 33(11).

11 Ibid s 33(1). An inspector applying for admission to any premises, in the exercise of his powers under these provisions, must produce his certificate of appointment if asked to do so: s 33(3).

Where any premises are liable to be inspected by an inspector or officer appointed or employed by another government department, or are under the control of another government department, the Secretary of State may make arrangements with that department for any of the powers or duties of inspectors under these provisions to be exercised or discharged by an inspector or officer employed by that department: s 33(4).

12 le any licensing authority or any person carrying on an employment agency: see ibid s 33(6). 'Licensing authority' means a local authority acting in its capacity as an authority responsible for granting any licence: s 33(10). 'Local authority' means any of the following: (1) a county council; (2) any county borough council; (3) any district council; (4) any London borough council; (5) the Common Council of the City of London; (6) the Council of the Isles of Scilly: s 33(10). See generally LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 1 et seq.

TEXT AND NOTES--Replaced.

An individual who for the time being has the Secretary of State's authorisation<sup>1</sup> is entitled, for any one or more specified purposes, to exercise any of the powers which are conferred on an authorised officer<sup>2</sup> in relation to the requiring of information<sup>3</sup> and entry on premises<sup>4</sup>. The specified purposes are (1) ascertaining in relation to any case whether a benefit<sup>5</sup> is or was payable in that case in accordance with any provision of the relevant social security legislation<sup>6</sup>; (2) investigating the circumstances in which any accident, injury or disease which has given rise, or may give rise, to a claim for (a) industrial injuries benefit; or (b) any benefit under any provision of the relevant social security legislation, occurred or may have occurred, or was or may have been received or contracted; (3) ascertaining whether provisions of the relevant social security legislation are being, have been or are likely to be contravened (whether by particular persons or more generally); (4) preventing, detecting and securing evidence of the commission (whether by particular persons or more generally) of benefit offences<sup>7</sup>.

An authorised officer who has reasonable grounds for suspecting that a person is a person falling within specified categories of person, and has or may have possession of or access to any information about any matter that is relevant for any one or more of the purposes mentioned in heads (1)-(4) above, may, by written notice<sup>8</sup>, require that person to provide all such information described in the notice as is information of which he has possession, or to which he has access, and which it is reasonable for the authorised officer to require for a purpose so mentioned<sup>9</sup>. 'Tax avoidance arrangements' includes arrangements which enable, or might be expected to enable, a person to obtain an advantage in relation to any tax within the meaning of the 2004 Act Pt 7: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 132A(7).

403. Unauthorised disclosure of information.

A person who is or has been employed in social security administration or adjudication<sup>1</sup> is guilty of an offence<sup>2</sup> if he discloses without lawful authority<sup>3</sup> any information which he acquired in the course of his employment and which relates to a particular person<sup>4</sup>. Similarly, a person who is or has been employed in the audit of expenditure or the investigation of complaints<sup>5</sup> is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup> if he discloses without lawful authority any information (1) which he acquired in the course of his employment; (2) which is, or is derived from, information acquired or held by or for the purposes of any of the specified government departments or other bodies or persons<sup>7</sup>; and (3) which relates to a particular person<sup>8</sup>.

It is a defence for a person charged with an offence under these provisions to prove that at the time of the alleged offence (a) he believed that he was making the disclosure in question with lawful authority and had no reasonable cause to believe otherwise; or (b) he believed that the information in question had previously been disclosed to the public with lawful authority and had no reasonable cause to believe otherwise<sup>10</sup>.

2 A person guilty of such an offence is liable, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine or both; or, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 123(5). The 'statutory maximum' is the prescribed sum within the meaning of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32 (as amended) and, as from 1 October 1992, is £5,000: s 32(9) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(2)).

TEXT AND NOTES 6, 7--Heads (c), (d) omitted: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 111A(1) (amended by the 2001 Act s 16(1)(a), Schedule). A person is guilty of an offence if there has been a change of circumstances affecting any entitlement of his to any benefit or other payment or advantage under any provision of the relevant social security legislation, the change is not a change that is excluded by regulations from the changes that are required to be notified, he knows that the change affects an entitlement of his to such a benefit or other payment or advantage, and he dishonestly fails to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 111A(1A) (s 111A(1A)-(1G) added by the 2001 Act s 16(2)). The change must affect the computation of the person's entitlement: R v Passmore [2007] EWCA Crim 2053, (2007) 171 JP 519 (formation of non-profit-making company was not such a change). A person is guilty of an offence if there has been a change of circumstances affecting any entitlement of another person to any benefit or other payment or advantage under any provision of the relevant social security legislation, the change is not a change that is excluded by regulations from the changes that are required to be notified, he knows that the change affects an entitlement of that other person to such a benefit or other payment or advantage, and he dishonestly causes or allows (see R v Tilley [2009] EWCA Crim 1426, [2010] 1 WLR 605, (2009) 173 JP 393) that other person to fail to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 111A(1B). Where there has been a change of circumstances affecting any entitlement of a person ('the claimant') to any benefit or other payment or advantage under any provision of the relevant social security legislation, the benefit, payment or advantage is one in respect of which there is another person ('the recipient') who for the time being has a right to receive payments to which the claimant has, or, but for the arrangements under which they are payable to the recipient, would have, an entitlement, and the change is not a change that is excluded by regulations from the changes that are required to be notified, then the recipient is guilty of an offence if he knows that the change affects an entitlement of the claimant to a benefit or other payment or advantage under a provision of the relevant social security legislation, the entitlement is one in respect of which he has a right to receive payments to which the claimant has, or, but for the arrangements under which they are payable to the recipient, would have, an entitlement, and he dishonestly fails to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: s 111A(1C), (1D). A person other than the recipient is guilty of an offence if he knows that the change affects an entitlement of the claimant to a benefit or other payment or advantage under a provision of the relevant social security legislation, the entitlement is one in respect of which the recipient has a right to receive payments to which the claimant has, or, but for the arrangements under which they are payable to the recipient, would have, an entitlement, and he dishonestly causes or allows the recipient to fail to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: s 111A(1E). In any case where s 111A(1C) applies but the right of the recipient is confined to a right, by reason of his being a person to whom the claimant is required to make payments in respect of a dwelling, to receive payments of housing benefit, a person is not guilty of an offence under s 111A(1D), (1E) unless the change is one relating to the claimant's occupation of that dwelling and/or the claimant's liability to make payments in respect of that dwelling: s 111A(1F). A notification of a change is prompt if, and only if, it is given as soon as reasonably practicable after the change occurs: s 111A(1G).

As to the person to whom, and manner in which, a change of circumstances must be notified where the benefit affected by the change of circumstances is (1) jobseeker's allowance, see the Social Security (Notification of Change of Circumstances) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3252, reg 3 (amended by SI 2006/832); (2) housing benefit or council tax benefit, see SI 2001/3252 reg 4; or (3) any other benefit, see reg 5 (amended by SI 2002/1789, SI 2003/2800; SI 2003/3209 and revoked, in so far as it relates to child benefit or guardian's allowance, now replaced by the Child Benefit (General) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/223 (see PARA 237-257). TEXT AND NOTE 8--Now refers to relevant social security legislation: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 112(1) (amended by the 2000 Act Sch 6 para 6).

TEXT AND NOTE 9--Replaced. A person is now guilty of an offence if there has been a change of circumstances affecting any entitlement of his to any benefit or other payment or advantage under any provision of the relevant social security legislation, the change is not a change that is excluded by regulations from the changes that are required to be notified, he knows that the change affects an entitlement of his to such a benefit or other payment or advantage, and he fails to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 112(1A) (substituted by the 2001 Act s 16(3)). A person is guilty of an offence under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 112 if there has been a change of circumstances affecting any entitlement of another person to any benefit or other payment or advantage under any provision of the relevant social security legislation, the change is not a change that is excluded by regulations from the changes that are required to be notified, he knows that the change affects an entitlement of that other person to such a benefit or other payment or advantage, and he causes or allows that other person to fail to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: s 112(1B) (s 112(1B)-(1F) added by the 2001 Act s 16(3)). In a case where the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 111A(1C) (see TEXT AND NOTE 7) applies, the recipient is guilty of an offence if he knows that the change affects an entitlement of the claimant to a benefit or other payment or advantage under a provision of the relevant social security legislation, the entitlement is one in respect of which he has a right to receive payments to which the claimant has, or, but for the arrangements under which they are payable to the recipient, would have, an entitlement, and he fails to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: s 112A(1C). In a case where s 111A(1C) applies, a person other than the recipient is guilty of an offence if he knows that the change affects an entitlement of the claimant to a benefit or other payment or advantage under a provision of the relevant social security legislation, the entitlement is one in respect of which the recipient has a right to receive payments to which the claimant has, or, but for the arrangements under which they are payable to the recipient, would have, an entitlement, and he causes or allows the recipient to fail to give a prompt notification of that change in the prescribed manner to the prescribed person: s 112(1D). Section 111A(1F) applies in relation to s 112(1C), (1D) as it applies in relation to s 111A(1D), (1E) (see TEXT AND NOTE 7): s 112(1E). A notification of a change is prompt if, and only if, it is given as soon as reasonably practicable after the change occurs: s 112(1F).

As to the person to whom, and manner in which, a change of circumstances must be notified see SI 2001/3252 (see TEXT AND NOTES 6, 7).

TEXT AND NOTES 10-12--Replaced. Any person who is knowingly concerned in the fraudulent evasion of any contributions which he or any other person is liable to pay is guilty of an offence and liable, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both or, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 114 (substituted by the 1998 Act s 61). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 403 NOTE 2.

TEXT AND NOTES 13-15--Reference to Secretary of State for Social Security is now to Secretary of State for Work and Pensions: Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 181, 182 (amended by the Secretaries of State for Education and Skills and for Work and Pensions Order 2002, SI 2002/1397).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(7) OTHER ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS/404A. Benefit offences: loss of benefits.

404A. Benefit offences: loss of benefits.

The following provision<sup>1</sup> applies where a person ('the offender') (1) is convicted of one or more benefit offences<sup>2</sup> in any proceedings; (2) after being given a notice<sup>3</sup> of the appropriate penalty provision by an appropriate authority<sup>4</sup>, agrees in the manner specified by the appropriate authority to pay a penalty under the appropriate penalty provision to the appropriate authority by reference to an overpayment, in a case where the offence mentioned in the appropriate penalty provision<sup>5</sup> is a benefit offence; or (3) is cautioned in respect of one or more benefit offences<sup>6</sup>. If this provision applies and the offender is a person with respect to whom the conditions for an entitlement to a sanctionable benefit<sup>7</sup> are or become satisfied at any time within the disqualification period<sup>8</sup>, then, even though those conditions are satisfied, the following restrictions apply in relation to the payment of that benefit in the offender's case<sup>9</sup>. Subject as follows<sup>10</sup>, the sanctionable benefit is not payable in the offender's case for any period comprised in the disqualification period<sup>11</sup>. Where the sanctionable benefit is income support, the benefit is payable in the offender's case for any period comprised in the disqualification period as if the applicable amount used for the determination of the amount<sup>12</sup> of the offender's entitlement for that period were reduced in such manner as may be prescribed<sup>13</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that, where the sanctionable benefit is jobseeker's allowance, any income-based jobseeker's allowance is payable, during the whole or a part of any period comprised in the disqualification period, as if one or more of the following applied (a) the rate of the allowance were such reduced rate as may be prescribed; (b) the allowance were payable only if there is compliance by the offender with such obligations with respect to the provision of information as may be imposed by the regulations; (c) the allowance were payable only if the circumstances are otherwise such as may be prescribed<sup>14</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that, where the sanctionable benefit is state pension credit, the benefit is payable in the offender's case for any period comprised in the disqualification period as if the rate of the benefit were reduced in such manner as may be prescribed<sup>15</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that, where the sanctionable benefit is employment and support allowance, any income-related allowance is payable, during the whole or a part of any period comprised in the disqualification period, as if one or more of the following applied (i) the rate of the allowance were such reduced rate as may be prescribed; (ii) the allowance were payable only if there is compliance by the offender with such obligations with respect to the provision of information as may be imposed by the regulations; (iii) the allowance were payable only if the circumstances are otherwise such as may be prescribed<sup>16</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that, where the sanctionable benefit is housing benefit or council tax benefit, the benefit is payable, during the whole or a part of any period comprised in the disqualification period, as if the rate of the benefit were reduced in such manner as may be prescribed, or the benefit were payable only if the circumstances are such as may be prescribed (or both)<sup>17</sup>.

If (A) a person ('the offender') is convicted<sup>18</sup> of one or more benefit offences<sup>19</sup> in each of two separate sets of proceedings; (B) the benefit offence, or one of the benefit offences, of which he is convicted in the later proceedings is one committed within the period of five years after the date, or any of the dates, on which he was convicted of a benefit offence in the earlier proceedings; (C) the later set of proceedings has not been taken into account for the purposes of any previous application of these provisions<sup>20</sup> in relation to the offender or any person who was then a member of his family; (D) the earlier set of proceedings has not been taken into account as the earlier set of proceedings for the purposes of any previous application of these provisions in relation to the offender or any person who was then a member of his family; and (E) the offender is a person with respect to whom the conditions for an entitlement to a sanctionable benefit<sup>21</sup> are or become satisfied at any time within the disqualification period<sup>22</sup>, then, even though those conditions are satisfied, the following restrictions apply in relation to the payment of that benefit in the offender's case<sup>23</sup>. The sanctionable benefit is not payable in the offender's case for any period comprised in the disqualification period<sup>24</sup> except that (I) where the sanctionable benefit is income support, the benefit is payable in the offender's case for any period comprised in the disqualification period as if the applicable amount used for the determination<sup>25</sup> of the amount of the offender's entitlement for that period were reduced in the manner prescribed<sup>26</sup>; (II) where the sanctionable benefit is jobseeker's allowance, any income-based jobseeker's allowance is payable, during the whole or a part of any period comprised in the disqualification period, as if one or more of the following applied (a) the rate of the allowance were such reduced rate as may be prescribed; (b) the allowance were payable only if there is compliance by the offender with such obligations with respect to the provision of information as may be imposed by regulations; (c) the allowance were payable only if the circumstances are otherwise such as may be prescribed<sup>27</sup>; (III) where the sanctionable benefit is housing benefit or council tax benefit, the benefit is payable, during the whole or a part of any period comprised in the disqualification period, as if the rate of the benefit were reduced in the manner prescribed<sup>28</sup>, or if the circumstances are as prescribed<sup>29</sup>; (IV) an income-based jobseeker's allowance is payable to a person in hardship<sup>30</sup>, but the allowance is payable only if and so long as the claimant satisfies the conditions for entitlement to an income-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>31</sup>; (V) an income-based jobseeker's allowance is payable to a person in hardship<sup>32</sup>, but the allowance is not so payable where the offender is the claimant, in respect of the first 14 days of the disqualification period, or where the offender's family member is the claimant, in respect of the first 14 days of the relevant period, and is payable thereafter only if and so long as the claimant satisfies the conditions for entitlement to an income-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>33</sup>. An income-based jobseeker's allowance is not payable under head (IV) or (V) above except where the claimant has furnished on a form approved for the purpose by the Secretary of State or in such other form as he may in any particular case approve, a signed statement of the circumstances he relies on to establish entitlement<sup>34</sup>.

Where the conditions for the entitlement of any joint-claim couple to a joint-claim jobseeker's allowance are or become satisfied at any time, and an offence-related restriction would apply in the case of at least one of the members of the couple if the entitlement were an entitlement of that member to a sanctionable benefit<sup>35</sup>, then the allowance is not payable in the couple's case for so much of any period comprised in the relevant period as is a period for which, in the case of each of the members of the couple, an offence-related restriction would apply if the entitlement were an entitlement of that member to a sanctionable benefit, or an offence-related restriction would so apply in the case of one of the members of the couple and the other member of the couple is (or is treated as being) subject to sanctions<sup>36</sup>. For any part of any period comprised in the relevant period for which the foregoing provision does not apply, the allowance is payable in the couple's case as if the amount of the allowance were reduced to an amount calculated using the method prescribed<sup>37</sup>, but is payable only to the member of the couple who is not the person by reference to whose convictions the above provisions would apply<sup>38</sup>. A joint-claim jobseeker's allowance is payable to a couple in hardship<sup>39</sup>, but only if and for so long as the joint-claim couple satisfy the other conditions of entitlement to a joint-claim jobseeker's allowance, or one member satisfies those conditions and the other member comes within categories of members not required to satisfy certain conditions<sup>40</sup>. A joint-claim jobseeker's allowance is also payable to a couple in hardship<sup>41</sup>, but not in respect of the first 14 days of the prescribed period, and thereafter only where the conditions of entitlement to a joint-claim jobseeker's allowance are satisfied or where one member satisfies those conditions and the other member comes within categories of members not required to satisfy certain conditions<sup>42</sup>. A joint-claim jobseeker's allowance is not payable under either of the preceding provisions unless one member of the couple has furnished on a form approved for the purpose by the Secretary of State or in such other form as he may in any particular case approve, a signed statement of the circumstances he relies upon to establish entitlement<sup>43</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision in accordance with the following provisions in relation to any case in which the conditions for entitlement to income support<sup>44</sup>, jobseeker's allowance<sup>45</sup>, employment and support allowance, housing benefit or council tax benefit<sup>46</sup> are or become satisfied in the case of any person ('the offender's family member'), in relation to any case in which that benefit falls to be paid in that person's case for the whole or any part of a period comprised in a period ('the relevant period') which is the disqualification period in relation to restrictions imposed<sup>47</sup> in the case of a member of that person's family, or in relation to any case in which that member of that family ('the offender') is a person by reference to whom the conditions for the entitlement of the offender's family member to the benefit in question are satisfied, or the amount of benefit payable in the case of the offender's family member would fall to be determined<sup>48</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by regulations provide for any social security benefit<sup>49</sup> to be treated for the purposes of the above provisions as a disqualifying benefit but not a sanctionable benefit, or as neither a sanctionable benefit nor a disqualifying benefit<sup>50</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations provide for any of the above restrictions not to apply in relation to payments of benefit to the extent of any deduction that, if any payment were made, would fall, in pursuance of provision made by or under any enactment, to be made from the payments and paid to a person other than the offender or, as the case may be, a member of his family<sup>51</sup>.

'Post-commencement offence' means any criminal offence committed after the commencement of the Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 6B (ie after 1 April 2010: SI 2010/45): Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 6B(13) (s 6B as added). For the purposes of s 6B and s 7 below, 'disqualifying benefit' means (subject to any regulations under s 10(1) below): (a) any benefit under the Jobseekers Act 1995; (b) any benefit under the State Pension Credit Act 2002; (c) any benefit under the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) (employment and support allowance); (d) any benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 other than maternity allowance, statutory sick pay and statutory maternity pay; (e) any war pension: Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 6A(1) (s 6A as added).

18 Where the conviction of any person of any offence is taken into account for the purposes of the application of the Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7 (see TEXT AND NOTES 22-27) in relation to that person, and that conviction is subsequently quashed, all such payments and other adjustments must be made as would be necessary if no restriction had been imposed by or under s 7 that could not have been imposed if the conviction had not taken place: s 7(7). Like provision is made by s 8(6) in relation to joint-claim couples, and by s 9(6) in relation to the members of an offender's family. For further provision in relation to joint-claim couples and family members see ss 8(7)-(9), 9(7)-(9) respectively (both added by the Welfare Reform Act 2009 Sch 4 paras 3(7), 4(3)).

19 'Benefit offence' means any offence committed after the commencement of these provisions (1) in connection with a claim for a disqualifying benefit; (2) in connection with the receipt or payment of any amount by way of such a benefit; (3) for the purpose of facilitating the commission, whether or not by the same person, of a benefit offence; (4) consisting in an attempt or conspiracy to commit a benefit offence: Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7(8). For the meaning of 'disqualifying benefit' see NOTE 2. See also NOTE 35.

20 Ie Social Security Fraud Act 2001 ss 7-9.

21 For the meaning of 'sanctionable benefit' see NOTE 7. See also NOTE 35.

22 The disqualification period, in relation to the conviction of a person of one or more benefit offences in each of two separate sets of proceedings, means the period of 13 weeks beginning with such date, falling after the date of the conviction in the later set of proceedings, as may be determined by or in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State: ibid s 7(6). The first day of the disqualification period is (1) where, on the determination day the offender is in receipt of a sanctionable benefit, the offender is a member of a joint-claim couple which is in receipt of a joint-claim jobseeker's allowance, or the offender's family member is in receipt of income support, jobseeker's allowance, state pension credit, employment and support allowance, housing benefit or council tax benefit, the day which is 28 days after the determination day; (2) where head (1) does not apply, the day which is 28 days after the first day after the determination day on which the Secretary of State decides to award a sanctionable benefit to the offender, a joint-claim jobseeker's allowance to a joint-claim couple of which the offender is a member, or income support or jobseeker's allowance, state pension credit or employment and support allowance; (3) where the only sanctionable benefits which the offender or, as the case may be, the offender's family member, is in receipt of are housing benefit or council tax benefit or both of them, the day which is 28 days after the first day after the determination day on which the Secretary of State is notified by the relevant authority (ie, the relevant authority administering the offender's or the offender's family member's housing benefit or council tax benefit) that the offender or an offender's family member is in receipt of either or both of those benefits or, as the case may be, has been awarded either or both of those benefits: Social Security (Loss of Benefit) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/4022, reg 2(1) (amended by SI 2002/486, SI 2002/1792, SI 2007/2202, SI 2008/1554). The first day of the disqualification period must be no later than 5 years and 28 days after the date of the conviction of the offender for the benefit offence in the later proceedings: SI 2001/4022 reg 2(2) (amended by SI 2002/486, SI 2008/787). The date of a person's conviction in any proceedings of a benefit offence is taken to be the date on which he was found guilty of that offence in those proceedings, whenever he was sentenced, or in the case mentioned in head (b) below the date of the order for absolute discharge; and references to a conviction include references to (a) a conviction in relation to which the court makes an order for absolute or conditional discharge or a court in Scotland makes a probation order; (b) an order for absolute discharge made by a court of summary jurisdiction in Scotland under the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act 1995 s 246(3) without proceeding to a conviction; and (c) a conviction in Northern Ireland: Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7(9) (amended by the Welfare Reform Act 2009 Sch 4 para 2(3)). 'The determination day' means the day on which the Secretary of State determines that a restriction under s 7 would be applicable to the offender were he in receipt of a sanctionable benefit, under s 8 would be applicable to the offender were he a member of a joint-claim couple which is in receipt of a joint-claim jobseeker's allowance, or under s 9 would be applicable to the offender's family member were that member in receipt of income support, jobseeker's allowance, state pension credit, employment and support allowance, housing benefit or council tax benefit: SI 2001/4022 reg 2(3) (amended by SI 2002/1792, SI 2008/1554).

23 Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7(1) (amended by Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 49(1)).

24 Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7(2).

25 Ie under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 124(4): see PARA 183.

26 Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7(3). 'Prescribed' means prescribed by or determined in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State: s 11(1) (amended by the Welfare Reform Act 2009 Sch 4 para 6).

Any payment of income support or an income-related employment and support allowance which falls to be made to an offender in respect of any week in the disqualification period, or to an offender's family member in respect of any week in the relevant period, must be reduced (1) where the claimant or a member of his family is pregnant or seriously ill, by a sum equivalent to 20 per cent; (2) where the applicable amount of the offender used to calculate that payment of income support has been reduced pursuant to the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 22A, whether or not the appeal referred to in reg 22 is successful, by a sum equivalent to 20 per cent; (3) in any other case, by a sum equivalent to 40 per cent, of the applicable amount of the offender in respect of a single claimant for income support on the first day of the disqualification period or, as the case may be, on the first day of the relevant period, and specified in Sch 2 para 1(1): SI 2001/4022 reg 3(1) (amended by SI 2008/1554, SI 2010/424). Payment must not be reduced to below 10p per week: reg 3(2). A reduction must, if it is not a multiple of 5p, be rounded to the nearest such multiple or, if it is a multiple of 2.5p but not of 5p, to the next lower multiple of 5p: reg 3(3). Where the rate of income support or an income-related employment and support allowance payable to an offender or an offender's family member changes, the above provisions apply to the new rate and any adjustment to the reduction takes effect from the first day of the first benefit week to start after the date of the change: reg 3(5) (amended by SI 2008/1554).

27 Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7(4). The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that, where the sanctionable benefit is employment and support allowance, any income-related allowance will be payable, during the whole or a part of any period comprised in the disqualification period, as if one or more of the following applied (1) the rate of the allowance were such reduced rate as may be prescribed; (2) the allowance were payable only if there is compliance by the offender with such obligations with respect to the provision of information as may be imposed by the regulations; (3) the allowance were payable only if the circumstances are otherwise such as may be prescribed: s 7(4B) (added by the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 23(2)). 'Income-related allowance' has the same meaning as in the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1: Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 13 (amended by 2007 Act Sch 3 para 23(8)).

28 Any payment of housing benefit or, as the case may be, council tax benefit which falls to be made to an offender in respect of any week in the disqualification period or to an offender's family member in respect of any week in the relevant period is reduced (1) where the claimant or a member of his family is pregnant or seriously ill, by a sum equivalent to 20 per cent; (2) in any other case, by a sum equivalent to 40 per cent, of the amount which is or, where he is not the claimant or is not single, would be applicable to the offender in respect of a single claimant for those benefits on the first day of the disqualification period or, where the payment falls to be made to an offender's family member, on the first day of the relevant period and specified in the Housing Benefit Regulations 2006, SI 2006/213, Sch 3 para 1, the Housing Benefit (Persons who have attained the qualifying age for state pension credit) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/214, Sch 3 para 1(1), the Council Tax Benefit Regulations 2006, SI 2006/215, Sch 1 para 1(1) or the Council Tax Benefit (Persons who have attained the qualifying age for state pension credit) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/216, Sch 1 para 1(1): SI 2001/4022 reg 17(1) (amended by SI 2006/217). A reduction, if it is not a multiple of 5p, is rounded to the nearest such multiple or, if it is a multiple of 2.5p but not of 5p, to the next lower multiple of 5p: reg 17(2). Where the rate of housing benefit or council tax benefit payable to a claimant changes, the above provisions must be applied to the new rates and any adjustment to the reduction take effect from the beginning of the first benefit week to commence for the claimant following the change: reg 17(3).

29 Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 7(5). Housing benefit or, as the case may be, council tax benefit is payable to an offender or to an offender's family member (1) where the offender is the claimant, he is entitled to either of those benefits during the disqualification period; (2) where the offender's family member is the claimant, he is entitled to either of those benefits during the relevant period, and the claimant is, at the same time, also entitled to income support or to an income-based jobseeker's allowance: SI 2001/4022 reg 18.

Factors which the Secretary of State must take into account in determining whether the person is a person in hardship are (1) the presence in that person's family of a person who satisfies the requirements for a disability premium or for a disabled child premium; (2) the resources which, without a jobseeker's allowance, are likely to be available to the offender's family, the amount by which these resources fall short of the amount applicable in his case, the amount of any resources which may be available to members of the offender's family from any person in the offender's household who is not a member of his family and the length of time for which those factors are likely to persist; (3) whether there is a substantial risk that essential items, including food, clothing, heating and accommodation, will cease to be available to that person or a member of his family, or will be available at considerably reduced levels and the length of time those factors are likely to persist: reg 5(5). In determining the resources available to that person's family under head (2), any training premium or top-up payment paid pursuant to the Employment and Training Act 1973 must be disregarded: SI 2001/4022 reg 5(6).

The weekly applicable amount (as referred to in head (2)) of a person to whom an income-based jobseeker's allowance is payable in accordance with regs 5-10 must be reduced by a sum equivalent to 40 per cent or, in a case where the claimant or any other member of his family is either pregnant or seriously ill, 20 per cent of the following amount: (a) where the claimant is a single claimant aged not less than 18 but less than 25 or a member of a couple or polygamous marriage where one member is aged not less than 18 but less than 25 and 33 Ibid reg 7(2). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(7) OTHER ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS/405. Legal proceedings.

405. Legal proceedings.

Any person authorised by the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may conduct any proceedings under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 or the Jobseekers Act 1995 before a magistrates' court although not a barrister or solicitor<sup>2</sup>.

Proceedings for an offence<sup>3</sup> may be begun at any time within the period of three months from the date on which evidence, sufficient in the opinion of the Secretary of State to justify a prosecution for the offence, comes to his knowledge or within a period of 12 months from the commission of the offence, whichever period last expires<sup>4</sup>.

Any proceedings in respect of any act or omission of an adjudication officer which would otherwise fall to be brought against a person who is resident in Northern Ireland<sup>5</sup>, other than proceedings for an offence, may instead be brought against the Chief Adjudication Officer; and, for the purposes of any proceedings so brought, the acts or omissions of the adjudication officer must be treated as the acts or omissions of the Chief Adjudication Officer<sup>6</sup>.

Where certain questions<sup>7</sup> arise in any proceedings (1) for an offence under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 or the Jobseekers Act 1995; or (2) involving any question as to the payment of contributions<sup>8</sup>; or (3) for the recovery of any sums due to the Secretary of State or the National Insurance Fund, the decision of the Secretary of State is conclusive for the purposes of the proceedings<sup>9</sup>. If a decision of any such question is necessary for the determination of the proceedings and the decision of the Secretary of State has not been obtained, or a question has been raised with a view to the review of the decision obtained, the question must be referred to the Secretary of State for determination or review<sup>10</sup>.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>11</sup>, where an overpayment<sup>12</sup> is recoverable from a person by the Secretary of State or an authority (or is due from a person to him or to an authority) and it appears to the Secretary of State or the authority that (a) the making of the overpayment was attributable to an act or omission on the part of that person; and (b) there are grounds for instituting proceedings against him for an offence relating to the overpayment, then the Secretary of State or the authority may give to the person a written notice stating that he may be invited to agree to pay a penalty<sup>13</sup> and that, if he does so in the manner specified by the Secretary of State or authority, no such proceedings will be instituted against him<sup>14</sup>. If the person agrees in the specified manner to pay the penalty, the amount of the penalty is recoverable by the same methods as those by which the overpayment is recoverable<sup>15</sup> and no proceedings will be instituted against him for an offence relating to the overpayment<sup>16</sup>. The person may withdraw his agreement to pay the penalty by notifying the Secretary of State or authority, in the manner specified by the Secretary of State or authority, at any time during the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which he agrees to pay it<sup>17</sup>. If he does withdraw his agreement, so much of the penalty as has already been recovered must be repaid and the exemption from liability to prosecution<sup>18</sup> will not apply<sup>19</sup>. Where, after a person has agreed to pay the penalty, it is decided on a review or appeal or in accordance with regulations that the overpayment is not recoverable or due, so much of the penalty as has already been recovered must be repaid<sup>20</sup>. Where, after the person has agreed to pay the penalty, the amount of the overpayment is revised on a review or appeal or in accordance with regulations, so much of the penalty as has already been recovered must be repaid and the exemption from liability to prosecution will no longer apply by reason of that agreement; but if a new agreement is made in relation to the revised overpayment, the amount already recovered by way of penalty (to the extent that it does not exceed the amount of the new penalty) may be treated as recovered under the new agreement instead of being repaid<sup>21</sup>.

TEXT AND NOTES--The Secretary of State and an authority which administers housing benefit or council tax benefit may agree that, to the extent determined by the agreement, one may carry out on the other's behalf, or may join in the carrying out of, any of the other's functions under the 1992 Act s 115A, but the function of the person by whom any overpayment is recoverable, or to whom it is due, of determining whether or not a notice should be given under s 115A(2) in respect of that overpayment, or the Secretary of State's power to make regulations for the purposes of s 115A(2)(b) are not so delegable: s 115A(7A), (7B) (added by the Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 14).

In relation to proceedings before a court for an offence under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 or the Jobseekers Act 1995, or involving any question as to the payment of contributions (other than a Class 4 contribution recoverable in accordance with the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 15), or for the recovery of any sums due to the Inland Revenue or the National Insurance Fund, a decision of an officer of the Inland Revenue which falls within the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 8(1), and relates to or affects an issue arising in the proceedings, is to be conclusive for the purposes of the proceedings: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 117A(1), (2) (s 117A added by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 7 para 13). If any such decision is necessary for the determination of the proceedings, and the decision of an officer of the Inland Revenue has not been obtained under the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 8, the decision must be referred to such an officer to be made in accordance (subject to any necessary modifications) with Pt II (ss 8-19): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 117A(3) (s 117A as added). A decision under s 117A(2) is not to be deemed conclusive where, in relation to the decision, an appeal has been brought but not determined, or an appeal has not been brought (or, as the case may be, an application for leave to appeal has not been made) but the time for doing so has not yet expired, or an application for variation of the decision has been made under regulations made under the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 10: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 117A(4) (s 117A as added). In such a case the court must adjourn the proceedings until such time as the final decision is known; and that decision is to be conclusive for the purposes of the proceedings: s 117A(5) (s 117A as added). Under s 117A, while the court is entitled to strike out proceedings, it must consider whether the administration of justice requires that: Revenue and Customs Comrs v Hyde Industrial Holdings Ltd [2006] EWCA Civ 502, [2006] All ER (D) 281 (Apr).

TEXT AND NOTES 1, 2--For 'under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 or' read 'under any provision of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 other than s 114 (see PARA 404) or under any provision of': s 116(1) (amended by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 1 para 21). Any person authorised by the Inland Revenue may conduct any proceedings under the 1992 Act s 114 before a magistrates' court although not a barrister or solicitor: s 116(5A) (added by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 1 para 21).

TEXT AND NOTE 4--In relation to proceedings for an offence under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 114 (see PARA 404), the references in s 116(2)(a), (3)(a) to the Secretary of State have effect as references to the Inland Revenue: s 116(5A) (amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 11 para 5). See Eyeson v Milton Keynes CC [2005] EWHC 1160, [2005] HLR 626, DC (authority could not delay commencement of proceedings because it needed more information before deciding whether prosecution would be in the public interest).

NOTE 4--There are a number of principles which can be distilled from the relevant authorities as to the limited circumstances in which a court can go behind a certificate as to the date on which there is sufficient evidence to justify a prosecution; as to such principles see Azam v Epping Forest DC [2009] All ER (D) 146 (Oct), DC.

A decision of the Secretary of State which falls within Sch 3 Pt II (paras 16, 17) and relates to or affects an issue arising in the proceedings, is conclusive for the purposes of the proceedings: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 117(2).

TEXT AND NOTE 8--Class 4 contributions recoverable by the Inland Revenue are excluded: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 117(1) (see TEXT AND NOTES 7-10).

405A. Proceedings in respect of benefit fraud: colluding employers.

Where it appears to the Secretary of State or an authority that administers housing benefit or council tax benefit that there are grounds for instituting proceedings against any person ('the responsible person') for an offence, whether or not under the Social Security Administration Act 1992, in respect of any conduct<sup>1</sup>, and that the conduct in respect of which there are grounds for instituting the proceedings is (1) conduct in connection with an inquiry relating to the employment of relevant employees<sup>2</sup> or of any one or more particular relevant employees; or (2) it is conduct which was such as to facilitate the commission of a benefit offence<sup>3</sup> by a relevant employee, whether or not such an offence was in fact committed, the Secretary of State or authority may give to the responsible person a written notice specifying or describing the conduct in question, stating that he may be invited to agree to pay a penalty in respect of that conduct, stating that, if he does so in the manner specified by the Secretary of State or authority, no criminal proceedings will be instituted against him in respect of that conduct, and containing such information as may be prescribed<sup>4</sup>. If the recipient of such a notice agrees, in the specified manner, to pay the penalty the amount of the penalty will be recoverable as a civil debt, and will be capable of being set off against an amount of relevant benefit payable to the recipient of the notice, and no criminal proceedings will be instituted against him in respect of the conduct to which the notice relates<sup>5</sup>. The amount of the penalty is, in a case in which the conduct in question falls within head (1) above but not within head (2) above, £1,000; in a case in which that conduct falls within head (2) above and the number of relevant employees is five or more, £5,000; and, in any other case, the amount obtained by multiplying £1,000 by the number of relevant employees<sup>6</sup>.

The responsible person may withdraw his agreement to pay a penalty by notifying the Secretary of State or authority, in the manner specified by the Secretary of State or authority, at any time during the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which he agrees to pay it<sup>7</sup>. Where the responsible person so withdraws his agreement, so much of the penalty as has already been recovered must be repaid, and the restriction on the institution of criminal proceedings is lifted<sup>8</sup>.

1 'Conduct' includes acts, omissions and statements: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 115B(9) (s 115B added by the Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 15(1)).

2 An individual is a relevant employee in relation to any conduct of the responsible person if (1) that conduct was at or in relation to a time when that individual was an employee of the responsible person; (2) that conduct was at or in relation to a time when that individual was an employee of a body corporate of which the responsible person is or has been a director; or (3) the responsible person, in engaging in that conduct, was acting or purporting to act on behalf of, in the interests of or otherwise by reason of his connection with, any person by whom that individual is or has been employed: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 115B(8). 'Employee' means any person who is employed under a contract of service or apprenticeship, or in an office, including an elective office, or carries out any work under any contract under which he has undertaken to provide his work, and 'employment' is to be construed accordingly; 'director', in relation to a company, includes a shadow director, in relation to any such company that is a subsidiary of another, includes any director or shadow director of the other company, and, in relation to a body corporate whose affairs are managed by its members, means a member of that body corporate; and 'shadow director' means a shadow director as defined in the Companies Act 2006 s 251: 1992 Act s 115B(9) (s 115B(9) amended by the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194; SI 2009/1941).

5 Ibid s 115B(4). Section 71(10) (see PARA 388) applies in relation to an amount recoverable as a civil debt as it applies in relation to an amount recoverable under the provisions mentioned in s 71(8) (see PARA 391): s 115B(4).

405B. Local authority powers to prosecute benefit fraud.

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply if an authority administering housing benefit or council tax benefit has power to bring proceedings for a benefit offence relating to that benefit<sup>2</sup>. The authority may bring proceedings for a benefit offence relating to any other relevant social security benefit<sup>3</sup> unless (1) the proceedings relate to any benefit or circumstances or any description of benefit or circumstances which the Secretary of State prescribes for the purposes of this provision, or (2) the Secretary of State has directed that the authority must not bring the proceedings, and a direction under head (2) above may relate to a particular authority or description of authority or to particular proceedings or any description of proceedings<sup>4</sup>. If the Secretary of State prescribes conditions for the purposes of these provisions, an authority must not bring proceedings under these provisions unless any such condition is satisfied<sup>5</sup>. The Secretary of State may continue proceedings which have been brought by an authority under these provisions as if the proceedings had been brought in his name or he may discontinue the proceedings if (a) he makes provision under head (1) above, such that the authority would no longer be entitled to bring the proceedings under these provisions, (b) he gives a direction under head (2) above in relation to the proceedings, or (c) a condition prescribed<sup>6</sup> ceases to be satisfied in relation to the proceedings<sup>7</sup>. An authority must not bring proceedings for a benefit offence which does not relate to housing benefit or council tax benefit otherwise than in accordance with the above provisions<sup>8</sup>.

In the exercise of its power under s 116A(2), a local authority must have regard to the Code for Crown Prosecutors issued by the Director of Public Prosecutions under the Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s 10 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 359) (1) in determining whether the proceedings should be instituted; (2) in determining what charges should be preferred; (3) in considering what representations to make to a magistrates' court about mode of trial; (4) in determining whether to discontinue proceedings: 1992 Act s 116A(5). As to the sharing of functions as regards claims for social security benefits, and information relating to such claims, see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 384.

As to the supply and use of social security information between ministers, local authorities and certain other bodies, see PARA 330A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/11. ADMINISTRATION/(7) OTHER ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS/406. Proceedings for unpaid contributions.

406. Proceedings for unpaid contributions.

A certificate of a collector of taxes that any amount by way of contributions<sup>1</sup> which a person is liable to pay to that collector for any period<sup>2</sup> has not been paid to him, or to the best of his knowledge and belief to any other person to whom it might lawfully be paid, is until the contrary is proved sufficient evidence in any proceedings before any court that the sum mentioned in the certificate is unpaid and due<sup>3</sup>.

A statutory declaration by an officer of the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> that the searches specified in the declaration for a particular contribution card<sup>5</sup> or for a record of the payment of a particular contribution have been made, and that the card in question or a record of the payment of the contribution in question has not been found, is admissible in any proceedings for an offence as evidence of the facts stated in the declaration<sup>6</sup>. However, nothing in this provision makes a statutory declaration admissible as evidence in proceedings for an offence except in a case where, and to the extent to which, oral evidence to the like effect would have been admissible in those proceedings<sup>7</sup>. A statutory declaration is not admissible as evidence in proceedings for an offence unless a copy of it has, not less than seven days before the hearing or trial, been served on the person charged with the offence in any manner in which a summons may be served; nor is it admissible if that person, not later than three days before the hearing or trial or within such further time as the court may in special circumstances allow, gives notice to the prosecutor requiring the attendance at the trial of the person by whom the declaration was made<sup>8</sup>.

Where a person has been convicted of an offence<sup>9</sup> of failing to pay a contribution at or within the time prescribed for the purpose, and the contribution remains unpaid at the date of the conviction, he is liable to pay to the Secretary of State a sum equal to the amount which he failed to pay<sup>10</sup>. Where a person is convicted of certain offences in relation to contribution stamps<sup>11</sup> and (1) the evidence on which he is convicted shows that he, for the purposes of paying any contribution which he was liable or entitled to pay, has affixed to any contribution card any used contribution stamp<sup>12</sup>; and (2) the contribution<sup>13</sup> in respect of which the stamp was affixed remains unpaid at the date of the conviction<sup>14</sup>, he is liable to pay to the Secretary of State a sum equal to the amount of the contribution<sup>15</sup>.

Where a person is convicted of an offence<sup>16</sup>, evidence may be given of any previous failure by him to pay contributions within the time prescribed for the purpose<sup>17</sup>. Such evidence may be given only if notice of intention to give it is served with the summons or the warrant on which the person appeared before the court which convicted him<sup>18</sup>. On proof of any matter of which evidence may be given under these provisions, the person convicted is liable to pay to the Secretary of State a sum equal to the total of all the amounts which he is so proved to have failed to pay and which remain unpaid at the date of the conviction<sup>19</sup>. Where in England and Wales a person charged with an offence<sup>20</sup> is convicted of that offence in his absence<sup>21</sup>, then if (a) it is proved to the satisfaction of the court<sup>22</sup> that notice has been duly served specifying the other contributions in respect of which the prosecutor intends to give evidence; and (b) the clerk of the court has received a statement in writing, purporting to be made by the accused or by a solicitor acting on his behalf, to the effect that if the accused is convicted in his absence of the offence charged he desires to admit failing to pay the other contributions so specified or any of them, these provisions<sup>23</sup> have effect as if the evidence had been given and the failure so admitted had been proved, and the court must proceed accordingly<sup>24</sup>. In England and Wales, where a person is convicted of an offence<sup>25</sup> and an order is made<sup>26</sup> placing the offender on probation or discharging him absolutely or conditionally, these provisions<sup>27</sup> apply as if it were a conviction for all purposes<sup>28</sup>.

In England and Wales, any sum which a person is liable to pay<sup>29</sup> is recoverable from him as a penalty<sup>30</sup>. Sums recovered by the Secretary of State under these provisions<sup>31</sup>, so far as representing contributions of any class, are to be treated for all purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 and the Social Security Administration Act 1992 as contributions of that class received by the Secretary of State<sup>32</sup>.

Section 119(2)(a) refers to s 114(3)(b) and the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 7(3), but it is submitted that it should be read as referring to the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 114(4)(b) and the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 8(3) respectively.

The Social Security Advisory Committee<sup>1</sup> is to give advice and assistance to the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> or the Northern Ireland department<sup>3</sup> in connection with the discharge of his or its functions under the relevant enactments<sup>4</sup> and to perform such other duties as may be assigned to the committee under any enactment<sup>5</sup>. The Secretary of State may from time to time refer to the committee for consideration and advice such questions relating to the operation of any of the relevant enactments as he thinks fit, including questions as to the advisability of amending any of them<sup>6</sup>. The Secretary of State must furnish the committee with such information as it may reasonably require for the proper discharge of its functions<sup>7</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State proposes to make regulations under any of the relevant enactments, he must refer the proposals in the form of draft regulations or otherwise to the committee<sup>8</sup>. The committee must consider any proposals referred to it and must make a report to the Secretary of State containing such recommendations with regard to the subject matter of the proposals as it thinks appropriate<sup>9</sup>. If, after receiving a report of the committee, the Secretary of State lays before Parliament any regulations or draft regulations which comprise the whole or any part of the subject matter of the proposals referred to the committee, he must lay with them a copy of the report, accompanied by a statement showing the extent (if any) to which he has, in framing the regulations, given effect to the committee's recommendations and, in so far as effect has not been given to them, his reasons why not<sup>10</sup>.

1 The Social Security Advisory Committee was constituted under the Social Security Act 1980 s 9 (mainly repealed), and is continued in being by the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 170(1). As to the constitution of the committee see s 170(2), Sch 5.

Nothing in any enactment requires any proposals in respect of regulations<sup>1</sup> to be referred to the Social Security Advisory Committee<sup>2</sup> or the Industrial Injuries Advisory Council<sup>3</sup> if (1) it appears to the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> that by reason of the urgency of the matter it is inexpedient so to refer them<sup>5</sup>; or (2) the relevant advisory body has agreed that they are not to be referred<sup>6</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State has referred proposals to the committee or council, he may make the proposed regulations before the committee has made its report or, as the case may be, the council has given its advice only if after the reference it appears to him that by reason of the urgency of the matter it is expedient to do so<sup>7</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/12. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW/(1) INTRODUCTION/451. Nature of European Community Law.

12. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW

(1) INTRODUCTION

451. Nature of European Community Law.

The principles of European Community law form a distinct 'European Community legal order' which is an integral part of the legal systems of the member states and takes precedence over all national law, including legislation<sup>1</sup>. In the context of social security, the relevant legislative provisions of European Community law are to be found principally in the following: (1) the EC Council Directive on equal treatment for men and women<sup>2</sup>, which requires member states to eliminate discrimination between men and women in matters of social security<sup>3</sup>; (2) the EC Council Regulation on freedom of movement for workers<sup>4</sup>, which prohibits discrimination against workers in relation to social advantages on the ground of nationality<sup>5</sup>; and (3) the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>6</sup>, which promotes freedom of movement of employed and self-employed persons by eliminating the disadvantages which would be suffered by migrant workers from the application of national social security provisions alone<sup>7</sup>. Other European Community legislative provisions, not dealing with social security as such, may occasionally affect particular benefits<sup>8</sup>.

Without prejudice to other provisions of the EC Treaty<sup>9</sup> and in conformity with its general objectives, the Commission of the European Communities (the 'EC Commission') has the task of promoting close co-operation between member states in the social field, including, among other things, matters relating to social security<sup>10</sup>. To this end the EC Commission is required to act in close contact with member states by making studies, delivering opinions and arranging consultations both in problems arising at national level and those of concern to international organisations<sup>11</sup>.

The Council of the European Communities (the 'EC Council') may, acting unanimously and after consulting the Economic and Social Committee<sup>12</sup>, assign to the EC Commission tasks in connection with the implementation of common measures, particularly as regards social security for migrant workers<sup>13</sup>.

If action by the Community proves necessary to attain, in the course of the operation of the common market, one of the objectives of the European Community<sup>14</sup> and the EC Treaty has not provided the necessary powers, the EC Council must, acting unanimously on a proposal from the EC Commission and after consulting the European Parliament<sup>15</sup>, take the appropriate measures<sup>16</sup>.

7    See PARA 454 et seq post. EC regulations have general application and are binding in their entirety and directly applicable in all member states: see the EC Treaty art 189 (substituted by the Treaty on European Union art G(60)). This means that they must be applied in the same way as an Act of Parliament. A directive is binding as to the result to be achieved upon each member state to which it is addressed but leaves to the national authorities the choice of form and methods: see the EC Treaty art 189 (as so substituted). Although not directly applicable, directives may have 'direct effect', thus creating legally enforceable rights once the period allowed for their implementation has expired: see Case 9/70 Franz Grad v Finanzamt Traunstein [1970] 2 ECR 825, [1971] CMLR 1, ECJ.

In relation to social security, however, as a matter of practice the EC Commission has preferred to act in exercise of its powers under arts 51, 235 (as amended) (see PARA 454 post). In the field of social security the powers under this provision have been exercised in order to secure equal treatment for men and women (see PARA 452 post) and to extend the application of European Community legislation to self-employed persons (see PARAS 456-457 post).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/12. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW/(2) EQUAL TREATMENT OF MEN AND WOMEN IN SOCIAL SECURITY/452. EC Council Directive on equal treatment for men and women.

(2) EQUAL TREATMENT OF MEN AND WOMEN IN SOCIAL SECURITY

452. EC Council Directive on equal treatment for men and women.

The purpose of the EC Directive on equal treatment for men and women<sup>1</sup> is the progressive implementation, in the field of social security and other elements of social protection, of the principle of equal treatment for men and women in matters of social security (the 'principle of equal treatment')<sup>2</sup>. Member states are required to take the measures necessary to ensure that any laws, regulations and administrative provisions contrary to the principle of equal treatment in matters of social security are abolished<sup>3</sup>. The principle of equal treatment, which is expressed to be without prejudice to provisions relating to the protection of women on the grounds of maternity<sup>4</sup>, means that there must be no discrimination whatsoever on the grounds of sex either directly, or indirectly by reference in particular to marital or family status, in relation to the scope of the relevant schemes<sup>5</sup> and the conditions of access to them, the obligation to contribute and the calculation of contributions, the calculation of benefits including increases due in respect of a spouse and for dependants, and the conditions governing the duration and retention of entitlement to benefits<sup>6</sup>. However, member states are entitled to exclude from the principle of equal treatment<sup>7</sup> measures relating to (1) the determination of pensionable age for the purposes of granting old age and retirement pensions and the possible consequences thereof for other benefits<sup>8</sup>; (2) advantages and benefits for persons who have brought up children<sup>9</sup>; (3) the granting of old age or invalidity benefits by virtue of derived entitlements of a wife<sup>10</sup>; (4) the granting of increases of long-term invalidity, old age, accidents at work and occupational disease benefits for a dependent wife<sup>11</sup>; and (5) the consequences of the exercise of an option not to acquire rights or incur obligations under a statutory scheme<sup>12</sup>.

The directive applies to (a) statutory schemes which provide protection against sickness, invalidity, old age, accidents at work and occupational diseases, and unemployment; and (b) social assistance, in so far as it is intended to supplement or replace such schemes<sup>13</sup>.

The directive does not apply to measures based on objective factors unrelated to discrimination on grounds of sex, where the measure chosen reflects a legitimate social policy of the member state, is appropriate to achieve that aim and is necessary in order to do so<sup>14</sup>.

Member states are also required to introduce into their national legal systems such measures as are necessary to enable all persons who consider themselves wronged by failure to apply the principle of equal treatment to pursue their claims by judicial process, although there may be prior recourse to other competent authorities<sup>15</sup>.

It is well settled that the EC Directive on equal treatment for men and women has direct effect<sup>16</sup> and that the person discriminated against may claim the rights accorded to persons of the opposite sex<sup>17</sup>. Such claims must be exercised under the conditions determined by the national law, provided that those conditions are no less favourable than those relating to similar domestic actions and that they are not framed in such a way as to render virtually impossible the exercise of rights conferred by European Community law<sup>18</sup>. Accordingly, the directive does not invalidate the application to such claims of the limits on backdating applied to claims generally in the national law.

- 1 le EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6, 10.1.79, p 24). As to the implementation of the principle of equal treatment for men and women in occupational social security schemes to which this directive does not apply see EC Council Directive 86/378 (OJ L225, 12.8.86, p 40); and PARA 771 post.
- 2 EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6, 10.1.79, p 24) art 1. The principle enshrined in this directive applies to the working population (including self-employed persons, workers and self-employed persons whose activity is interrupted by illness, accident or involuntary unemployment, and persons seeking employment) and to retired or invalided workers and self-employed persons: art 2. 'Working population' does not include an unremunerated carer: see Case C-77/95 Züchner v Handelskrankenkasse (Ersatzkasse) Bremen [1997] All ER (EC) 359, [1997] 3 CMLR 263, ECJ.
- 3 EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6, 10.1.79, p 24) art 5. EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6, 10.1.79, p 24) was adopted by the EC Council in exercise of its powers under the EC Treaty art 235 (as amended). Member states were required to implement the directive within six years of its notification, ie by 23 December 1984: see art 8.
- 4 Ibid art 4(2).
- 5 See note 13 infra.
- 6 EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6, 10.1.79, p 24) art 4(1). However, the directive does not apply to provisions concerning survivors' or family benefits, except in the case of family benefits granted by way of increases of benefits due under the schemes referred to in art 3(1)(a) (see head (a) in the text): art 3(2).
- 7 Member states are required to periodically examine the exclusions in order to ascertain, in the light of social developments in the matter concerned, whether there is justification for maintaining them: see ibid art 7(2).
- 8 See ibid art 7(1)(a). The provision of different contribution periods for men and women was upheld in Case C-9/91 R v Secretary of State for Social Security, ex p Equal Opportunities Commission [1992] ECR I-4297, [1992] 3 CMLR 233, ECJ, upon the basis that they were necessary to maintain the financial equilibrium of the system. Discrimination in relation to other benefits by reason of the differing pensionable ages is unlawful unless it is necessarily and objectively linked to the difference in pensionable age: Case C-328/91 Secretary of State for Social Security v Thomas [1993] ECR I-1247, [1993] 3 CMLR 880, ECJ (differing upper age limits for first claims for severe disablement allowance (see PARA 92 et seq ante) and invalid care allowance (see PARA 100 et seq ante) not so linked); Case C-92/94 Secretary of State for Social Security and Chief Adjudication Officer v Graham [1995] All ER (EC) 736, [1995] ECR I-2521, ECJ (downrating of invalidity benefit to claimant's actual pension rate on reaching pensionable age upheld).
- 9 See EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6, 10.1.79, p 24) art 7(1)(b).
- 10 See ibid art 7(1)(c).
- 11 See ibid art 7(1)(d).
- 12 See ibid art 7(1)(e). This exclusion applies only to options exercised before 19 December 1978: see art 7(1)(e).
- 13 Ibid art 3(1). The directive does not apply (1) to persons who have never made themselves available for employment or have ceased to be so available for a reason other than those set out in art 3(1)(a) (see head (a) in the text) (see Joined Cases 48, 106, 107/88 Achterberg-te Riele v Sociale Verzekeringsbank Amsterdam [1989] ECR 1963, [1990] 3 CMLR 323, ECJ); (2) income support (see Joined Cases C-63, 64/91 Jackson v Chief Adjudication Officer [1992] ECR I-4737, [1992] 3 CMLR 389, ECJ); (3) housing benefit (see Case C-243/90 R v Secretary of State for Social Security, ex p Smithson [1992] ECR I-467, [1992] 1 CMLR 1061, ECJ); or (4) a child-raising allowance (see Joined Cases C-245, 312/94 Hoever v Land Nordrhein Westfalen [1996] ECR I-4895, 3 CMLR 611, ECJ). As to income support see PARA 176 et seq ante; and as to housing benefit see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 140 et seq. As to child benefit see PARA 237 et seq ante.
- 14 See Case C-317/93 Nolte v Landesversicherungsanstalt Hannover; Case C-444/93 Megner v Innungskrankenkasse Vorderpfalz [1996] All ER (EC) 212, ECJ, where the exclusion from benefit schemes of persons working for fewer than 15 hours a week was upheld, although far more women were affected by this than men; the court recognised that social policy is a matter for member states and that they have a broad margin of discretion in choosing the measures capable of achieving the aims of their social policy. In these cases, the exclusion reflected a structural principle of the German social security scheme: the demand for such part-time employment could only be satisfied within the law if it were excluded from compulsory insurance and this aim was objectively unrelated to discrimination on grounds of sex. No such justification was established in Case C-102/88 Ruzius-Wilbrink v Bestuur van de Bedrijfsvereniging voor Overheidsdiensten [1989] ECR 4311, [1989] CMLR 202, ECJ.

453. EC Council Regulation on freedom of movement.

A person who is a national<sup>1</sup> of a member state may not, in the territory of another member state, be treated differently from nationals by reason of his nationality in respect of any conditions of employment and work, in particular as regards remuneration, dismissal and, should he become unemployed, reinstatement or re-employment<sup>2</sup>. He must also enjoy the same social and tax advantages as nationals<sup>3</sup>. In addition, he must, by virtue of the same right and under the same conditions as nationals, have access to training in vocational schools and retraining centres<sup>4</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'national' see PARA 454 note 5 post.

2 EC Council Regulation 1612/68 (OJ L257, 19.10.68, p 2) art 7(1). See further EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES. Any clause of a collective or individual agreement or of any other collective regulation concerning eligibility for employment, remuneration and other conditions of work or dismissal is null and void in so far as it lays down or authorises discriminatory conditions in respect of workers who are nationals of the other member states: art 7(4).

The principal aim of EC Council Regulation 1612/68 (OJ L257, 19.10.68, p 2) is to ensure the non-discriminatory treatment of workers in a member state who are nationals of another member state, by applying all the national rules of the host member state in the same way as they are applied to its own national workers: see Case 110/79 Coonan v Insurance Officer [1980] ECR 1445, ECJ. In Case C-237/94 O'Flynn v Adjudication Officer [1996] All ER (EC) 541, [1996] ECR I-2617, ECJ, the condition in the Social Fund (Maternity and Funeral Expenses) (General) Regulations, SI 1987/481, reg 7(1)(c), that the funeral must have taken place within the United Kingdom, was held to discriminate unlawfully against nationals of other member states. See also Case C-278/94 EC Commission v Belgium [1996] ECR I-4307, [1997] 1 CMLR 1040, ECJ (indirect discrimination through link with attendance at Belgian state schools). 3 EC Council Regulation 1612/68 (OJ L257, 19.10.68, p 2) art 7(2). This provision applies to every social and tax advantage, whether or not linked to a contract of employment, generally granted to claimants as a result of their objective status as workers or due to the fact that they reside in national territory: Case 63/76 Inzirillo v Caisse d'Allocations Familiales de l'Arrondissement de Lyon [1976] ECR 2057, [1978] 3 CMLR 596, ECJ. ## (4) SOCIAL SECURITY FOR MIGRANT PERSONS

(i) Introduction

454. Background to EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons.

The EC Treaty<sup>1</sup> requires the EC Council, acting unanimously on a proposal from the EC Commission<sup>2</sup>, to adopt such measures in the field of social security as are necessary to provide freedom of movement within the European Community<sup>3</sup>. This provision was implemented in 1972 by a comprehensive regulation on the application of social security schemes to employed persons and their families moving within the European Community, namely the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>4</sup>. This regulation recognised the considerable differences existing between the national legislations of member states and aimed to guarantee within the European Community, first, equality of treatment for all nationals<sup>5</sup> of member states and, secondly, the right to social security benefits for workers and their dependants who move within the European Community, in particular by aggregation of insurance or equivalent periods under the various national legislations<sup>6</sup>. The regulation applies to all nationals of member states insured under social security schemes for employed persons<sup>7</sup>.

Although the relevant provisions of the EC Treaty<sup>8</sup> refer only to workers, in 1981 the EC Council exercised its residual powers thereunder<sup>9</sup> to extend the application of the basic regulations to include self-employed persons<sup>10</sup>.

The procedure for implementing these provisions was provided by a further regulation (the implementing regulation)<sup>11</sup> which, in particular, specified the competent institutions of member states, documents to be furnished, formalities and procedures, administrative checks and reimbursements<sup>12</sup>.

The objective of the regulations, which must be interpreted in the light of the principle of freedom of movement, is merely co-ordination of the social legislation of member states; there is no attempt to establish a European Community social security scheme or to harmonise the national systems<sup>13</sup>.

1 See PARA 451 note 9 ante. As to the law of the European Communities generally see EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES.

2 As to the EC Council and the EC Commission see PARA 451 ante; and EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES.

3 See the EC Treaty art 51. Article 51 is included in Pt III (Community Policies) (arts 9-130Y) (as amended), and its principal objective is therefore the establishment of as complete a freedom of movement for workers as possible: see Case 75/63 Hoekstra v Bestuur der Bedrijfsvereniging voor Detailhandel en Ambachten [1964] ECR 177, [1964] CMLR 319, ECJ. EC Treaty art 51 is not concerned solely with migrant workers or workers required to move for the purpose of their employment: Case 44/65 Hessische Knappschaft v Maison Singer et Fils [1965] ECR 965, [1966] CMLR 82, ECJ (application of implementing regulation to worker killed while on holiday in another member state). As to the relationship between the EC Treaty art 49 (as amended) and art 51 see Case 44/65 Hessische Knappschaft v Maison Singer et Fils supra.

4 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2), which came into force on 1 October 1972 for Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Luxembourg; and 1 April 1973 for Denmark, Ireland and the United Kingdom; and replaced EC Council Regulation No 3 (OJ No 30, 16.12.58, p 561/58) which had come into force on 1 January 1959. See also Case 83/87 Viva v Fonds National de Retraite des Ouvriers Mineurs (FNROM) [1988] ECR 2521, [1990] 1 CMLR 220, ECJ.

EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2) was published in consolidated and updated version in 1997: see EC Council Regulation 118/97 (OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) Annex A Pt I. In this title, the migrant persons regulation is cited as EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1), the citation thus encompassing all amendments in force as up to the 30 January 1997 (date of publication of the consolidated reprint); subsequent amendments only are noted.

The regulation creates no entitlement to benefits for a period prior to the date of its entry into force, although all contribution periods completed before that date are taken into consideration: see art 94; and Case 10/78 Belbouab v Bundesknappschaft [1978] ECR 1915, [1979] 2 CMLR 23, ECJ.

In this title, the implementing regulation is cited as EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96), the citation thus encompassing all amendments in force up to 10 December 1992 (the date of publication of the consolidated reprint); subsequent amendments only are noted. This version is stated to have no legal force and does in fact contain a number of typographical and other errors.

The 'competent institution' means (1) the institution<sup>3</sup> with which the person concerned is insured at the time of the application for benefit<sup>4</sup>; or (2) the institution from which he is entitled or would be entitled to benefits if he or a member or members of his family were resident<sup>5</sup> in the territory of the member state in which the institution is situated<sup>6</sup>; or (3) the institution designated by the competent authority of the member state concerned<sup>7</sup>; or (4) in the case of a scheme relating to an employer's liability<sup>8</sup>, either the employer or the insurer involved or, in default thereof, a body or authority designated by the competent authority of the member state concerned<sup>9</sup>.

The 'competent state' is the member state in whose territory the competent institution is situated<sup>10</sup>.

The 'institution of the place of residence' and the 'institution of the place of stay'<sup>11</sup> mean respectively the institution which is competent to provide benefits in the place where the person concerned resides and the institution which is competent to provide benefits in the place where the person concerned is staying, under the legislation<sup>12</sup> administered by that institution or, where no such institution exists, the institution designated by the competent authority of the member state in question<sup>13</sup>.

456. Introduction.

The EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup> applies to the following:

- 1165 (1) Employed or self-employed persons<sup>2</sup> who (a) are or have been subject to the legislation of one or more member states; and (b) are nationals<sup>3</sup> of one of the member states or stateless persons<sup>4</sup> or refugees<sup>5</sup> residing<sup>6</sup> within the territory of one of the member states, as well as to members of the families<sup>7</sup> and the survivors<sup>8</sup> of the above<sup>9</sup>;
- 1166 (2) the survivors of employed or self-employed persons who have been subject to the legislation of one or more member states, irrespective of the nationality of such employed or self-employed persons, where their survivors are nationals of one of the member states, or stateless persons or refugees residing within the territory of one of the member states<sup>10</sup>;
- 1167 (3) civil servants and persons who, in accordance with the legislation applicable<sup>11</sup>, are treated as such, where they are or have been subject to the legislation of a member state to which this regulation applies, as well as to the members of their families and their survivors<sup>12</sup>.

2    For the meaning of 'employed person' and 'self-employed person' see PARA 457 post. Before 1 July 1982 (ie the date on which EC Council Regulation 1390/81 (OJ L143, 29.5.81, p 1) came into force: see generally para 454 text and note 10 ante), EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) referred to 'workers'. However, in several cases the European Court of Justice had given the definition of 'worker' an extended interpretation so as to include self-employed persons in certain situations: see in particular Case 17/76 Brack v Insurance Officer [1976] ECR 1429, [1976] 2 CMLR 592, ECJ; and Case 99/80 Galinsky v Insurance Officer [1981] ECR 941, [1981] 3 CMLR 361, ECJ.

456 Introduction

TEXT AND NOTES--The provisions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 and EC Council Regulation 574/72 (the implementing regulation) have been extended to the nationals of third countries who are not already covered by the Regulation solely on the ground of their nationality: see EC Council Regulation 859/2003 (OJ L124, 20.5.2003, p 1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/12. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW/(4) SOCIAL SECURITY FOR MIGRANT PERSONS/(ii) Scope and General Provisions of Relevant EC Council Regulation/A. PERSONS COVERED/457. Definition of 'employed person' and 'self-employed person'.

457. Definition of 'employed person' and 'self-employed person'.

For the purposes of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup>, an employed or self-employed person is a person who falls<sup>2</sup> within one of the following four categories:

- 1168 (1) any person who is insured, compulsorily or on an optional continued basis, for one or more of the contingencies covered by the branches of a social security scheme for employed or self-employed persons<sup>3</sup>;
- 1169 (2) any person who is compulsorily insured for one or more of the contingencies covered by the branches of social security dealt with in the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant workers, under a social security scheme for all residents or for the whole working population, if such person:
- 129 178. (a) can be identified as an employed or self-employed person by virtue of the manner in which such scheme is administered or financed; or
- 179. (b) failing such criteria, is insured for some other specified contingency<sup>4</sup> under a scheme for employed or self-employed persons or under a scheme referred to in head (3) below, either compulsorily or on an optional continued basis or, where no such scheme exists in the member state concerned, complies with the relevant definition<sup>5</sup>;
- 130 1170 (3) any person who is compulsorily insured for several of the contingencies covered by the branches dealt with in the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons, under a standard social security scheme for the whole rural population in accordance with specified criteria<sup>6</sup>;
- 1171 (4) any person who is voluntarily insured for one or more of the contingencies covered by the branches dealt with in the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons, under a social security scheme of a member state for employed or self-employed persons or for all residents or for certain categories of residents if such person (a) carries out an activity as an employed or self-employed person; or (b) has previously been compulsorily insured for the same contingency under a scheme for employed or self-employed persons of the same member state<sup>7</sup>.

The term 'a person who is employed' and the term 'a person who is self-employed' are to be understood as referring to activities so regarded by the national social security legislation of the member state in which they were pursued<sup>8</sup>.

A person's insurance does not cease to be compulsory merely by reason of the fact that during certain limited periods, such as a stay abroad, the payment of contributions by him is optional<sup>9</sup>.

Maladie d'Eure-et-Loir v Tessier [1978] ECR 7, [1979] 1 CMLR 249, ECJ. Prior to 1 July 1982 (ie the date on which EC Council Regulation 1390/81 (OJ L134, 29.5.81, p 1) came into force: see generally para 454 text and note 10 ante), EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) applied to 'workers', which the European Court of Justice held to be a concept related to European Community law, not national law: see Case 75/63 Hoekstra v Bestuur der Bedrijfsvereniging voor Detailhandel en Ambachten [1964] ECR 177, [1964] CMLR 319, ECJ. See further PARA 456 note 2 ante. As to the meaning of 'self-employed person' see also Case 300/84 Van Roosmalen v Bestuur van de Bedrijfsvereniging voor de Gezondheid Geestelijke en Maatschappelijke Belangen [1986] ECR 3097, [1988] 3 CMLR 471, ECJ ('self-employed person' applies to persons pursuing, otherwise than under a contract of employment or by way of self-employment in a trade or profession, an occupation from which income is derived allowing them to meet their needs, irrespective of whether income is supplied by third parties).

Under earlier legislation the European Court of Justice held that the status of 'worker' was acquired when the worker complied with the substantive conditions laid down by the social security scheme applicable to him, even if the steps necessary for affiliation to the scheme have not been completed: Case 39/76 Bestuur der Bedrijfsvereniging voor de Metaalnijverheid v LJ Mouthaan [1976] ECR 1901, ECJ. In the United Kingdom any person who is an 'employed earner' or a 'self-employed earner' within the meaning of the legislation of Great Britain or of the legislation of Northern Ireland is regarded respectively as an employed person or a self-employed person within the meaning of art 1(a)(ii), Annex I (as amended).

458. Definition of 'member of the family' and 'survivor'.

For the purposes of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup>, 'member of the family' means any person defined or recognised as a member of the family or designated as a member of the household either by the legislation<sup>2</sup> under which benefits are provided or, in specified cases<sup>3</sup>, by the legislation of the member state in whose territory such person resides<sup>4</sup>. However, where such legislation regards as a member of the family or a member of the household only a person living under the same roof as the employed or self-employed person<sup>5</sup>, this condition is deemed to be satisfied if the person in question is mainly dependent on the employed or self-employed person<sup>6</sup>.

Where, however, the benefits concerned are benefits for disabled persons granted under the legislation of a member state to all nationals of that state who fulfil the prescribed conditions, the term 'member of the family' means at least the spouse of an employed or self-employed person and the children of such person who are either minors or dependent upon him<sup>7</sup>.

'Survivor' means any person defined or recognised as such by the legislation under which the benefits are granted; however, where such legislation regards as a survivor only a person who was living under the same roof as the deceased, this condition is deemed to be satisfied if such person was mainly dependent on the deceased<sup>8</sup>.

The European Court of Justice has recently departed from its earlier doctrine that members of the family and survivors could claim only 'derived' rights, acquired through their status as a member of the family or survivor of an employed or self-employed person; the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons is now held to apply to all rights, including personal rights<sup>9</sup>.

Article 22(1)(a) provides for entitlement to sickness and maternity benefits during a stay outside the competent state where the employed or self-employed person's condition necessitates immediate benefits; art 22(3) applies this provision by analogy to members of the family: see PARA 486 post. Article 31 provides for pensioners and members of their families to receive sickness and maternity benefits when staying in a member state other than the state in which they reside: see PARA 498 post.

Where the legislation of a member state does not enable members of the family to be distinguished from the other persons to whom it applies, the term 'member of the family' has the meaning given to it in Annex I (as amended): art 1(f)(i) (final sentence) (substituted by EC Council Regulation 1290/97 (OJ L176, 4.7.97, p 1)).

For the purposes of art 3(1) it is sufficient that all persons subject to national legislation are treated in the same way, irrespective of nationality, and a member state is entitled, although not required, to treat facts occurring in another member state as if the same facts had occurred within its own territory: Case 1/78 Kenny v Insurance Officer [1978] ECR 1489, [1978] 3 CMLR 651, ECJ (claim by an Irish national for sickness and invalidity benefits under the legislation in respect of a period during which he was imprisoned in Ireland). ### C. BENEFITS COVERED

460. Summary.

The EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup> applies to all legislation<sup>2</sup> concerning the following branches of social security<sup>3</sup>:

- 1172 (1) sickness and maternity benefits<sup>4</sup>;
- 1173 (2) invalidity benefits, including those intended for the maintenance or improvement of earning capacity<sup>5</sup>;
- 1174 (3) old age benefits<sup>6</sup>;
- 1175 (4) survivors' benefits<sup>7</sup>;
- 1176 (5) benefits in respect of accidents at work and occupational diseases<sup>8</sup>;
- 1177 (6) death grants<sup>9</sup>;

This regulation applies to all general and special social security schemes, whether contributory or non-contributory<sup>12</sup>; and also to special non-contributory benefits which are provided under legislation or schemes other than those referred to above, where such benefits are intended either (a) to provide supplementary, substitute or ancillary cover against the risks covered by the branches of social security referred to in heads (1) to (8) above; or (b) solely as specific protection for the disabled<sup>13</sup>.

The regulation does not apply to social or medical assistance<sup>14</sup>, to benefit schemes for victims of war or its consequences<sup>15</sup>, or to special schemes for civil servants and persons treated as such<sup>16</sup>.

For the purposes of the migrant persons regulation, 'benefits' and 'pensions' mean all benefits and pensions, including all elements of them payable out of public funds, revalorisation increases<sup>17</sup> and supplementary allowances, as also lump sum benefits which may be paid in lieu of pensions, and payments made by way of reimbursement of contributions<sup>18</sup>.

The provisions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) also apply to schemes concerning the liability of an employer or shipowner in respect of the benefits referred to in art 4(1), but the legislative provisions of any member state concerning a shipowner's liability are not affected by Title III (ie arts 13-79) (as amended): see art 4(2), (3).

14 There may not always be a clear distinction between national legislative schemes within the field of social security and those dealing with assistance, and in certain cases a scheme may fall within both fields: see Case 1/72 Frilli v Belgian State [1972] ECR 457, [1973] CMLR 386, ECJ (the provision of guaranteed income for all old people, subject to the sole criterion of residence, constituted in relation to persons covered by the regulation, a social security benefit); and Case C-356/89 Newton v Chief Adjudication Officer [1991] ECR I-3017, [1992] 1 CMLR 149 (mobility allowance). See also Case 24/74 Caisse Régionale d'Assurance Maladie de Paris v Bignon [1974] ECR 999, [1975] 1 CMLR 59, ECJ (the court referred to the assessment of need in each individual case as a characteristic feature of assistance); Case C-78/91 Hughes v Chief Adjudication Officer, Belfast [1992] ECR I-4839, [1992] 3 CMLR 490; and Case 39/74 Costa v Belgian State [1974] ECR 1251, ECJ. The distinction between benefits within the scope of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) and those outside depends entirely on the factors relating to each individual benefit, particularly its purpose and the conditions for its grant: Case 9/78 Directeur Régional de la Sécurité Sociale de Nancy v Gillard [1978] ECR 1661, [1978] 3 CMLR 554, ECJ. Although the fact that national provisions relating to a particular benefit are not contained within the national social security legislation is not of itself decisive as to the nature of the benefit (see Case 9/78 Directeur Régional de la Sécurité Sociale de Nancy v Gillard supra; and Case C-327/92 Rheinhold & Mahla NV v Bestuur van de Bedrijfsvereniging van de Metaalnijverheid [1995] ECR I-1223, [1995] 2 CMLR 786), the fact that a member state has specified a law by declaration under the EC provisions (see PARA 461 post) must be accepted as proof that benefits granted on the basis of that law are social security benefits (see Case 35/77 Beerens v Rijksdienst voor Arbeidsvoorziening [1977] ECR 2249, [1978] 2 CMLR 320, ECJ). However, the absence of a declaration is not conclusive against the benefit having the character of a social security benefit (see Case C-327/92 Rheinhold & Mahla NV v Bestuur van de Bedrijfsvereniging van de Metaalnijverheid supra).

15 See Case 93/75 Adlerblum v Caisse Nationale d'Assurance Vieillesse des Travailleurs Salariés [1975] ECR 2147, [1976] 1 CMLR 236, ECJ; Case 9/78 Directeur Régional de la Sécurité Sociale de Nancy v Gillard [1978] ECR 1661, [1978] 3 CMLR 554, ECJ; Case 207/78 Ministère Public v Even and Office National des Pensions pour Travailleurs Salariés [1979] ECR 2019, [1980] 2 CMLR 71, ECJ.

This regulation does not apply to the provisions in the legislation of a member state concerning special non-contributory benefits, referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) Annex II, Section III, the validity of which is confined to part of its territory: art 4(2b).

17 Rules for revalorisation provided by the legislation of a member state apply to benefits due under that legislation taking into account the provisions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1): art 11.

18 Ibid art 1(t). This provision is subject to the provisions of Title III (arts 13-79) (as amended). 'Benefits' must be interpreted in the widest possible sense: Case 39/74 Costa v Belgian State [1974] ECR 1251, ECJ. See also Case 24/74 Caisse Régionale d'Assurance Maladie de Paris v BIASON [1974] ECR 999, [1975] 1 CMLR 59, ECJ; Case 130/73 Vandeweghe v Berufsgenossenschaft für die chemische Industrie [1973] ECR 1329, [1974] 1 CMLR 449, ECJ; and Case 104/76 Jansen v Landesversicherungsanstalt Rheinprovinz [1977] ECR 829, ECJ. Cf, however, Case C-25/95 Otte v Germany [1997] 2 CMLR 1061, ECJ (fifth chamber) (in order to come within the scope of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1), there must be a sufficient link between an allowance and one of the areas of social security listed in art 4(1); an adaptation allowance paid to miners in Germany who had been laid off following closure or rationalisation measures did not fall within its scope).

460 Summary

NOTE 11--Advance maintenance payments are a family benefit within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 art 4(1)(h): Case C-255/99 Humer [2004] 1 CMLR 1312, ECJ.

TEXT AND NOTE 13--The regulation now applies to special non-contributory cash benefits which are provided under legislation which, because of its personal scope, objectives and/or conditions for entitlement has characteristics both of the social security legislation referred to in art 4(1) and of social assistance: EC Council Regulation 1408/71 art 4(2a) (as amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 647/2005 (OJ L117, 4.5.2005, p 1)). 'Special non-contributory cash benefits' means those (1) which are intended to provide either (a) supplementary, substitute or ancillary cover against the risks covered by the branches of social security referred to in art 4(1), and which guarantee the persons concerned a minimum subsistence income having regard to the economic and social situation in the member state concerned, or (b) solely specific protection for the disabled, closely linked to the said person's social environment in the member state concerned, and (2) where the financing exclusively derives from compulsory taxation intended to cover general public expenditure and the conditions for providing and for calculating the benefits are not dependent on any contribution in respect of the beneficiary, and (3) which are listed in Regulation 1408/71 Annex IIa: Regulation 1408/71 art 4(2a). In relation to head (2), benefits provided to supplement a contributory benefit are not considered to be contributory benefits for this reason alone: Regulation 1408/71 art 4(2a).

NOTE 18--See Viktor Movrin v Landesversicherungsanstalt Westfalen [2000] 3 CMLR 689, ECJ (subsidy in respect of compulsory sickness insurance payments fell within EC Council 1408/71 as it resulted in net increase in recipient's pension).

Definition of 'legislation'; declarations by member states.

D. OTHER GENERAL PROVISIONS

461. Definition of 'legislation'; declarations by member states.

For the purposes of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup>, 'legislation' means, in respect of each member state, statutes, regulations and other provisions and all other implementing measures, present or future<sup>2</sup>, relating to certain branches and schemes of social security<sup>3</sup> as well as specific special non-contributory benefits<sup>4</sup>. The term excludes provisions of existing or future industrial agreements, whether or not they have been the subject of a decision by the authorities rendering them compulsory or extending their scope; however, in so far as such provisions serve to put into effect compulsory insurance imposed by the laws and regulations previously mentioned, or set up a scheme by the same institution as that which administers the schemes set up by those laws and regulations, the limitation on the term may at any time be lifted by a declaration of the member state concerned specifying the schemes of such a kind to which this regulation applies<sup>5</sup>.

'Legislation' also excludes provisions governing special schemes for self-employed persons<sup>6</sup> the creation of which is left to the initiatives of those concerned or which apply only to a part of the territory of the member state concerned, irrespective of whether or not the authorities decided to make them compulsory or extend their scope<sup>7</sup>.

Member states are required to specify in declarations, which must be duly notified and published, the legislation and schemes referred to above<sup>8</sup>, as well as special non-contributory benefits<sup>9</sup>, and certain other benefits<sup>10</sup> as specified<sup>11</sup>.

1    Ie EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1): see generally para 454 ante. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante.

2    The words 'present or future' must not be interpreted in such a way as to exclude measures which were previously in force but which had ceased to be so when the relevant European Community provisions were adopted: see Case 109/76 Blottner v Bestuur der Nieuwe Algemene Bedrijfsvereniging [1977] ECR 1141, ECJ. The fact that national legislation adopted after the entry into force of the EC provisions has not been notified does not exclude it from the scope of the definition: see Case 100/63 Kalsbeck v Bestuur der Sociale Verzekeringsbank [1964] ECR 565, [1964] CMLR 548, ECJ; and Case 24/64 Dingemans v Bestuur der Sociale Verzekeringsbank [1964] ECR 647, [1965] CMLR 144, ECJ.

3    Ie those branches and schemes of social security covered by EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 4(1) or (2).

4    See ibid art 1(j) PARA 1. This provision has no practical application in the United Kingdom. The specified special non-contributory benefits are those covered by art 4(2a), as to which see PARA 460 ante.

5    See ibid art 1(j) PARA 2. This provision does not have the effect of exempting from the application of this regulation the schemes to which EC Council Regulation No 3 (OJ No 30, 16.12.58, p 561) applied: see EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 1(j) PARA 3.

Such a declaration must be notified and published in accordance with the provisions of art 97: see art 1(j) PARA 2. The notifications must be addressed to the president of the EC Council and indicate the date of entry into force of the laws and schemes in question or the date from which this regulation applies to the schemes mentioned in the declarations of the member states: art 97(1). Notification received in accordance with art 97(1) must be published in the Official Journal of the European Communities: art 97(2).

6    For the meaning of 'self-employed person' see PARA 457 ante.

7 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 1(j) PARA 4. The special schemes in question are specified in Annex II (as amended).

8 le the legislation and schemes referred to in ibid art 4(1), (2): see PARA 460 ante.

9 le those special non-contributory benefits referred to in art 4(2a): see PARA 460 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/12. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW/(4) SOCIAL SECURITY FOR MIGRANT PERSONS/(ii) Scope and General Provisions of Relevant EC Council Regulation/D. OTHER GENERAL PROVISIONS/462. International conventions.

462. International conventions.

As regards the persons and matters which it covers, the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup> replaces the provisions of any social security convention<sup>2</sup> binding either (1) two or more member states exclusively; or (2) at least two member states and one or more other states, where settlement of the cases concerned does not involve any institution of one of the latter states<sup>3</sup>. However, the regulation may not have the effect of reducing the benefits awarded by virtue of the legislation of a single member state<sup>4</sup>.

The provisions of certain conventions are specifically saved<sup>5</sup> and, as the need arises, two or more member states may conclude conventions with each other based on the principles and in the spirit of the regulation<sup>6</sup>.

1 The EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1): see generally para 454 ante. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante. As to the persons to whom this regulation applies see PARA 456 ante.

2 'Social security convention' means any bilateral or multilateral instrument which binds or will bind two or more member states exclusively, and any other multilateral instrument which binds or will bind at least two member states and one or more other states in the field of social security, for all or part of the branches and schemes set out in ibid art 4(1), (2) (see PARA 460 ante), together with agreements, of whatever kind, concluded pursuant to those instruments: art (1)(k).

3 Ibid art 6. Article 6 is subject to arts 7, 8, 46(4) (see text and notes 5-6 infra; and PARA 514 post): see art 6.

4 See Case C-227/89 Rönfeldt v Bundesversicherungsanstalt für Angestellte [1991] ECR I-323, [1993] 1 CMLR 73, ECJ ('benefits awarded by virtue of the legislation of a single member state' must mean not only benefits provided under national law alone, as formulated by national legislators, but also the benefits available under the provisions of the international social security conventions in force between two or more member states and incorporated in their national law, which have the effect of placing the worker concerned in a more favourable position than is accorded by the EC provisions), applying the principles of the decision in Case 24/75 Petroni v Office National des Pensions pour Travailleurs Salariés [1975] ECR 1149, distinguishing Case 82/72 Walder v Bestuur der Sociale Verzekeringsbank [1973] ECR 599, ECJ.

5 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 7. In particular, the regulation does not affect obligations arising from (1) any convention adopted by the International Labour Conference which, after ratification by one or more member states, have entered into force; or (2) from the European Interim Agreements on Social Security other than Schemes for Old Age, Invalidity and Survivors (Paris, 11 December 1953; TS 41 (1955); Cmd 9511): see EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 7(1). Article 7(2) contains savings for (a) the agreements concerning social security for Rhine boatmen; (b) the European Convention of 9 July 1956 concerning social security for workers in international transport (to which the United Kingdom is not a party); and (c) the social security conventions listed in Annex III. In Case 187/73 Callemeyn v Belgian State [1974] ECR 553, ECJ, the court held that, to the extent that the provisions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) were more advantageous to the person concerned than those of the European Interim Agreement, the regulation prevailed. See also Case 58/87 Rebmann v Bundesversicherungsanstalt für Angestellte [1988] ECR 3467, [1990] 1 CMLR 17, ECJ.

The provisions of EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) (see generally para 454 ante) replace the implementing provisions of the conventions saved by EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) Annex III. Except as otherwise provided in Annex III, the provisions of the conventions which remain in force pursuant to art 7(2)(c) (see head (c) supra), art 8(1) (see text and note 6 infra), apply to all persons to whom the regulation applies: see art 3(3).

As to International Labour Conventions see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 75.

6 Ibid art 8(1). Each member state must notify, in accordance with provisions of art 97(1), any convention concluded with another member state under the provisions of art 8(1): art 8(2).

NOTE 5--The saving in head (3) now refers to certain provisions of social security conventions entered into by the member states before the date of application of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 provided that they are more favourable to the beneficiaries or if they arise from specific historical circumstances and their effect is limited in time if these provisions are listed in Annex III: Regulation 1408/71 art 7(2)(c) (as amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 647/2005 (OJ L117, 4.5.2005, p 1)).

463. Admission to voluntary or optional continued insurance.

The provisions of the legislation<sup>1</sup> of any member state which make admission to voluntary or optional continued insurance conditional upon residence<sup>2</sup> in the territory of that state do not apply to persons resident in the territory of another member state, provided that at some time in their past working life they were subject to the legislation of the first state as employed or as self-employed persons<sup>3</sup>.

Where, under the legislation of a member state, admission to voluntary or optional continued insurance<sup>4</sup> is conditional upon completion of periods of insurance<sup>5</sup>, the periods of insurance or residence<sup>6</sup> completed under the legislation of another member state are to be taken into account, to the extent required, as if they were completed under the legislation of the first state<sup>7</sup>.

5 'Periods of insurance' means periods of contribution or periods of employment or self-employment as defined or recognised as periods of insurance by the legislation under which they were completed or considered as completed, and all periods treated as such, where they are regarded by that legislation as equivalent to periods of insurance: EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 1(r).

'Periods of employment' and 'periods of self-employment' mean periods so defined or recognised by the legislation under which they were completed, and all periods treated as such, where they are regarded by that legislation as equivalent to periods of employment or of self-employment: art 1(s).

6 'Periods of residence' means periods of residence as defined or recognised as such by the legislation under which they were completed or considered as completed: ibid art 1(sa).

Prohibition of residence conditions in certain cases.

Save as otherwise provided in the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup>, invalidity<sup>2</sup>, old age<sup>3</sup> or survivors' cash benefits<sup>4</sup>, pensions<sup>5</sup> for accidents at work or occupational diseases<sup>6</sup>, death grants and lump-sum benefits granted in cases of remarriage of a surviving spouse who was entitled to a survivor's pension which are acquired<sup>7</sup> under the legislation<sup>8</sup> of one or more member states may not be subject to any reduction, modification, suspension, withdrawal or confiscation by reason of the fact that the recipient resides<sup>9</sup> in the territory of a member state other than that in which the institution<sup>10</sup> responsible for payment is situated<sup>11</sup>.

Where under the legislation of a member state reimbursement of contributions is conditional upon the person concerned having ceased to be subject to compulsory insurance, that condition is not considered satisfied as long as the person concerned is subject to compulsory insurance as an employed or self-employed person<sup>12</sup> under the legislation of another member state<sup>13</sup>.

By way of exception to the provisions set out above, persons to whom the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons applies may be granted the special non-contributory cash benefits<sup>14</sup> exclusively in the territory of the member state in which they reside, in accordance with the legislation of that state, provided that such benefits are appropriately listed<sup>15</sup>; such benefits may be granted by and at the expense of the institution of the place of residence<sup>16</sup>. The institution of a member state under whose legislation entitlement to such benefits is subject to the completion of periods of employment, self-employment or residence must regard, to the extent necessary, periods of employment, self-employment or residence completed in the territory of any other member state as periods completed in the territory of the first member state<sup>17</sup>. Where entitlement to such benefits is granted in the form of a supplement and is subject, under the legislation of a member state, to receipt of certain benefits<sup>18</sup>, and no such benefit is due under that legislation, any corresponding benefit granted under the legislation of any other member state is to be treated as a benefit granted under the legislation of the first member state for the purposes of entitlement to the supplement<sup>19</sup>.

Where such a special non-contributory benefit is a disability or invalidity benefit, and is subject, under the legislation of a member state, to the condition that the disability or invalidity should be diagnosed for the first time in the territory of that member state, this condition is deemed to be fulfilled where the diagnosis is made for the first time in the territory of another member state<sup>20</sup>.

465 Prohibition of residence conditions in certain cases

TEXT AND NOTE 16--EC Council Regulation 1408/71 art 10a(1) replaced by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 647/2005 (OJ L117, 4.5.2005, p 1). The provisions of Regulation 1408/71 art 10 and Title III (arts 18-79) do not apply to the special non-contributory cash benefits referred to in art 4(2a): art 10a(1). The persons to whom Regulation 1408/71 applies must receive these benefits exclusively in the territory of the member state in which they reside and under the legislation of that state, in so far as these benefits are mentioned in Annex IIa: art 10a(1). Benefits must be paid by, and at the expense of, the institution of the place of residence: art 10a(1).

Attendance allowance is a special non-contributory benefit which is governed exclusively by the system of co-ordination established by art 10a so that a person granted the allowance after the provisions came into force will no longer be entitled to the benefit if he emigrates to another member state: Case C-297/96 Partridge v Adjudication Officer (1998) Times, 2 July, ECJ. In the case of a worker returning from abroad, art 10a precludes a member state from making entitlement to the prescribed benefits conditional on habitual residence in that state: Case C-90/97 Swaddling v Adjudication Officer [1999] All ER (EC) 217, ECJ. However, in cases concerning persons from outside the European Community, English courts may call for a period of residence in the United Kingdom as a condition of habitual residence under domestic law: Gingi v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions [2001] EWCA Civ 1685, [2002] 1 CMLR 587. See also R (on the application of Couronne) v Crawley BC; R (on the application of Bontemps) v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions [2007] EWCA Civ 1086, [2008] 1 WLR 2762, [2007] All ER (D) 50 (Nov). National legislation that applies arts 4(2a) and 10a and provides that a special non-contributory benefit may be granted only to persons who are resident in the national territory is not precluded by EC Treaty art 39: Case C-287/05 Hendrix v Raad van Bestuur van het Uitvoeringsinstituut Werknemersverzekeringen [2007] 3 CMLR 1251, [2007] All ER (D) 54 (Sep), ECJ.

The EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup> can neither confer nor maintain the right to several benefits<sup>2</sup> of the same kind for one and the same period of compulsory insurance<sup>3</sup>. This provision however does not apply to benefits in respect of invalidity<sup>4</sup>, old age<sup>5</sup>, death (pensions<sup>6</sup>) or occupational disease<sup>7</sup> which are awarded, pursuant to specified provisions<sup>8</sup>, by the institutions<sup>9</sup> of two or more member states<sup>10</sup>.

EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW/(4) SOCIAL SECURITY FOR MIGRANT PERSONS/(ii) Scope and General Provisions of Relevant EC Council Regulation/D. OTHER GENERAL PROVISIONS/468. Application of national overlapping benefits provisions.

468. Application of national overlapping benefits provisions.

Save as otherwise provided by the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup>, the provisions of the legislation<sup>2</sup> of a member state governing the reduction, suspension or withdrawal of benefits<sup>3</sup> in cases of overlapping with other social security benefits or any other form of income<sup>4</sup> may be invoked even where such benefits were acquired under the legislation of another member state or where such income was acquired in the territory of another member state<sup>5</sup>.

The provisions of the legislation of a member state for reduction, suspension or withdrawal of benefit in the case of a person in receipt of invalidity benefits or anticipatory old age benefits pursuing a professional or trade activity may be invoked against that person even if he is pursuing his activity in the territory of another member state<sup>6</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'legislation' see PARA 461 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'benefits' see PARA 460 ante.

4 As to the United Kingdom provisions relating to overlapping of benefits see PARA 511 post.

5 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 12(2). This provision only applies to benefits acquired through the application of this regulation: see Case 34/69 Caisse d'assurance vieillesse des travailleurs salariés de Paris v Duffy [1969] ECR 597, [1971] CMLR 391, ECJ. In the case of benefits acquired solely by virtue of national legislation, national rules against overlapping may continue to apply: see Case 83/77 Naselli v Caisse Auxiliaire d'Assurance Maladie-Invalidité supra; Case 98/77 Schaap v Bestuur van de Bedrijfsvereniging voor Banken Verzekeringswezen, Groothandel en Vrije Beroepen supra; Case 105/77 Bestuur van de Sociale Verzekeringsbank v Boerboom-Kersjes supra; Case 26/78 Institut National d'Assurance Maladie-Invalidité v Viola supra; and Joined Cases 116, 117, 119-121/8 Rijksdienst voor Werknemerspensionen v Celestre [1981] ECR 1737, [1983] 1 CMLR 252, ECJ.

Where the benefits due under the legislation of two or more member states are conditional upon mutual reductions, suspensions or withdrawals, the amounts which would not be paid in strict application of the provisions concerning reduction, suspension or withdrawal provided for by the legislation of the member states concerned must be divided by the number of benefits subject to reduction, suspension or withdrawal: EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 7(1). As to the citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 11 ante. For the purposes of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) arts 12(2), (3), (4), 46a, 46b, 46c, the competent institutions (see PARA 455 ante) concerned must, on request, provide each other with all appropriate information: EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 7(2).

6 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 12(3).

Special provision is made for the reduction of invalidity pensions payable under Netherlands legislation in certain cases; an invalidity pension payable under Netherlands legislation, in a case where the Netherlands institution is bound under the provisions of art 57(5) or art 60(2)(b) to contribute also to the cost of benefits for occupational disease granted under the legislation of another member state, must be reduced by the amount payable to the institution of the other member state which is responsible for granting the benefits for occupational disease: art 12(4).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/12. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW/(4) SOCIAL SECURITY FOR MIGRANT PERSONS/(iii) Determination of the Legislation Applicable/469. Legislation of single member state to apply.

(iii) Determination of the Legislation Applicable

469. Legislation of single member state to apply.

Subject to one exception, persons to whom the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup> applies<sup>2</sup> are subject to the legislation<sup>3</sup> of a single member state only, such legislation being determined in accordance with the provisions of Title II of that regulation<sup>4</sup>.

The exception to the above is that a person who is simultaneously employed<sup>5</sup> in the territory of one member state and self-employed<sup>6</sup> in the territory of another is subject to the legislation of the member state in the territory of which he is engaged in paid employment<sup>7</sup> unless he falls within certain specified instances<sup>8</sup>, in which case he is subject to (1) the legislation of the member state in the territory of which he is engaged in paid employment<sup>9</sup> where he pursues such an activity in the territory of two or more member states; and (2) the legislation of the member state in the territory of which he is self-employed<sup>10</sup> where he pursues such an activity in the territory of two or more member states<sup>11</sup>.

A person to whom the legislation of a member state ceases to be applicable, without the legislation of another member state becoming applicable to him, is subject to the legislation of the member state in whose territory he resides in accordance with the provisions of that legislation alone<sup>12</sup>.

1 The EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1): see generally para 454 ante. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante.

2 As to the persons to whom EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) applies see PARA 456 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'legislation' see PARA 461 ante.

4 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 13(1). The purpose of this rule, which is a choice of law provision, is both to avoid any plurality or purposeless overlapping of contributions and liabilities which would result from the simultaneous or alternative application of several legislative systems, and to prevent those concerned, in the absence of legislation applying to them, from remaining without protection: Case 50/75 Caisse de Pension des Employés Privés v Massonet [1975] ECR 1473, ECJ. The rule does not prohibit a member state other than that in which the person concerned is employed from applying its social security legislation to him unless it requires him to contribute to the financing of an institution which would not accord him with any supplementary social security protection in respect of the same risk and for the same period: Case 92/63 Nonnenmacher v Bestuur der Sociale Verzekeringsbank [1964] ECR 281, [1964] CMLR 338, ECJ.

EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) Title II (arts 13-17a) (as amended) constitutes a complete and uniform system of choice of law rules and the substantive legal system to which it points has exclusive application. Since no other legal system may be applied (whether by renvoi or otherwise), coverage by the selected system may not be excluded on grounds which are improper in the eyes of European Community law: Case C-196/90 Fonds voor Arbeidsongevallen v De Paep [1991] ECR I-4815, [1993] 3 CMLR 593, ECJ. See also Case 302/84 Ten Holder v Nieuwe Algemene Bedrijfsvereniging [1986] ECR 1821, [1987] 2 CMLR 208, ECJ.

EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 13 and the associated provisions of arts 14-14d do not apply to voluntary insurance or to optional continued insurance unless, in respect of one of the branches of social security referred to in art 4 (as to which see PARA 460 ante), there exists in any member state only a voluntary scheme of insurance: art 15(1).

As to the rules for determining the legislation applicable see PARA 470 et seq post.

5 For the meaning of 'employed person' see PARA 457 ante. See also Case C-340/94 EJM de Jaeck v Staatssecretaris van Financiën [1997] 2 CMLR 779, ECJ (for purposes of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) arts 14a, 14c, 'employed' and 'self-employed' are to be interpreted in accordance with the legislation of the member state in whose territory activities are pursued).

6 For the meaning of 'self-employed person' see PARA 457 ante. See also note 5 supra.

7 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 14c(a). If a person is employed in two or more states, the provisions of art 14(2), (3) (as to which see PARA 470 post) apply: see art 14c(a).

8 In cases mentioned in ibid Annex VII: see art 14c(b). See also art 14d(2) dealing with the rates of contributions to be charged in such cases.

9 That legislation having been determined in accordance with the provisions of ibid art 14(2), (3) (as to which see PARA 470 post).

10 That legislation having been determined in accordance with ibid art 14a(2), (3) or (4) (as to which see PARA 471 post).

11 Ibid art 14c(b). The person referred to in art 14c(b) is treated for the purposes of determining the rates of contributions to be charged to self-employed workers under the legislation of the member state in whose territory he is self-employed, as if he pursued his paid employment in the territory of the member state concerned: art 14d(2). See also Case C-340/94 EJM de Jaeck v Staatssecretaris van Financiën [1997] 2 CMLR 779, ECJ (EC law does not preclude legislation of one of two member states from insuring claimant against some only of risks covered by scheme, subject to there being no discrimination).

12 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 13(1)(f). This provision reverses the European Court of Justice's ruling in Case 302/84 Ten Holder v Nieuwe Algemene Bedrijfsvereniging [1986] ECR 1821, [1987] 2 CMLR 208, ECJ, applied eg in Case C-215/90 Chief Adjudication Officer v Twomey [1992] ECR I-1823, [1992] 2 CMLR 571, ECJ, under which the last applicable legislation continued to apply, irrespective of residence, until displaced by the legislation of another member state under the provisions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) Title II (arts 13-17a).

470. The legislation applicable to employed persons.

A person employed<sup>1</sup> in the territory of one member state is subject to the legislation<sup>2</sup> of that state even if he resides<sup>3</sup> in the territory of another member state or if the registered office or place of business of the undertaking or individual employing him is situated in the territory of another member state<sup>4</sup>. This provisions applies, however, subject to the following exceptions and circumstances:

- 1180 (1) a person employed in the territory of a member state by an undertaking to which he is normally attached who is posted by that undertaking to the territory of another member state to perform work there for that undertaking continues to be subject to the legislation of the first member state, provided that the anticipated duration of that work does not exceed 12 months and that he is not sent to replace another person who has completed his term of posting<sup>5</sup>;
- 1181 (2) a person normally employed in the territory of two or more member states is subject to the legislation determined as follows:

181. (b) a person other than one referred to in head (a) above is subject (i) to the legislation of the member state in whose territory he resides, if he pursues his activity partly in that territory or if he is attached to several undertakings or several employers who have their registered offices or places of business in the territory of different member states; (ii) to the legislation of the member state in whose territory is situated the registered office or place of business of the undertaking or individual employing him, if he does not reside in the territory of any member states where he is pursuing his activity<sup>6</sup>;

The state of residence may not levy contributions under its own social legislation on a person's remuneration in respect of work performed in another member state which is thus subject to the legislation of that state: see Case 102/76 HOAGM Perenboom v Inspecteur der Directe Belastingen of Nijmegen [1977] ECR 815, ECJ. See Case 35/70 Sàrl Manpower v Caisse primaire d'assurance maladie, Strasbourg [1970] ECR 1251, [1971] CMLR 222, ECJ, where the court held that this provision applies to a person who is engaged by an undertaking pursuing its activity in a member state, is paid by that undertaking, is answerable to it for misconduct, is able to be dismissed by it and who, on behalf of that undertaking, performs work temporarily in another undertaking in another member state. See also Case 19/67 Bestuur der Sociale Verzekeringsbank v Van der Vecht [1967] ECR 345, [1968] CMLR 151, ECJ.

However, if the duration of the work to be done extends beyond the duration originally anticipated, owing to unforeseeable circumstances, and exceeds 12 months, the legislation of the first member state continues to apply until the completion of such work, provided that the competent authority of the member state in whose territory the person concerned is posted or the body designated by that authority gives its consent; such consent must be requested before the end of the initial 12-month period: EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 14(1)(b). Such consent cannot however be given for a period exceeding 12 months: art 14(1)(b). See also PARA 469 note 4 ante. A person who is permanently resident in one member state but who occasionally pursues his activity in another is subject to the legislation of the first member state only in so far as he is affiliated to the social security scheme of that state; otherwise he is subject to the legislation of the state in which he occasionally pursues his activity: Case 8/75 Caisse Primaire d'Assurance Maladie de Sélestat v Association du Foot-Ball Club d'Andlau [1975] ECR 739, [1975] 2 CMLR 383, ECJ. 7 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 14(3). A person referred to in art 14(2), (3) (see heads (2)-(3) in the text), art 14a(2), (3), (4) (see PARA 471 post), art 14c(a) (see PARA 469 ante) is treated, for the purposes of application of the legislation laid down in accordance with these provisions, as if he pursued all his professional activity or activities in the territory of the member state concerned: art 14d(1).

471. Self-employed persons.

A person who is self-employed<sup>1</sup> in the territory of one member state is subject to the legislation<sup>2</sup> of that state even if he resides<sup>3</sup> in the territory of another member state<sup>4</sup>. This provision applies, however, subject to the following exceptions and circumstances:

- 1183 (1) a person normally self-employed in the territory of a member state and who performs work in the territory of another member state continues to be subject to the legislation of the first member state, provided that the anticipated duration of the work does not exceed 12 months<sup>5</sup>;
- 1184 (2) a person normally self-employed in the territory of two or more member states is subject to the legislation of the member state in whose territory he resides if he pursues any part of his activity in the territory of that member state, but if he does not pursue any activity in the territory of the member state in which he resides, he is subject to the legislation of the member state in whose territory he pursues his main activity<sup>6</sup>;
- 1185 (3) a person who is self-employed in an undertaking which has its registered office or place of business in the territory of one member state and which straddles the common frontier of two member states is subject to the legislation of the member state in whose territory the undertaking has its registered office or place of business<sup>7</sup>.

Where, in the case of a person referred to in heads (2) or (3) above, the legislation to which he is thus subject does not enable him, even on a voluntary basis, to join a pension scheme, the person is subject to the legislation of the other member state which would apply apart from these particular provisions, or should the legislations of two or more member states apply in this way, he is subject to the legislation decided on by common agreement amongst the member states concerned or their competent authorities<sup>8</sup>.

5 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 14a(1)(a). Such consent cannot, however, be given for a period exceeding 12 months: art 14a(1)(b).

477. Administration.

The EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup> and on the procedure for implementation of the same<sup>2</sup> make extensive provision for their administration at both European Community and national level<sup>3</sup>. In particular, the competent authorities<sup>4</sup> of member states are required to communicate to each other all information regarding measures taken to implement the migrant persons regulation and changes in their legislation<sup>5</sup> which are likely to affect that implementation<sup>6</sup>. Further, for the purposes of implementing those provisions the authorities and institutions<sup>7</sup> of member states are required to lend their good offices and act as though implementing their own legislation<sup>8</sup>. The Advisory Committee is empowered, at the request of either the EC Commission or the Administrative Commission or on its own initiative:

- 1199 (1) to examine general questions or questions of principle and problems arising from the implementation of certain regulations<sup>3</sup>; and
- 1200 (2) to formulate opinions on the subject for the Administrative Commission and proposals for any revision of the regulations<sup>4</sup>.

480. Structure of Title III of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons.

Title III of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup> is divided into eight chapters, dealing respectively with sickness and maternity benefits<sup>2</sup>, invalidity benefits<sup>3</sup>, old age and death (pensions) benefits<sup>4</sup>, benefits in respect of accidents at work and occupational diseases<sup>5</sup>, death grants<sup>6</sup>, unemployment benefits<sup>7</sup>, family benefits<sup>8</sup> and benefits for dependent children of pensioners and for orphans<sup>9</sup>. Each chapter contains those provisions which apply solely to the particular type of benefit concerned and the articles must be read in that context.

(A) COMMON PROVISIONS

481. Aggregation of contributions.

The competent institution<sup>1</sup> of a member state whose legislation<sup>2</sup> makes the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to benefits conditional upon the completion of periods of insurance<sup>3</sup>, employment<sup>4</sup> or residence<sup>5</sup> must, to the extent necessary, take account of periods of insurance, employment or residence completed under the legislation of any other member state as if they were periods completed under the legislation which it administers<sup>6</sup>. This provision applies to seasonal workers<sup>7</sup>, even in respect of periods prior to any break in insurance exceeding the period allowed by the legislation of the competent state<sup>8</sup>, provided, however, that the person concerned has not ceased to be insured for a period exceeding four months<sup>9</sup>.

If an employed or self-employed person<sup>10</sup> or a member of his family<sup>11</sup> is entitled to claim maternity benefits under the legislation of two or more member states, those benefits are granted exclusively under the legislation of the member state in whose territory the confinement took place or, if the confinement did not take place in the territory of one of these member states, exclusively under the legislation of the member state to which the person concerned was last subject<sup>12</sup>.

If an employed or self-employed person is entitled to claim sickness benefits under the legislation of Ireland and the United Kingdom for the same period of incapacity for work, those benefits are granted exclusively under the legislation of the member state to which the person concerned was last subject<sup>13</sup>.

In order to invoke the provisions of art 18, the claimant must submit to the competent institution a certified statement, issued at his request by the institution or institutions of the member state to whose legislation he was last subject, specifying the periods of insurance completed under the legislation to which he was last subject: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 16. #### 482. Further provisions for aggregation of contributions.

For the purposes of aggregating periods of insurance<sup>1</sup> and residence<sup>2</sup> in order to satisfy national conditions for entitlement to certain benefits<sup>3</sup>, the EC Council Regulation on the implementation of social security for migrant persons<sup>4</sup> lays down the following rules:

- 1201 (1) to periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation<sup>5</sup> of one member state must be added periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of any other member state, to the extent that this is necessary to have recourse thereto in order to supplement periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of the first member state for the purpose of acquiring, retaining, or recovering the rights to benefits, provided that such periods of insurance or residence do not overlap<sup>6</sup>;
- 1202 (2) when a period of insurance or residence completed under compulsory insurance under the legislation of one member state coincides with a period of insurance completed under voluntary or optional continued insurance under the legislation of another member state, only the period completed under compulsory insurance is taken into account<sup>7</sup>;
- 1203 (3) when a period of insurance or residence, other than a period treated as such, completed under the legislation of one member state coincides with a period treated as such under the legislation of another member state, only the period other than a period treated as such is taken into account<sup>8</sup>;
- 1204 (4) any period treated as such under the legislation of two or more member states must be taken into account only by the institution of the member state under whose legislation the insured person was last compulsorily insured prior to that period<sup>9</sup>;
- 1205 (5) where it is not possible to determine accurately the period of time in which certain periods of insurance or residence were completed under the legislation of one member state, such periods must be presumed not to overlap with periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of another member state and, where advantageous, must be taken into account<sup>10</sup>;
- 1206 (6) where, under the legislation of one member state, certain periods of insurance or residence are taken into account only if they have been completed within a specified time limit, the institution which administers that legislation must:

182. (a) only take into account periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of another member state if they were completed within the specified time limit; or
183. (b) Extend the time limit for the duration of periods of insurance or residence completed wholly or partly within that limit under the legislation of another member state, where the periods of insurance or residence involved under the legislation of the second member state give rise only to the suspension of the time limit within which the periods of insurance or residence must be completed<sup>11</sup>.

Periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of a member state to which the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>12</sup> does not apply but which are taken into account under the legislation of that member state to which that regulation does apply<sup>13</sup>, are considered as periods of insurance or residence to be taken into account for the purposes of aggregation<sup>14</sup>.

When periods of insurance completed under the legislation of one member state are expressed in units different from those used by the legislation of another member state, special provisions apply for making the conversion necessary for the purposes of aggregation<sup>15</sup>.

These provisions for aggregation prevent the institution of a member state from applying national rules for the aggregation and apportionment of periods of insurance which are less favourable to the person concerned than the relevant community provisions<sup>16</sup>.

(B) RULES FOR PARTICULAR CLAIMANTS

(a) Employed or Self-employed Persons and Members of their Families

483. Effect of residence in a member state other than the competent state: general rules.

An employed or self-employed person<sup>1</sup> residing<sup>2</sup> in the territory of a member state other than the competent state<sup>3</sup> who satisfies the conditions of the legislation<sup>4</sup> of that state for entitlement to benefits<sup>5</sup> is entitled to receive in the state in which he is resident:

- 1207 (1) benefits in kind<sup>6</sup> provided on behalf of the competent institution<sup>7</sup> by the institution of the place of residence<sup>8</sup> in accordance with the provisions of the legislation administered by that institution as though he were insured with it<sup>9</sup>;
- 1208 (2) cash benefits provided by the competent institution in accordance with the legislation which it administers.

However, by agreement between the competent institution and the institution of the place of residence, benefits under head (2) above may be provided by the latter institution on behalf of the former, in accordance with the legislation of the competent state<sup>10</sup>.

These provisions apply by analogy to members of the family<sup>11</sup> who reside in the territory of a member state other than the competent state in so far as they are not entitled to such benefits under the legislation of the state in whose territory they reside<sup>12</sup>. Where the members of the family reside in the territory of a member state under whose legislation the right to receive benefits in kind is not subject to conditions of insurance or employment, benefits in kind which they receive are considered as being on behalf of the institution with which the employed or self-employed person is insured, unless the spouse or the person looking after the children pursues a professional or trade activity in the territory of that member state<sup>13</sup>.

1 'Frontier worker' means any employed or self-employed person (as to which see PARA 457 ante) who pursues his occupation in the territory of a member state and resides in the territory of another member state to which he returns as a rule daily or at least once a week; however, a frontier worker who is posted elsewhere in the territory of the same or another member state by the undertaking to which he is normally attached, or who engages in the provision of services elsewhere in the territory of the same or another member state, retains the status of frontier worker for a period not exceeding four months, even if he is prevented, during that period, from returning daily or at least once a week to the place where he resides: EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 1(b). 485 Stay in or transfer of residence to the competent state

NOTE 8--EC Council Regulation 574/72 art 19a amended: European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 631/2004 (OJ L100, 6.4.2004, p 1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/12. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW/(4) SOCIAL SECURITY FOR MIGRANT PERSONS/(v) Particular Benefits/B. SICKNESS AND MATERNITY BENEFITS/(B) Rules for Particular Claimants/(a) Employed or Self-employed Persons and Members of their Families/486. Benefits during stay outside the competent state.

486. Benefits during stay outside the competent state.

An employed or self-employed person<sup>1</sup> who satisfies the conditions of the legislation<sup>2</sup> of the competent state<sup>3</sup> for entitlement to benefits<sup>4</sup> and (1) whose condition necessitates immediate benefits during a stay in the territory of another member state<sup>5</sup>; or (2) who, having become entitled to benefits chargeable to the competent institution<sup>6</sup>, is authorised by that institution to return to the territory of the member state where he resides<sup>7</sup>, or to transfer to the territory of another member state<sup>8</sup>; or (3) who is authorised by the competent institution to go to the territory of another member state to receive there the treatment appropriate to his condition<sup>9</sup>, is entitled:

- 1209 (a) to benefits in kind<sup>10</sup> provided on behalf of the competent institution by the institution of the place of stay or residence<sup>11</sup> in accordance with the provisions of the legislation which it administers, as though he were insured with it; the length of the period during which benefits are provided is governed, however, by the legislation of the competent state<sup>12</sup>;
- 1210 (b) to cash benefits provided by the competent institution in accordance with the provisions of the legislation which it administers. However, by agreement between the competent institution of the place of stay or residence, such benefits may be provided by the latter institution on behalf of the former, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation of the competent state<sup>13</sup>.

These provisions apply by analogy to members of the family<sup>14</sup> of an employed or self-employed person<sup>15</sup>, and the fact that they apply to an employed or self-employed person does not affect the right to benefit of members of his family<sup>16</sup>.

The right of a pensioner who is entitled to benefits in kind under the legislation of a member state and who does not pursue a professional or trade activity to be authorised by the competent institution to go to another member state to receive there the treatment appropriate to his condition is subject to the provisions of head (1) above<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'employed person' and 'self-employed person' see PARA 457 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'legislation' see PARA 461 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'competent state' see PARA 455 ante.

4 I.e. taking account, where appropriate, of the provisions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 18: see PARA 481 ante. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante.

5 Ibid art 22(1)(a). This provision also applies to persons who are nationals of a member state and are insured under the legislation of a member state and to the members of their families residing with them: see art 22a.

The reason why the person concerned is in another member state is irrelevant: Case 75/63 Hoekstra v Bestuur der Bedrijfsvereniging voor Detailhandel en Ambachten [1964] ECR 177, [1964] CMLR 319, ECJ.

An employed or self-employed person referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) arts 13(2)(d), 14, 14a, 14b, 14c(a) or 17, and members of the family accompanying him also benefit from the provisions of art 22(1)(a) for any condition requiring benefits during a stay in the territory of the member state in which the worker is employed or whose flag the vessel aboard which the worker is employed is flying: art 22b. A person, as referred to in arts 22(1), (3), 22a, who stays in a member state other than the competent state to study there or receive vocational training leading to a qualification officially recognised by the authorities of a member state, and the members of his family accompanying him during his stay, are covered by the provisions of art 22(1)(a) for any condition necessitating benefits during the stay in the territory of the member state where such person is studying or training: art 22c (added by EC Council Regulation 1290/97 (OJ L176, 4.7.97, p 1)).

6 For the meaning of 'competent institution' see PARA 455 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'residence' see PARA 459 note 2 ante.

8 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(1)(b). Such authorisation may be refused only if it is established that movement of the person concerned would be prejudicial to his state of health or the receipt of medical treatment: art 22(2) PARA 1.

9 Ibid art 22(1)(c). The authorisation required under art 22(1)(c) must be issued by the institution of the member state in whose territory the members of the family are residing: art 22(3)(b). This provision also applies to persons who are nationals of a member state and are insured under the legislation of a member state and to the members of their families residing with them: see art 22a.

The authorisation may not be refused where the treatment in question is among the benefits provided for by the legislation of the member state in whose territory the person concerned resides and where he cannot be given such treatment within the time normally necessary for obtaining the treatment in question in the member state of residence, taking account of his current state of health and the probable course of the disease: art 22(2) PARA 2. 'Treatment in question' in this provision refers to any appropriate treatment of the sickness or disease from which the person concerned suffers: Case 117/77 Bestuur van het Algemeen Ziekenfonds Drenthe-Platteland v Pierik [1978] ECR 825, [1978] 3 CMLR 343, ECJ. The duty to grant the authorisation under EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(1)(c) covers both cases where the treatment provided in another member state is more effective than that which the person concerned can receive in the member state where he resides and those in which the treatment in question cannot be provided in the territory of that state: see Case 117/77 Bestuur van het Algemeen Ziekenfonds Drenthe-Platteland v Pierik supra. Where the institution acknowledges that the treatment in question constitutes a necessary and effective treatment affecting the person concerned, the conditions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(2) PARA 2 are fulfilled and the competent institution may not refuse the authorisation: Case 182/78 Bestuur van het Algemeen Ziekenfonds Drenthe-Platteland v Pierik [1979] ECR 1977, [1980] 2 CMLR 88, ECJ.

10 As to the meaning of 'benefits in kind' see PARA 483 note 6 ante.

11 For the meaning of 'institution of the place of stay' and 'institution of the place of residence' see PARA 455 ante.

12 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(1)(i). This provision refers to any benefits which the institution of the member state to which the person concerned goes after obtaining the necessary authorisation has the power to grant, even if it is not required to provide them under the legislation which it administers: Case 182/78 Bestuur van het Algemeen Ziekenfonds Drenthe-Platteland v Pierik [1979] ECR 1977, [1980] 2 CMLR 88, ECJ.

In order to receive benefits in kind under EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(1)(a)(i) (head (1)(a) in the text), save in the case referred to in EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 20, an employed or self-employed person must submit to the institution of the place of stay a certified statement, issued at his request by the competent institution if possible before he leaves his state of residence, stating that he is entitled to benefits in kind and specifying in particular, where necessary, the maximum period during which, under the legislation of the competent state, those benefits may be granted and if the person concerned does not submit the said certified statement, the institution of the place of stay must obtain it from the competent institution: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 21(1). As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 11 ante. For the corresponding provisions in the case of persons employed in international transport see art 20. In order to receive benefits in kind under EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(1)(b)(i), (c)(i) (heads (2)(a), (3)(a) in the text), the claimant must submit a similar certified statement, under the same conditions, to the institution of the place of residence: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 22.

13 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(1)(ii). The procedure for claiming cash benefits is the same as that prescribed in art 18 (see PARA 483 ante): art 24.

14 For the meaning of 'members of the family' see PARA 458 ante.

15 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(3). However, for the purpose of applying art 22(1)(a), (c)(i) to the members of the family referred to in art 19(2) (as to which see PARA 483 ante) who reside in the territory of a member state other than the one in whose territory the employed or self-employed person resides, benefits in kind are provided on behalf of the institution of the member state in whose territory the members of the family are residing by the institution of the place of stay in accordance with the provisions of the legislation which it administers as if the employed or self-employed person were insured there. The period during which benefits are provided is, however, that laid down under the legislation of the member state in whose territory the members of the family are residing: art 22(3)(a). The provisions of EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) arts 21, 22 (see note 12 supra) apply by analogy, as appropriate, in respect of the granting of benefits in kind to members of the family as provided for in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 22(3). However, in the cases referred to in art 22(3) PARA 2, the institution of the place of residence and the legislation of the country of residence of the members of the family must be considered, respectively, as the competent institution and as the legislation of the competent state for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) arts 17(6), (7), (9), 21, 22: art 23.

486 Benefits during stay outside the competent state

NOTE 5--As to the interpretation of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 art 22(1)(a) with regard to health care in conjunction with pregnancy and childbirth see EC Commission Decision 2002/155 (OJ L54, 25.2.2002, p 39).

Regulation 1408/71 arts 22(1)(a), 22a replaced, art 22(1a) inserted, art 22b deleted: European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 631/2004 (OJ L100, 6.4.2004, p 1). Head (1) now refers to a person whose condition requires benefits in kind which become necessary on medical grounds during a stay in the territory of another member state, taking into account the nature of the benefits and the expected length of the stay: art 22(1)(a). The Administrative Commission must establish a list of benefits in kind which, in order to be provided during a stay in another member state, require, for practical reasons, a prior agreement between the person concerned and the institution providing the care: art 22(1a).

NOTE 9--The competent institution may not refuse an authorisation under EC Council Regulation 1408/71 art 22(1)(c) unless it can establish that time the person will have to wait does not exceed a period which is acceptable on the basis of an objective medical assessment of his clinical needs: Case C-372/04 R (on the application of Watts) v Bedford Primary Care Trust [2006] QB 667, ECJ.

NOTES 12, 15--EC Council Regulation 574/72 art 20 deleted, art 21 replaced, arts 22, 23 amended: European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 631/2004 (OJ L100, 6.4.2004, p 1).

487. Calculation of cash benefits.

The competent institution<sup>1</sup> of a member state whose legislation<sup>2</sup> provides that the calculation of cash benefits is to be based on average earnings or contributions, must determine those average earnings or contributions exclusively by reference to earnings or contributions completed under that legislation<sup>3</sup>.

The competent institution of a member state whose legislation provides that the calculation of cash benefits is to be based on standard earnings, must take account exclusively of the standard earnings or, where appropriate, of the average of standard earnings completed under that legislation<sup>4</sup>.

The competent institution of a member state under whose legislation the amount of cash benefits varies with the number of members of the family<sup>5</sup> must also take into account the members of the family of the person concerned who are resident<sup>6</sup> in the territory of another member state as if they were resident in the territory of the competent state<sup>7</sup>.

501. Benefits conditional upon origin of illness; maximum periods for granting of benefits.

Where, under the legislation<sup>1</sup> of a member state, the granting of benefits<sup>2</sup> is conditional upon the origin of the illness, that condition does not apply to employed or self-employed persons<sup>3</sup> or to the members of their families<sup>4</sup> to whom the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>5</sup> applies<sup>6</sup>, regardless of the member states in whose territory they reside<sup>7</sup>.

Where the legislation of a member state fixes a maximum period for the granting of benefits, the institution<sup>8</sup> which administers that legislation may, where appropriate, take account of the period during which the benefits have already been provided by the institution of another member state for the same case of sickness or maternity<sup>9</sup>.

If an employed or self-employed person or a member of his family is entitled to claim maternity benefits under the legislations of two or more member states, those benefits must be granted exclusively under the legislation of the member state in whose territory the confinement took place or, if the confinement did not take place in one of those member states, exclusively under the legislation of the member state to which the employed or self-employed person was last subject<sup>10</sup>. If an employed or self-employed person is entitled to claim sickness benefits under the legislation of the United Kingdom and Ireland for the same period of incapacity for work, those benefits are granted exclusively under the legislation of the member state to which the person concerned was last subject<sup>11</sup>.

C. INVALIDITY BENEFITS

502. Entitlement to invalidity benefits.

The rules for determining entitlement to invalidity benefits<sup>1</sup> are contained in Chapter 2 of Title III of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>2</sup>. An employed person or a self-employed person<sup>3</sup> who has been successively or alternately subject to the legislation of two or more member states and who has completed periods of insurance<sup>4</sup> exclusively under legislation<sup>5</sup> according to which the amount of invalidity benefits is independent of the duration of periods of insurance is entitled to receive benefits in accordance with the provisions<sup>6</sup> of that regulation<sup>7</sup>.

An employed person or a self-employed person who has been successively or alternately subject to the legislation of two or more member states, of which at least one is not of the type referred to above<sup>8</sup> is entitled to receive such benefits<sup>9</sup>. However, an employed or self-employed person who suffers incapacity for work leading to invalidity while subject to a listed legislation<sup>10</sup> is entitled to receive benefits in accordance with the above but on the following conditions:

- 1223 (1) that he satisfies the conditions of that legislation or other legislation of the same type<sup>11</sup> but without having recourse to periods of insurance completed under legislation not so listed; and
- 1224 (2) that he does not satisfy the conditions required for the acquisition of the right to invalidity benefits under a legislation not so listed; and
- 1225 (3) that he does not assert any claims<sup>12</sup> to old age benefits<sup>13</sup>.

1 Invalidity benefits include those provided by national provisions granting benefits to the handicapped to the extent that those provisions concern persons to whom EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) applies: see Case 187/73 Callemeyn v Belgian State [1974] ECR 553, ECJ; Case 39/74 Costa v Belgian State [1974] ECR 1251, ECJ; Case 7/75 F v Belgian State [1975] ECR 679, [1975] 2 CMLR 442, ECJ. See also Case 24/64 Dingemans v Bestuur der Sociale Verzekeringsbank [1964] ECR 647, [1965] CMLR 144, ECJ. As to national legislations concerning invalidity benefits to which EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) applies see PARA 461 ante. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante.

A decision taken by an institution of a member state concerning the degree of invalidity of a claimant is binding on the institution of any other member state concerned, provided that the concordance between the legislation of these states on conditions relating to the degree of invalidity is acknowledged in Annex V: art 40(4).

In order to determine the degree of invalidity, the institution of the member state must take into consideration the documents and medical reports and the information of an administrative nature obtained by the institution of any other member state; but each institution must retain the right to have the claimant examined by a doctor of its own choice except where the provisions of art 40(4) apply: EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 40. 6 I.e. in accordance with EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 39: see PARA 503 post.

7 See ibid art 37(1). Article 37 does not affect pension increases or supplements in respect of children, granted in accordance with Ch 8 (arts 77-79) (see PARA 533 et seq post): see art 37(1). Annex VI (as amended) lists legislation of the kind mentioned in art 37(1) which is in force in the territory of each of the member states concerned: art 37(2). This legislation is commonly referred to as 'Type A Legislations'; and the legislation under which entitlement is dependent on the duration of periods of insurance is referred to as 'Type B Legislations'.

If an employed or self-employed person has submitted a claim for invalidity benefits, and the institution establishes that the provisions of art 37(1) apply, that institution must, where necessary, obtain from the institution with which the person concerned was last insured a certified statement of the periods of insurance completed by him under the legislation administered by the last institution: EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 39(1). Where it is necessary to take into account periods of insurance previously completed under the legislation of any other member state in order to satisfy the conditions of the legislation of the competent state, the provisions of art 39(1) apply by analogy: art 39(2).

8 It is not of the type referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 37(1).

In order to receive benefits under EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) arts 40-51, except in cases referred to in EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 35, the person concerned must submit a claim to the institution of the place of residence in accordance with the procedure provided for by the legislation administered by that institution: art 36(1). If the employed or self-employed person has not been subject to that legislation, the institution of the place of residence must forward the claim to the institution of the member state to whose legislation he was last subject, indicating the date on which the claim was submitted: art 36(1). That date is regarded as the date on which the claim was submitted to the latter institution: art 36(1). As to the procedure in such claims generally see further arts 36(2)-(4), 37. As to the investigation of claims and the payment of benefits under these provisions see generally arts 41-52.

10 It is a legislation listed in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) Annex IV Pt A. For the purpose of determining the right to benefits under the legislation of a member state so listed, which makes the granting of invalidity benefits conditional upon the person concerned having received cash benefits or having been incapable of work during a specified period, where an employed or a self-employed person who has been subject to that legislation suffers incapacity for work leading to invalidity while subject to the legislation of another member state, account must be taken of the following, without prejudice to art 37(1):

- 156 (1) any period during which, in respect of that incapacity for work, he has, under the legislation of the second member state, received cash sickness benefits, or, in lieu thereof, continued to receive a wage or salary;
- 157 (2) any period during which, in respect of the invalidity which followed that incapacity for work, he has received benefits within the meaning of Ch 2 and of Ch 3, granted in respect of invalidity under the legislation of the second member state, as if it were a period during which cash sickness benefits were paid to him under the legislation of the first member state or during which he was incapable of working within the meaning of that legislation: art 40(3)(a). As to the meaning of 'invalidity benefit' in head (2) supra see Re Invalidity Benefit [1988] 1 CMLR 1.

The right to invalidity benefits under the legislation of the first member state is acquired either upon expiry of the preliminary period of compensation for sickness, as required by that legislation, or upon expiry of the preliminary period of incapacity of work as required by that legislation, but not before the date of acquisition of the right to invalidity benefits referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 40(3)(a)(ii) (see head (2) supra) under the legislation of the second member state, or the day following the last day on which the person concerned is entitled to cash sickness benefits under the legislation of the second member state: art 40(3)(b). ### 503. Award of benefits.

The institution<sup>1</sup> of a member state whose legislation<sup>2</sup> was applicable at the time when incapacity for work followed by invalidity occurred must determine, in accordance with that legislation, whether the person concerned satisfies<sup>3</sup> the conditions for entitlement to benefit<sup>4</sup>. A person who satisfies the conditions referred to above may receive the benefits only from that institution, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation which it administers<sup>5</sup>. However, a person who is not so entitled to benefits may receive the benefits to which he is still entitled under the legislation of another member state<sup>6</sup>.

A wholly unemployed employee<sup>7</sup> may receive the invalidity benefits provided by the competent institution<sup>8</sup> of the member state in whose territory he resides, in accordance with the legislation which it administers, as though he had been subject to that legislation during his last employment<sup>9</sup>. The institution of the country of residence is responsible for paying those benefits<sup>10</sup>. Where that institution applies legislation providing for deduction of contributions payable by unemployed persons to cover invalidity benefits, it is authorised to make such deductions in accordance with the provisions of its legislation<sup>11</sup>. If the legislation which that institution administers provides for the calculation of benefits to be based on wages or salaries, the institution must take into account the wages or salaries received in the last country of employment and in the country of residence in accordance with the legislation it administers. Where no wage or salary has been received in the country of residence, the competent institution must refer, as necessary and in accordance with the rules laid down in its legislation, to the salaries received in the last country of employment<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'institution' see PARA 455 note 3 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'legislation' see PARA 461 ante.

3 In taking account, where appropriate, of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 38. As to the citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante.

4 See ibid art 39(1). In order to receive benefits under arts 37, 38, 39, including the cases referred to in arts 40(2), 41(1), 42(2), an employed or self-employed person must submit a claim either to the institution of the member state to whose legislation he was subject at the time of occurrence of the incapacity for work followed by invalidity or the aggravation of such invalidity, or to the institution of the place of residence (see PARA 455 ante), which then forwards the claim to the first institution, indicating the date on which it was submitted; this date is regarded as the date of submission of the claim to the first institution: EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 35(1). However, if sickness insurance cash benefits have been granted, the date on which such cash benefits ceased to be granted must, where appropriate, be regarded as the date of submission of the pension claim: art 35(1). As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 11 ante.

5 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 39(2).

6 See ibid art 39(3). For the purposes of this provision, account must be taken, where appropriate, of art 38: see PARA 504 post. If the legislation referred to in art 39(2) or (3) provides that the amount of the benefits must be determined taking into account the existence of members of the family other than the children, the competent institution must also take into consideration those members of the family of the person concerned who are residing in the territory of another member state, as if they were residing in the territory of the competent state: art 39(4). If the legislation referred to in art 39(2) or (3) lays down provisions for the reduction, suspension or withdrawal of benefits in the case of overlapping with other income or with benefits of a different kind within the meaning of art 46(1), (2) (see PARA 512 post), arts 46a(3), 46c(5) will apply mutatis mutandis: art 39(5).

In order to receive benefits under the provisions of art 39(4) or art 47(3) (see PARA 512 post), the claimant must submit a certified statement relating to the members of his family, his children excepted, who are residing in the territory of a member state other than that in which the institution responsible for the award of benefits is situated: EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 38(1). The certified statement must be issued by the sickness insurance institution of the place of residence of the members of the family, or by another institution designated by the competent authority of the member state in whose territory they are resident: art 38(1). The provisions of art 25(2) PARAS 2, 3 (see PARA 487 ante) apply by analogy: see art 38(1). In place of a certified statement, the institution responsible for the award of benefits may require the claimant to supply recent civil status documents relating to the members of his family, his children excepted, who are residing in the territory of a member state other than the state in which the said institution is situated: art 38(1). In a case referred to in art 38(1), if the legislation administered by the institution concerned requires that the members of the family should live under the same roof as the pensioner, the fact that the members of the family who do not satisfy that condition are nevertheless mainly dependant on the claimant must be established by documents proving the regular transmission of part of the claimant's earnings: art 38(2).

- 1229 (4) if, in the case referred to in head (2) above, the person concerned is not entitled to benefits at the expense of an institution of another member state, the competent institution of the first state must grant the benefits<sup>10</sup> according to the provisions of the legislation of that state and taking into account the aggravation<sup>11</sup>.

507. Conversion of invalidity benefits into old age benefits.

Invalidity benefits are converted into old age benefits, where appropriate, under the conditions laid down by the legislation<sup>1</sup> under which they were granted<sup>2</sup> and in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 3 of Title III of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>3</sup> which govern old age and death (pensions)<sup>4</sup>.

Where a person receiving invalidity benefits can establish a claim to old age benefits under the legislation of one or more other member states<sup>5</sup>, any institution<sup>6</sup> which is responsible for providing invalidity benefits under the legislation of a member state must continue to provide such a person with the invalidity benefits to which he is entitled under the legislation which it administers until the relevant provisions<sup>7</sup> become applicable as regards that institution or so long as the person concerned fulfils the conditions for such benefits<sup>8</sup>.

Invalidity benefits provided<sup>9</sup> must be recalculated pursuant to the old age benefit provisions<sup>10</sup> as soon as the beneficiary satisfies the qualifications for invalidity benefits laid down by an unlisted legislation<sup>11</sup>, or as soon as he receives old age benefits under the legislation of another member state<sup>12</sup>.

509. Aggregation of periods of insurance and residence.

Where the legislation<sup>1</sup> of a member state makes the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to benefits<sup>2</sup>, under a scheme which is not a special scheme<sup>3</sup>, subject to the completion of periods of insurance<sup>4</sup> or periods of residence<sup>5</sup>, the competent institution<sup>6</sup> of that member state must take account, where necessary, of the periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of any member state, be it under a general scheme or under a special scheme and either as an employed or self-employed person. For that purpose, it must take account of these periods as if they were periods completed under its own legislation<sup>7</sup>.

Where the legislation of a member state makes the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to benefits conditional upon the person concerned being insured at the time of the materialisation of the risk, this condition must be regarded as having been satisfied in the case of insurance under the legislation of another member state, in accordance with specified procedures<sup>8</sup> for each member state concerned<sup>9</sup>.

However, the periods may be taken into account in relation to the size of the pension if the legislation so provides: see Case C-302/90 Caisse auxiliaire d'assurance maladies-invalidité (CAAM) v Faux [1991] ECR I-4875; Case C-146/93 McLachlan v Caisse Nationale d'Assurance Vieillesse des Travailleurs Salariés de la Région d'Ile de France [1994] ECR I-3229, [1995] 2 CMLR 540, ECJ. Where the legislation of a member state makes the granting of certain benefits conditional upon the periods of insurance having been completed only in an occupation subject to a special scheme for employed persons or for self-employed persons, or (where appropriate) in a specific employment, periods completed under the legislation of the other member states must be taken into account for the granting of these benefits only if completed under a corresponding scheme or, failing that, in the same occupation or, where appropriate, in the same employment: see art 45(2), (3). If, account having been taken of the periods thus completed, the person concerned does not satisfy the conditions for receipt of these benefits, these periods must be taken into account for the granting of the benefits under the general scheme or, failing that, under the scheme applicable to manual or clerical workers, as the case may be, subject to the condition that the person concerned has been affiliated to one or other of these schemes: see art 45(2), (3). The special schemes for self-employed persons referred to in art 45(3) are listed in Annex IV Pt B, for each member state concerned.

The periods of insurance completed under a special scheme of a member state must be taken into account under the general scheme or, failing that, under the scheme applicable to manual or clerical workers, as the case may be, of another member state of the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to benefits, subject to the condition that the person concerned has been affiliated to one or other of these schemes, even if these periods have already been taken into account in the latter state under a scheme referred to in art 45(2) or (3): art 45(4).

8 le in accordance with the procedures provided in ibid Annex VI (as amended).

9 Ibid art 45(5). A period of full employment of a worker to whom art 81(1)(a)(ii) or (b)(ii) (first sentence) applies must be taken into account by the competent institution of the member state in whose territory the worker concerned resides in accordance with the legislation administered by that institution, as if that legislation applied to him during his last employment: art 45(6). Where that institution applies legislation providing for deduction of contributions payable by unemployed persons to cover old age pensions and death, it must be authorised to make such deductions in accordance with the provisions of its legislation: art 45(6). If the period of full employment in the country of residence of the person concerned can be taken into account only if contribution periods have been completed in that country, this condition is deemed to be fulfilled if the contribution periods have been completed in another member state: art 45(6).

509 Aggregation of periods of insurance and residence

NOTE 7--The competent institution of one member state must take into account periods completed in a non-member country by a national of another member state if a national of the first member state is entitled to have such periods taken into account under a bilateral convention concluded between the first member state and the non-member country: Case C-55/00 Gottardo v Istituto Nazionale della Previdenza Sociale [2004] 1 CMLR 783, ECJ.

510. Periods of insurance or residence of less than one year.

See also Case 49/75 Borella v Landesversicherungsanstalt Schwaben [1975] ECR 1461, ECJ.

The competent institution of each member state concerned must take into account the periods referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 48(1) for the purposes of applying art 46(2), excepting art 46(2)(b): art 48(2).

If the effect of applying art 48(1) would be to relieve all the institutions of the member states concerned of their obligations, benefits are awarded exclusively under the legislation of the last of those states whose conditions are satisfied, as if all the periods of insurance and residence completed and taken into account under art 45(1)-(4) (see PARA 509 ante) had been completed under the legislation of that state: art 48(3).

511. Special provisions with regard to overlapping of benefits.

For the purposes of Chapter 3 of Title III of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup>, overlapping of benefits of the same kind means all overlapping of benefits in respect of invalidity, old age and survivors calculated or provided on the basis of periods of insurance<sup>2</sup> and/or residence<sup>3</sup> completed by one and the same person<sup>4</sup>; and overlapping of benefits of different kinds means all overlapping of benefits that cannot be regarded as being of the same kind as that previously mentioned<sup>5</sup>.

For the application of provisions on reduction, suspension or withdrawal laid down by the legislation of a member state in the case of overlapping of a benefit in respect of invalidity, old age or survivors with a benefit of the same kind or a benefit of a different kind or with income:

- 1230 (1) account must be taken of the benefits acquired under the legislation<sup>6</sup> of another member state or of another income acquired in another member state only where the legislation of the first member state provides for the taking into account of benefits or income acquired abroad;
- 1231 (2) account must be taken of the amount of benefits to be granted by another member state before deductions of taxes, social security contributions and other individual levies or deductions;
- 1232 (3) no account is to be taken of the amount of benefits acquired under the legislation of another member state which are awarded on the basis of voluntary insurance or continued optional insurance;
- 1233 (4) where provisions on reduction, suspension or withdrawal are applicable under the legislation of only one member state on account of the fact that the person concerned receives benefits of a similar or different kind payable under the legislation of other member states or other income acquired within the territory of other member states, the benefit payable under the legislation of the first member state may be reduced only within the limit of the amount of the benefits payable under the legislation or the income acquired within the territory of other member states<sup>7</sup>.

512. Calculation of benefits.

Where an employed or self-employed person<sup>1</sup> has been subject to the legislation<sup>2</sup> of a member state and the conditions for entitlement to benefit have been satisfied without the application of certain specified provisions<sup>3</sup>, the competent institution<sup>4</sup> of that member state must calculate the amount of benefit which would be due, on the one hand only under the provisions of the legislation which it administers<sup>5</sup>, and on the other hand in accordance with the provisions<sup>6</sup> set out below<sup>7</sup>.

Where the conditions required by the legislation of a member state for entitlement to benefits are satisfied only after application of the specified provisions<sup>8</sup>:

- 1234 (1) the competent institution must calculate the theoretical amount of the benefit to which the person concerned could lay claim provided all periods of insurance and/or residence, which have been completed under the legislation of the member state to which the employed or self-employed person was subject, have been completed in the state in question under the legislation which it administers on the date of the award of the benefit; and if, under this legislation, the amount of the benefit is independent of the duration of the periods completed, the amount is regarded as being that theoretical amount<sup>9</sup>;
- 1235 (2) the competent institution must subsequently determine the actual amount of the benefit on the basis of the theoretical amount referred to above in accordance with the ratio of the duration of the periods of insurance and of residence completed before the materialisation of the risk under the legislation which it administers to the total duration of the periods of insurance and residence completed before the materialisation of the risk under the legislation of all the member states concerned<sup>10</sup>.

For the calculation of the theoretical amount referred to in head (1) above, the following rules apply:

- 1236 (a) where the total length of the periods of insurance and residence completed before the risk materialised under the legislation of all the member states concerned is longer than the maximum period required by the legislation of one of these states for receipt of full benefit, the competent institution of that state, when applying these provisions, must take into consideration this maximum period instead of the total length of the periods completed<sup>11</sup>;
- 1237 (b) where, under the legislation of a member state, benefits are calculated on the basis of average earnings, an average contribution, an average increase or on the relation which existed, during the periods of insurance, between the claimant's gross earnings and the average gross earnings of all insured persons other than apprentices, such average figures or relations must be determined by the competent institution of that state solely on the basis of the periods of insurance completed under the legislation of that state, or the gross earnings received by the person concerned during those periods only<sup>12</sup>;
- 1238 (c) where, under the legislation of a member state, benefits are calculated on the basis of the amount of earnings, contributions or increases, the competent institution of that state must determine the earnings, contributions and increases to be taken into account in respect of the periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of other member states on the basis of the average earnings, contributions or increases recorded in respect of the periods of insurance completed under the legislation which it administers<sup>13</sup>;

1239 (d) where, under the legislation of a member state, benefits are calculated on the basis of standard earnings or a fixed amount, the competent institution of that state must consider the standard earnings or the fixed amount to be taken into account by it in respect of periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of other member states as being equal to the standard earnings or fixed amount or, where appropriate, to the average of the standard earnings or the fixed amount corresponding to the periods of insurance completed under its own legislation<sup>14</sup>;

1240 (e) where, under the legislation of a member state, benefits are calculated for some periods on the basis of the amount of earnings, and for other periods on the basis of standard earnings or a fixed amount, the competent institution of that state must take into account, in respect of periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of other member states, the earnings or fixed amounts determined in accordance with head (c) or head (d) above or, as appropriate, the average of these earnings or fixed amounts; where benefits are calculated on the basis of standard earnings or a fixed amount for all the periods completed under the legislation which it administers, the competent institution must consider the earnings to be taken into account in respect of the periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislations of other member states as being equal to the national earnings corresponding to the standard earnings or fixed amounts<sup>15</sup>;

1241 (f) where, under the legislation of a member state, benefits are calculated on the basis of average contributions, the competent institution must determine that average by reference only to those periods of insurance completed under the legislation of that state<sup>16</sup>.

The provisions of the legislation of a member state concerning the revalorisation of the factors taken into account for the calculation of benefits apply, as appropriate, to the factors to be taken into account by the competent institution of that state, in accordance with heads (a) to (f) above, in respect of the periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislation of other member states<sup>17</sup>.

If, under the legislation of a member state, the amount of benefits is determined taking into account the existence of members of the family<sup>18</sup> other than children, the competent institution of that state must also take into consideration those members of the family of the person concerned who are residing<sup>19</sup> in the territory of another member state as if they were residing in the territory of the competent state<sup>20</sup>.

6 le pursuant to ibid art 46(2): see text and notes 9, 10 infra.

7 Ibid art 46(1)(a)(ii). The competent institution may, however, waive the calculation to be carried out in accordance with art 46(1)(a)(ii) if the result of the calculation, apart from differences arising from the use of round figures, is equal to or lower than the result of the calculation in accordance with art 46(1)(a)(i), in so far as that institution does not apply any legislation containing rules against overlapping as referred to in arts 46b, 46c or if the aforementioned institution applies a legislation containing rules against overlapping in the case referred to in art 46c, provided that the legislation lays down that benefits of a different kind are to be taken into consideration only on the basis of the relation of the periods of insurance or of residence completed under that legislation alone to the periods of insurance or of residence required by that legislation in order to qualify for full benefit entitlement. 513. Calculation of benefits where conditions not simultaneously satisfied or postponement of old age benefits requested.

If, at a given time, the person concerned does not satisfy the conditions laid down for the provision of benefits by all the legislations<sup>1</sup> of the member states to which he has been subject<sup>2</sup>, but satisfies the conditions of one or more of them only, then each of the competent institutions<sup>3</sup> administering a legislation whose conditions are satisfied must calculate<sup>4</sup> the amount of benefit due<sup>5</sup>. However:

- 1242 (1) if the person concerned satisfies the conditions of at least two legislations without having recourse to periods of insurance<sup>6</sup> or residence<sup>7</sup> completed under the legislations whose conditions are not satisfied, these periods are not to be taken into account for the purposes of calculating the theoretical and actual amounts of benefit, unless taking account of the periods makes it possible to determine a higher amount of benefit<sup>8</sup>;
- 1243 (2) if the person concerned satisfies the conditions of one legislation only without having recourse to periods of insurance or residence completed under the legislations whose conditions are not satisfied, the amount of the benefit due is<sup>9</sup> calculated only in accordance with the provisions of the legislation whose conditions are satisfied, taking account of the periods completed under that legislation only, unless taking account of the periods completed under the legislations whose conditions are not satisfied makes it possible<sup>10</sup> to determine a higher amount of benefit<sup>11</sup>.

The benefit or benefits so awarded under one or more of the legislations in question<sup>12</sup> is recalculated automatically<sup>13</sup> as and when the conditions required by one or more of the other legislations to which the person concerned has been subject are satisfied<sup>14</sup> as appropriate<sup>15</sup>. A recalculation is made<sup>16</sup> automatically when the conditions required by one or more of the legislations concerned are no longer satisfied<sup>17</sup>.

A recipient of old age and death (pensions) benefits<sup>1</sup> may not, in the state in whose territory he resides<sup>2</sup> and under whose legislation<sup>3</sup> a benefit is payable to him, be awarded a benefit which is less than the minimum benefit fixed by that legislation for a period of insurance<sup>4</sup> or residence<sup>5</sup> equal to all the periods of insurance taken into account for the payment in accordance with the relevant provisions of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>6</sup>. ## E. ACCIDENTS AT WORK AND OCCUPATIONAL DISEASES

517. Scope of provisions.

Benefits in respect of accidents at work and occupational diseases are dealt with in Chapter 4 of Title III of the EC Council Regulation on social security for migrant persons<sup>1</sup>. These provisions cover both benefits in cash<sup>2</sup> and in kind<sup>3</sup>, and the costs of transporting a person who has sustained an accident at work or is suffering from an occupational disease to his residence or to a hospital<sup>4</sup>.

Where the legislation<sup>5</sup> of a member state provides expressly or by implication that accidents at work or occupational diseases which have occurred or have been confirmed previously are taken into consideration in order to assess the degree of incapacity, to establish a right to any benefit, or to determine the amount of benefit, the competent institution<sup>6</sup> of that member state must also take into consideration accidents at work or occupational diseases which have occurred or have been confirmed previously under the legislation of another member state as if they had occurred or been confirmed under the legislation which it administers<sup>7</sup>. Where the legislation of a member state provides expressly or by implication that accidents at work or occupational diseases which have occurred or have been confirmed subsequently are to be taken into consideration in order to assess the degree of incapacity, to establish the right to any benefit, or to determine the amount of any benefit, the competent institution of that member state must also take into consideration accidents at work or occupational diseases which have occurred or have been confirmed subsequently under the legislation of another member state, as if they had occurred or been confirmed under the legislation which it administers, but only where:

- 1244 (1) no compensation is due in respect of the accident at work or the occupational disease which had occurred or had been confirmed previously under the legislation which it administers; and
- 1245 (2) no compensation is due by virtue of the legislation of the other member state under which the accident at work or the occupational disease occurred or was confirmed subsequently<sup>8</sup> in respect of that accident at work or that occupational disease<sup>9</sup>.

If the legislation of the country of stay<sup>10</sup> or residence<sup>11</sup> has several insurance schemes, the provisions applicable to employed or self-employed persons<sup>12</sup> are those of the scheme for manual workers in the steel industry. However, if that legislation includes a special scheme for workers in mines and similar undertakings, the provisions of that scheme apply to that category of workers where the institution of the place of stay or residence to which they submit their claim is competent to administer that scheme<sup>13</sup>.

If the legislation of a member state fixes a maximum period during which benefits may be granted, the institution which administers that legislation may take into account any period during which the benefits have already been provided by the institution of another member state<sup>14</sup>.

The competent institution of a member state whose legislation provides for meeting the costs of transporting a person who has sustained an accident at work or is suffering from an occupational disease either to his place of residence or to a hospital must meet such costs to the corresponding place in the territory of another member state where the person resides, provided that that institution gives prior authorisation for such transport, duly taking into account the reasons justifying it<sup>15</sup>.

2     As to the calculation of cash benefits see PARA 518 note 7 post.

3     As to the meaning of 'benefits in kind' see PARA 483 note 6 ante. If there is no insurance against accidents at work or occupational diseases in the territory of the member state in which the person concerned happens to be, or if such insurance exists but there is no institution (see PARA 455 note 3 ante) responsible for providing benefits in kind, those benefits are provided by the institution of the place of stay or residence responsible for providing benefits in the case of sickness: EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 61(1). For the meaning of 'institution of the place of stay' and 'institution of the place of residence' see PARA 455 ante. Where the nature of the scheme of the competent state (see PARA 455 ante) relating to compensation for accidents at work is not that of compulsory insurance, the provision of benefits in kind are made directly by the employer or the insurer involved: art 61(4).

In order to assess the degree of incapacity under EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 61(5), the claimant must supply the competent institution of the member state to whose legislation he was subject at the time of the occurrence of the accident or disease in question with all information on previous accidents or diseases: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 72.

518. Benefit during residence in a member state other than the competent state.

An employed or self-employed person<sup>1</sup> who sustains an accident at work or contracts an occupational disease, and who is residing<sup>2</sup> in the territory of a member state other than the competent state, is entitled to receive in the state in which he is residing:

1247 (2) cash benefits<sup>7</sup> provided by the competent institution in accordance with the legislation which it administers<sup>8</sup>.

A frontier worker<sup>9</sup> may also obtain benefits in the territory of the competent state<sup>10</sup>.

An employed or self-employed person in such a case who is staying<sup>11</sup> in the territory of the competent state or who transfers his place of residence to the territory of the competent state is entitled to receive benefits in accordance with the provisions of the legislation of that state, even if he has already received benefits before his stay or before transferring his residence<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'employed person' and 'self-employed person' see PARA 457 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'residence see PARA 459 note 2 ante.

3 As to the meaning of 'benefits in kind' see PARA 483 note 6 ante. Where the legislation (see PARA 461 ante) of the competent state makes wholly cost-free benefits in kind conditional upon use of the medical service organised by the employer, benefits in kind provided under EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) arts 52, 55(1) (see infra and PARA 519 post) are deemed to have been provided by that medical service: art 61(2). Where the legislation of the competent state includes a scheme relating to the obligations of the employer, benefits in kind provided under arts 52, 55 (1) are deemed to have been provided at the request of the competent institution: art 61(3). As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante. As to the provision of benefits in kind generally see PARA 517 note 3 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'competent institution' see PARA 455 ante.

6 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 52(a). In order to obtain benefits in kind under this provision the claimant must submit to the institution of the place of residence a certified statement, issued by the competent institution, testifying that he is entitled to those benefits: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 60. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 11 ante. As to the reimbursement of benefits provided on behalf of a competent institution see EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 63.

7 The competent institution of a member state whose legislation provides that the calculation of cash benefits is to be based on average earnings must determine those average earnings exclusively by reference to earnings confirmed as having been paid during the periods completed under that legislation: ibid art 58(1). The competent institution of a member state whose legislation provides that the calculation of cash benefits is to be based on standard earnings must take account exclusively of the standard earnings or, where appropriate, of the average standard earnings for the periods completed under that legislation: art 58(2). The competent institution of a member state whose legislation provides that the amount of cash benefits is to vary with the number of members of the family (see PARA 458 ante) must also take into account the members of the family of the person concerned who are residing in the territory of another member state, as if they were residing in the territory of the competent state: art 58(3). In order to receive benefits under this provision the claimant must submit a certified statement, issued by the sickness insurance institution of the place of residence of the members of the family or by another institution designated by the competent authority of the state of residence, relating to the members of his family who are residing in the territory of a member state other than that in which the institution responsible for the award of cash benefits is situated: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 70.

8 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 52(b). However, by agreement between the competent institution and the institution of the place of residence, the benefits may be provided by the latter institution on behalf of the former in accordance with the legislation of the competent state: see art 52(b). In order to receive cash benefits other than pensions under this provision the claimant, within three days of commencement of the incapacity for work, must apply to the institution of the place of residence by a notification of having ceased work issued by his doctor: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 61.

9 For the meaning of 'frontier worker' see PARA 484 note 1 ante.

10 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 53. Such benefits are to be provided by the competent institution in accordance with the provisions of the legislation of that state, as if the person concerned were residing there: see art 53.

11 For the meaning of 'stay' see PARA 455 note 11 ante.

12 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 54(1), (2). Article 54(1) does not apply to frontier workers: see art 54(1).

F. DEATH GRANTS

523. Aggregation of periods of insurance or residence.

The competent institution<sup>1</sup> of a member state whose legislation<sup>2</sup> makes the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to death grants<sup>3</sup> subject to the completion of periods of insurance<sup>4</sup> or residence<sup>5</sup> must take account, to the extent necessary, of such periods completed under the legislation of any other member state as though they had been completed under the legislation which it administers<sup>6</sup>.

Where the death occurs in the territory of a member state, the right to a death grant acquired under the legislation of that member state only is maintained, whilst the right acquired under the legislation of any other member state lapses<sup>7</sup>. Where the death occurs in the territory of one member state when the right to a death grant has been acquired under the legislation of two or more other member states, or where the death occurs outside the territory of the member states and that right has been acquired under the legislation of two or more member states, only the right acquired under the legislation of the member state to which the deceased person was last subject is maintained, whilst the right acquired under the legislation of any other member state lapses<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'competent institution' see PARA 455 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'legislation' see PARA 461 ante.

3 Death grants means any once-for-all payment in the event of death, exclusive of the lump sum benefits referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 1(t) (see PARA 460 ante): art 1(v). As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante.

6 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 64. In order to invoke those provisions, the claimant must submit a certified statement, issued at his request by the relevant insurance institution, specifying the relevant completed periods of insurance or residence: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 79. By way of derogation from art 9(1), (2) in the instances referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 14c(b) of the regulation, entitlement to death grants acquired under the legislation of each of the two member states concerned referred to in Annex VII (as amended) is retained: EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 9(3).

524. Other provisions relating to death grants.

When an employed or self-employed person<sup>1</sup>, a pensioner or a pension<sup>2</sup> claimant, or a member of his family<sup>3</sup>, dies<sup>4</sup> in the territory of a member state other than the competent state<sup>5</sup>, the death is deemed to have occurred in the territory of the competent state<sup>6</sup> and the competent institution<sup>7</sup> is obliged to award death grants<sup>8</sup> payable under the legislation<sup>9</sup> which it administers, even if the person entitled resides<sup>10</sup> in the territory of a member state other than the competent state<sup>11</sup>.

In the event of the death of a pensioner who was entitled to a pension under the legislation of one member state or to pensions under the legislations of two or more member states, when the pensioner was residing in the territory of a member state other than the one whose institution was responsible under those measures for providing him with benefits in kind<sup>12</sup>, the death grants payable under the legislation administered by that institution are provided by it at its own expense as though he had been residing in the territory of the member state of that institution at the time of his death<sup>13</sup>. These provisions apply by analogy to the members of the family of a pensioner<sup>14</sup>.

G. UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS

525. Aggregation of periods of insurance or employment.

The competent institution<sup>1</sup> of a member state whose legislation<sup>2</sup> makes the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to unemployment benefits<sup>3</sup> subject to the completion of periods of insurance<sup>4</sup> must take into account, to the extent necessary, periods of insurance or employment<sup>5</sup> completed as an employed person<sup>6</sup> under the legislation of any other member state as though they were periods completed under the legislation which it administers, provided, however, that the periods of employment would have been counted as periods of insurance had they been completed under that legislation<sup>7</sup>.

The competent institution of a member state whose legislation makes the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to benefits subject to the completion of periods of employment must take into account, to the extent necessary, periods of insurance or employment completed as an employed person under the legislation of any other member state as though they were periods of employment completed under the legislation which it administers<sup>8</sup>.

Subject to certain exceptions<sup>9</sup>, the application of these provisions is subject to the condition that the person concerned<sup>10</sup> should have completed lastly either periods of insurance or periods of employment, as appropriate, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation under which the benefits are claimed<sup>11</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'legislation' see PARA 461 ante.

3 The sole purpose of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) Title III Ch 6 (arts 67-70) (see infra and PARA 526 et seq post), relating to unemployment benefits, is to co-ordinate the rights to those benefits provided by virtue of the national legislation of the member states for employed persons who are nationals of a member state: Case 40/76 Kermaschek v Bundesanstalt für Arbeit [1976] ECR 1669, ECJ. A period of employment completed under the legislation of a member state other than one in which the competent institution is established, and defined or recognised as an insurance period under that legislation, is not subject to the proviso: Case 126/77 Frangiamore v Office National de l'Emploi [1978] ECR 725, [1978] 3 CMLR 166, ECJ. In order to invoke the provisions of art 67(1), (2), or (4) the person concerned must submit to the competent institution a certified statement, issued at his request by either the competent institution in respect of unemployment of the member state to whose legislation he was last subject or by another institution designated by the competent authority of that member state, specifying the relevant completed periods of insurance or employment: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 80. ## 526. Calculation of unemployment benefits.

The competent institution<sup>1</sup> of a member state whose legislation<sup>2</sup> provides that the calculation of benefits should be based on the amount of the previous wage or salary must take into account exclusively the wage or salary received by the person concerned in respect of his last employment in the territory of that state; however, if the person concerned had been in his last employment in that territory for less than four weeks, the benefits are calculated on the basis of the normal wage or salary corresponding, in the place where the unemployed person is residing<sup>3</sup> or staying<sup>4</sup>, to an equivalent or similar employment to his last employment in another member state<sup>5</sup>.

The competent institution of a member state whose legislation provides that the amount of benefits varies with the number of members of the family<sup>6</sup> must also take into account members of the family of the person concerned who are residing in the territory of another member state as though they were residing in the territory of the competent state<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'competent institution' see PARA 455 ante.

As to the certified statement to be submitted by a claimant under those provisions relating to his last employment see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 81. 7 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 68(2). However, this provision does not apply if, in the country of residence of the members of the family, another person is entitled to unemployment benefits for the calculation of which the members of the family are taken into consideration: see art 68(2). In order to invoke those provisions, the claimant must submit to the competent institution a certified statement, issued by the institution designated by the competent authority of the member state in which the members of the family reside, relating to those persons: see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 82.

527. Unemployed persons seeking employment in another member state.

An employed or self-employed person<sup>1</sup> who is wholly unemployed and who satisfies the conditions of the legislation<sup>2</sup> of a member state for entitlement to unemployment benefits<sup>3</sup> and who goes to one or more other member states in order to seek employment there<sup>4</sup> retains his entitlement to such benefits subject to the following conditions and limits<sup>5</sup>:

- 1253 (1) before his departure he must have been registered with the employment services of the competent state<sup>6</sup> as a person seeking work and have remained available to the employment services of the competent state for at least four weeks after becoming unemployed<sup>7</sup>;
- 1254 (2) he must register as a person seeking work with the employment services of each of the member states to which he goes and be subject to the control procedure of each of those states<sup>8</sup>;
- 1255 (3) Entitlement to unemployment benefits continues for a maximum period of three months from the date when the person concerned ceased to be available to the employment services of the state which he left, provided that the total duration of the benefits does not exceed the duration of the period of benefits to which he was entitled under the legislation of that state<sup>9</sup>.

If the person concerned returns to the competent state before the expiry of the period during which he is entitled to benefits, he continues to be entitled to benefits under the legislation of that state; however, if he does not return there before the expiry of that period he loses all such entitlement<sup>10</sup>.

5 See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 69(1). As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante. As to the conditions and limits of the retention of rights to benefit under those provisions see EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 83. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 11 ante. In the cases referred to in EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 69(1), benefits are provided by the institution (see PARA 455 note 3 ante) of each of the states to which an unemployed person goes to seek work, and the competent institution (see PARA 455 ante) of the member state to whose legislation an employed or self-employed person was subject at the time of his last employment is obliged to reimburse the amount of those benefits: see art 70(1). As to the reimbursement of benefits see art 70(2), (3); and EC Council Regulation 574/72 (OJ L74, 27.3.72, p 1; OJ C325, 10.12.92, p 96) art 97. Subject to certain exceptions, EC law does not provide for the right of an unemployed worker to claim unemployment benefits under the legislation of a member state other than the state in which he became unemployed: see Case 20/75 D'Amico v Landesversicherungsanstalt Rheinland-Pfalz [1975] ECR 891, [1976] 2 CMLR 361, ECJ. EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 69 is intended solely to ensure for the migrant worker the limited and conditional preservation of the unemployment benefits of the competent state even if he goes to another member state, which state cannot, therefore, rely on mere failure to comply with the conditions prescribed under art 69 to deny the worker entitlement to the benefit which he may claim under the national legislation of that state: see Case 27/75 Bonaffini v Istituto Nazionale della Previdenza Sociale (INPS) [1975] ECR 971, ECJ; adopted in Decision CU 6/79 Re Unemployment Benefits [1979] 3 CMLR 449, NIC, where the National Insurance Commissioner said that regard must be had to the legislation of the member state in which benefit is claimed. The provisions of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 69(1) may be invoked only once between two periods of employment: art 69(3).

6 For the meaning of 'competent state' see PARA 455 ante.

7 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 69(1)(a). However, the competent services or institutions may authorise the person's departure before the expiry of the four weeks: see art 69(1)(a). See also Case 139/78 Coccioli v Bundesanstalt für Arbeit [1979] ECR 991, [1979] 3 CMLR 144, ECJ.

8 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 69(1)(b). This condition is considered satisfied for the period before registration if the person concerned registered within seven days of the date when he ceased to be available to the employment services of the state he left, but in exceptional cases this period may be extended by the competent services or institutions: see art 69(1)(b).

9 Ibid art 69(1)(c). See Case C-272/90 Van Noorden v Association pour l'Emploi dans l'Industrie et le Commerce (ASSEDIC) [1991] ECR I-2543, [1993] 2 CMLR 732, ECJ. In the case of a seasonal worker (see PARA 481 note 7 ante), the duration of the period of benefits is limited to the period remaining until the end of the season for which he was engaged: see EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 69(1)(c). Where the competent state is Belgium, an unemployed person who returns there after the expiry of the three-month period cannot requalify for benefits in that country until he has been employed there for at least three months: see art 69(4).

10 Ibid art 69(2). In exceptional cases the time limit may be extended by the competent services or institutions: see art 69(2). See Joined Cases 41, 121, 796/79 Testa, Maggio and Vitale v Bundesanstalt für Arbeit [1980] ECR 1979, [1981] 2 CMLR 552, ECJ.

- 1256 (1) a frontier worker<sup>6</sup> who is partially or intermittently unemployed in the undertaking which employs him is entitled to receive benefits in accordance with the provisions of the legislation<sup>7</sup> of the competent state as if he were residing in the territory of that state<sup>8</sup>;
- 1257 (2) a frontier worker who is wholly unemployed is entitled to receive benefits in accordance with the provisions of the legislation of the member state in whose territory he resides as though he had been subject to that legislation while last employed<sup>9</sup>;
- 1258 (3) an unemployed person other than a frontier worker who is partially, intermittently or wholly unemployed and who remains available to his employer or to the employment services in the territory of the competent state is entitled to receive benefit in accordance with the provisions of the legislation of that state as though he were residing in that territory<sup>10</sup>;
- 1259 (4) an unemployed person other than a frontier worker who is wholly unemployed and who makes himself available for work to the employment services in the territory of the member state in which he resides, or who returns to that territory<sup>11</sup>, is entitled to receive benefits in accordance with the legislation of that state as if he had last been employed there<sup>12</sup>.

An unemployed person may not claim benefits under the legislation of the member state in whose territory he resides while he is entitled to benefits under head (1) or head (3) above<sup>13</sup>.

EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 71 cannot apply to the case of an unemployed person who has not pursued any activity as an employed person or any activity treated as such and who has not yet acquired any entitlement to unemployment benefit: Case 66/77 Kuyken v Rijksdienst voor Arbeidsvoorziening [1977] ECR 2311, [1978] 2 CMLR 304, ECJ. EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 71 is intended to ensure that migrant workers receive unemployment benefit in the conditions most favourable to the search for new employment; benefit is not merely pecuniary but includes the assistance in finding new employment which the employment services provide for workers who have made themselves available to them: see Case 1/85 Miethe v Bundesanstalt für Arbeit [1986] ECR 1837, [1988] 1

CMLR 507, ECJ. EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 71 only concerns workers resident in a member state other than that in which they were last employed: see Case 128/83 Caisse Primaire d'Assurance Maladie de Rouen v Guyot [1984] ECR 3507, [1986] 3 CMLR 454, ECJ; C-287/92 Toosey v Chief Adjudication Officer [1994] ECR I-279, [1994] 2 CMLR 745, ECJ. 8 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 71(1)(a)(i). These benefits are provided by the competent institution: see art 71(1)(a)(i).

9 Ibid art 71(1)(a)(ii). These benefits are provided by the institution of the place of residence (see PARA 455 ante) at its own expense: see art 71(1)(a)(ii).

10 Ibid art 71(1)(b)(i). These benefits are provided by the competent institution: see art 71(1)(b)(i).

11 See Case 76/76 Di Paolo v Office National de l'Emploi [1977] ECR 315, [1977] 2 CMLR 59, ECJ, where the court held that the concept of 'the member state in which he resides' is limited to the state where the person concerned continues habitually to reside, even though he is occupied in another member state.

12 EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 71(1)(b)(ii). These benefits are provided by the institution of the place of residence at its own expense: see art 71(1)(b)(ii). However, if such an employed person has become entitled to benefits at the expense of the competent institution of the member state to whose legislation he was last subject, he is entitled to receive benefits under the provisions of art 69 (see PARA 527 ante): see art 71(1)(b)(ii). Receipt of benefits under this provision will be suspended for any period during which, under art 69 (see PARA 527 ante), the unemployed person may claim benefits under the legislation to which he was last subject: see art 71(1)(b)(ii). ## H. FAMILY BENEFITS AND FAMILY ALLOWANCES

529. Aggregation of periods of insurance, employment or self-employment.

Where the legislation<sup>1</sup> of a member state makes acquisition of the right to family benefits<sup>2</sup> and family allowances<sup>3</sup> conditional upon completion of periods of insurance<sup>4</sup>, employment<sup>5</sup> or self-employment<sup>6</sup>, the competent institution<sup>7</sup> of that state must take into account for this purpose, to the extent necessary, periods of insurance, employment or self-employment completed in any other member state as if they were periods completed under the legislation which it administers<sup>8</sup>.

Entitlement to family benefits or family allowances due under the legislation of a member state, according to which the acquisition of the right to those benefits or allowances is not subject to conditions of insurance, employment or self-employment is suspended when, during the same period and for the same member of the family, benefits are due only in pursuance of the national legislation of another member state or in application of specified provisions<sup>9</sup>, up to the sum of those benefits<sup>10</sup>.

Where an employed or self-employed person<sup>11</sup> has been subject successively to the legislation of two member states during the period separating two dates for the payment of family benefits as provided for by the legislation of one or both of the member states concerned, the benefits or allowances which the person concerned may claim by virtue of being subject to the legislation of each of those states must correspond to the number of daily benefits due under the relevant legislation<sup>12</sup>.

FAMILY BENEFITS AND FAMILY ALLOWANCES/531. Benefits where the family members reside in a member state other than the competent state.

An employed or self-employed person<sup>1</sup> subject to the legislation<sup>2</sup> of a member state<sup>3</sup> is entitled, in respect of the members of his family<sup>4</sup> who are residing<sup>5</sup> in another member state, to the family benefits<sup>6</sup> provided for by the legislation of the former state, as if they were residing in that state<sup>7</sup>. Family benefits are provided in the former cases<sup>9</sup> by the competent institution<sup>10</sup> of the state to the legislation of which the employed or self-employed person is subject, and, in the latter cases where an unemployed person was formerly employed or self-employed<sup>11</sup>, by the competent institution of the state under the legislation of which an unemployed person who was formerly employed or self-employed receives unemployment benefits; and these benefits are provided in accordance with the provisions administered by the appropriate institution, whether or not the natural or legal person to whom such benefits are payable is residing or staying<sup>12</sup> in the territory of the competent state<sup>13</sup> or in that of another member state<sup>14</sup>. However, if the family benefits are not used by the person to whom they should be provided for the maintenance of the members of the family, the competent institution must discharge its legal obligations by providing the said benefits to the natural or legal person actually maintaining the members of the family, at the request of, and through the agency of, the institution of their place of residence<sup>15</sup> or of the designated institution or body appointed for this purpose by the competent authority<sup>16</sup> of the country of their residence<sup>17</sup>. Two or more member states may agree<sup>18</sup> that the competent institution is to provide the family benefits due under the legislation of those states or of one of those states to the natural or legal person actually maintaining the members of the family, either directly or through the agency of the institution of their place of residence<sup>19</sup>.

535-550. Common provisions.

Benefits<sup>1</sup> for dependent children of pensioners and for orphans are provided in accordance with the legislation<sup>2</sup> of the institution<sup>3</sup> responsible for administering such legislation and at its expense as if the pensioner or the deceased had been subject only to the legislation of the competent state<sup>4</sup>.

Where there are several competent states<sup>5</sup>, the length of the periods being equal, benefits<sup>6</sup> are granted in accordance with the legislation of the member states to which the pensioner or the deceased was last subject<sup>7</sup>.

The right to benefits due only under the national legislation or under the provisions set out above<sup>8</sup> is suspended if the children become entitled to family benefits<sup>9</sup> or family allowances<sup>10</sup> under the legislation of a member state by virtue of the pursuit of a professional or trade activity<sup>11</sup>.

1    I.e. benefits within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) arts 77, 78: see PARAS 533-534 ante. As to citation of this regulation see PARA 454 note 4 ante.

4    See EC Council Regulation 1408/71 (OJ L149, 5.7.71, p 2; OJ L28, 30.1.97, p 1) art 79(1). However if that legislation provides that the acquisition, retention or recovery of the right to benefits is dependent on the length of periods of insurance, employment, self-employment or residence, such length must be determined taking into account, where appropriate, the provisions of art 45 (see PARA 509 ante) or, as the case may be, art 72 (see PARA 533 ante): art 79(1)(a). Again, if that legislation provides that the amount of benefits is to be calculated on the basis of the amount of the pension, or is to depend on the length of periods of insurance, the amount of these benefits must be calculated on the basis of the theoretical amount determined in accordance with the provisions of art 46(2) (see PARA 512 ante): art 79(1)(b). For the meaning of 'periods of insurance' and periods of employment see PARA 463 note 5 ante. For the meaning of 'periods of residence' see PARA 463 note 6 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS/(1) IN GENERAL/551. Categories of pension provision and scope of this part of the title.

13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS

(1) IN GENERAL

551. Categories of pension provision and scope of this part of the title.

There are five principal categories of pension provision:

- 1264 (1) state retirement pensions<sup>1</sup>;
- 1265 (2) retirement annuity contracts<sup>2</sup>;
- 1266 (3) personal pensions<sup>3</sup>;
- 1267 (4) occupational pension schemes<sup>4</sup>; and
- 1268 (5) public service pension schemes<sup>5</sup>.

Personal equity plans may also be used as a form of savings to provide for retirement<sup>6</sup>.

All these types of pension provision are discussed in this part of this title<sup>7</sup>. Public service pension schemes are, however, discussed in relation to the general legislation only and not in relation to the details of schemes made for particular categories of employees or public servants<sup>8</sup>. War pensions and other pensions for members of the armed forces are discussed elsewhere in this work<sup>9</sup>.

3 See PARA 710 et seq post.

4 See PARA 741 et seq post.

5 See PARA 874 et seq post.

6 See PARAS 739-740 post. The present tax regime for personal equity plans is due to be replaced in 1999 with a new regime for individual savings accounts: see PARA 739 note 21 post.

7 See PARA 552 et seq post. For a discussion of pension provision generally see 582 HL Official Report (5th series), 15 October 1997, col 486 et seq. With regard to EC law see Case C-57/95 France v EC Commission (Re Pension Funds Communication) [1997] 2 CMLR 935, ECJ (in the absence of agreement on a directive relating to the freedom of management and investment of funds held by institutions for retirement provision, a purported EC Commission Communication on an internal market for pension funds was of no legal effect and would be annulled). As to the equal treatment principle under EC law see PARA 554 post.

8 For more detailed discussion of the pension schemes relating to particular occupations, reference should be made to the appropriate title in this work: eg in relation to teachers' superannuation see EDUCATION vol 15(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 867 et seq; and in relation to parliamentary pensions see PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARA 926 et seq. The instruments governing such pension schemes are, however, not normally set out in their entirety in this work.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS/(1) IN GENERAL/552. The legislation.

552. The legislation.

The primary legislation concerned with state retirement pensions was consolidated in 1992 and is now contained in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 and the Social Security Administration Act 1992<sup>1</sup>. With regard to occupational and other private pension provision, the Pension Schemes Act 1993 consolidates enactments concerned with occupational and pension schemes generally which were passed between the years 1973 and 1993, with amendments to give effect to recommendations made by the Law Commission and the Scottish Law Commission in their report on the consolidation<sup>2</sup>. The main enactments repealed and replaced were contained in the Social Security Act 1973, the Social Security Pensions Act 1975 and the Social Security Act 1986<sup>3</sup>. The Pension Schemes Act 1993 is now extensively amended by the Pensions Act 1995 which introduces new provisions relating to occupational pensions and replaces the regulatory regime set up by the 1993 Act<sup>4</sup>.

In relation to public service pension schemes, the Superannuation Act 1972, which consolidates and modernises the legislative framework of such schemes, has been amended by, inter alia, the Pensions (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1990 in relation to provision for the civil service<sup>5</sup>, teachers<sup>6</sup> and National Health Service<sup>7</sup> superannuation schemes and the Judicial Pensions and Retirement Act 1993 in relation to the Comptroller and Auditor General's pension<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the 1992 consolidations see generally para 5 ante.

2 See Pension Schemes Bill: Report on the Consolidation of the Legislation relating to Pension Schemes (Cm 2184; Law Com no 212; Scot Law Com no 142) (1993).

3 For a table showing the destination of the repealed enactments see 33 Halsbury's Statutes (1997 Reissue) 848-858.

4 The Pensions Act 1995 received the royal assent on 19 July 1995, when Pt II (ss 126-136, Sch 4), ss 168, 170, 171, 179 came into force, subject to the provision in Sch 4 for equalisation of pensionable ages for men and women to take place in stages up to the year 2020 (see PARA 562 post): see s 180(2). The other provisions of the Act are to come into force on such days as the Secretary of State may by order made by statutory instrument appoint, and different days may be appointed for different purposes, save that (1) any repeal in s 177, Sch 7 for which there is a note comes into force in accordance with that note; and (2) s 166 came into force (amendment of the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973: see PARAS 961-963 post) on a day appointed by the Lord Chancellor by statutory instrument: see the Pensions Act 1995 s 180(1)-(3); and the Pensions Act 1995 (Commencement No 5) Order 1996, SI 1996/1675, made by the Lord Chancellor. At the date at which this volume states the law, the latest commencement order made by the Secretary of State was the Pensions Act 1995 (Commencement No 10) Order 1997, SI 1997/664, made on 6 March 1997, which appointed either 1 April 1997 or 6 April 1997 as the day on which the majority of the provisions of the 1995 Act not previously in force were to come into force: see art 2, Schedule.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS/(1) IN GENERAL/553. Tax treatment of pensions and pension schemes; in general.

553. Tax treatment of pensions and pension schemes; in general.

Payments of benefit in respect of contributory state retirement pensions<sup>1</sup> are charged to income tax under Schedule E<sup>2</sup>. Other pension income is normally chargeable to income tax but there are exemptions in relation to certain overseas pensions<sup>3</sup>.

Certain tax reliefs are available in respect of retirement benefit schemes<sup>4</sup>, retirement annuities<sup>5</sup>, personal pension schemes<sup>6</sup> and personal equity plans<sup>7</sup> and these are discussed below.

Pension funds were formerly entitled to the payment of tax credits<sup>8</sup> but, with effect from 2 July 1997, no claim may be made for payment of the amount of a tax credit<sup>9</sup> if or to the extent that the qualifying distribution<sup>10</sup> to which the credit relates is income<sup>11</sup> of a pension fund<sup>12</sup>. Furthermore, with effect from that date, the aggregate amount of the tax credits in respect of which claims are made by individuals or other unincorporated persons<sup>13</sup> in the case of any pension fund must not exceed, for any year of assessment<sup>14</sup>, the aggregate amount of the tax credits in respect of the qualifying distributions comprised in the income of the pension fund and brought into charge to tax<sup>15</sup>. Accordingly, no payment may be made<sup>16</sup> in respect of so much of the excess of tax credit over income tax<sup>17</sup> as is referable to a tax credit in respect of a qualifying distribution if or to the extent that the qualifying distribution is income of a pension fund<sup>18</sup>. These rules are to be the subject of further changes in relation to distributions made on or after 6 April 1999<sup>19</sup>.

555. Voluntary contributions.

Except in such cases as may be prescribed<sup>1</sup>, and except so far as is necessary to ensure that an occupational pension scheme<sup>2</sup> or a personal pension scheme<sup>3</sup> has, or may be expected to qualify for, tax exemption<sup>4</sup> or tax approval<sup>5</sup>, the rules of the scheme:

- 1269 (1) must not prohibit, or allow any person to prohibit, the payment by a member<sup>6</sup> of voluntary contributions<sup>7</sup>;
  - 1270 (2) must not impose, or allow any person to impose, any upper or lower limit on the payment by a member of voluntary contributions<sup>8</sup>;
  - 1271 (3) must secure that any voluntary contributions paid by a member are to be used by the trustees or managers<sup>9</sup> of the scheme to provide additional benefits for or in respect of him<sup>10</sup>; and
  - 1272 (4) must secure that the value of the additional benefits is reasonable, having regard:
- 139
- 188. (a) to the amount of the voluntary contributions; and
  - 189. (b) to the value of the other benefits under the scheme<sup>11</sup>.
- 140

1 'Prescribe' means prescribed by regulations and 'prescribed' is to be construed accordingly: Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1). The Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1) contains an identical definition of 'prescribed'. As to the prescribed exceptions see PARA 556 post.

2 For the meaning of 'occupational pension scheme' see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 1; and PARA 741 post.

5 For these purposes, 'tax approval' means approval of the Inland Revenue under either the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 Pt XIV Ch I (as amended) or Ch IV (as amended): Pension Schemes (Voluntary Contributions Requirements and Voluntary and Compulsory Membership) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1108, reg 2A (as added and amended: see note 4 supra).

6 The Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(4) (as amended) (power to prescribe persons who are to be regarded as members or prospective members of a pension scheme) does not apply for these purposes: see PARA 557 note 9 post.

8 Ibid s 111(1)(b).

9 The Secretary of State may by regulations provide who is to be treated as a manager of an occupational pension scheme for any of the purposes of the provisions of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 (except Pt VII Ch II (ss 123-127) (as amended) (see PARA 853 et seq post) or s 157) or the Social Security Administration Act 1992 Pt VI (ss 110-133) (as amended (see PARA 401 et seq ante)): see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 178(a). By virtue of s 189(1), Sch 6 para 2(2), the Occupational Pension Schemes (Managers) Regulations 1986, SI 1986/1718 (as amended) have effect as if so made. For the purposes of ss 113, 115 (disclosure of information about occupational pension schemes: see PARA 557 post) and Pt VIII (ss 129-132) (as amended) (see PARA 972 post) as it applies for the purposes of those sections in their application to the making available of information and documents to a particular member or prospective member of a public service pension scheme, or by reason of his membership or prospective membership to any other person or body, the following persons or bodies are treated as managers of the scheme: (1) in the case of a local government scheme, the appropriate administering authority; (2) in the case of the Firemen's Scheme, the fire authority by which the member or prospective member is employed, or if he is not employed by a fire authority, the fire authority by which he was last employed; (3) in the case of the Police Scheme, the police authority of the police force in which the member or prospective member is serving, or if he is not serving in a police force, the police authority of the police force in which he last served; (4) in the case of a government scheme, the government department responsible for its administration; (5) in any other case, the board, council, commission or other person or body responsible for its administration; and for the purposes of those statutory provisions in their application to the making available of information and documents to a particular member or prospective member of any occupational pension scheme established outside the United Kingdom, or by reason of his membership or prospective membership to any other person or body, the person or body to be treated as the manager of the scheme is such person as is for the time being treated by the Board of Inland Revenue as the administrator of the scheme for the purposes of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 Pt XIV Ch I (ss 590-629) (as amended) (see PARA 747 et seq post): see the Occupational Pension Schemes (Managers) Regulations 1986, SI 1986/1718, regs 2, 3 (reg 3 added by SI 1986/1718; the Occupational Pension Schemes (Managers) Regulations 1986, SI 1986/1718, regs 2, 3 both amended by SI 1994/1062).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS/(2) GENERAL PRINCIPLES RELATING TO OCCUPATIONAL AND OTHER PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/556. Exceptions to the voluntary contributions requirements.

556. Exceptions to the voluntary contributions requirements.

- 1273 (1) to the rules of any public service pension scheme<sup>2</sup> unless it is an exempt approved scheme<sup>3</sup>;
- 1274 (2) to the rules of any personal pension scheme<sup>4</sup> in so far as it is comprised in an annuity contract made before 1 July 1988<sup>5</sup>.

The requirements that the scheme must not prohibit, or allow any person to prohibit, the payment by a member<sup>6</sup> of voluntary contributions<sup>7</sup> and must not impose, or allow any person to impose, any upper or lower limit on the payment by a member of voluntary contributions<sup>8</sup>, do not apply:

- 1275 (a) to the rules of any scheme in so far as they relate to the payment by a member of any sum as voluntary contributions where that payment would not qualify<sup>9</sup> for relief from tax<sup>10</sup>;
- 1276 (b) to the rules of any scheme in so far as they provide that a member of the scheme must give the trustees or managers<sup>11</sup> of the scheme notice, of a period not exceeding 12 months, of his intention to pay voluntary contributions at a specified rate or to vary that rate<sup>12</sup>;
- 1277 (c) to the rules of any personal pension scheme in so far as they relate to a member whose rights under the scheme derive only from one or more transfer payments<sup>13</sup>;
- 1278 (d) to the rules of any occupational pension scheme<sup>14</sup> ('the first scheme') in so far as they relate to a member:

- 190. (i) in respect of whose current pensionable service<sup>15</sup> the scheme will provide benefit only on his death; or
- 191. (ii) whose pensionable service either has not begun or has terminated; or
- 192. (iii) who is either within one year of reaching, or has reached, normal pension age<sup>16</sup>; or
- 193. (iv) who is, or is eligible to become, a member of at least one other occupational pension scheme which applies to the same employment as the first scheme and which, if he is a member of it, complies in relation to him, or, if he is not a member of it, would comply in relation to him if he were, with the voluntary contributions requirements, and is not a scheme which, if he is a member of it, falls in relation to him, or, if he is not a member of it, would fall in relation to him if he were, to be regarded as a scheme excepted from the application of those requirements by virtue of the specified<sup>17</sup> provisions<sup>18</sup>;

- 1279 (e) to the rules of any scheme which provide that the only contributions payable in respect of a member must be the minimum contributions payable by the Secretary of State in respect of that member<sup>19</sup> if:

143

- 194. (i) the scheme is an appropriate scheme<sup>20</sup>; and

195. (ii) the member to whom the limitation applies is concurrently a member of an occupational pension scheme; and
 196. (iii) the scheme is currently the member's chosen scheme<sup>21</sup>; and
 197. (iv) the member has entered into a written agreement with the trustees or managers of the scheme that this exception is to apply in his case<sup>22</sup>.

The requirement that the rules of the scheme must not impose, or allow any person to impose, any upper or lower limit on the payment by a member of voluntary contributions does not apply to the rules of any scheme in so far as they impose, or allow any person to impose, a lower limit on the payment by a member of voluntary contributions in respect of any tax year if that lower limit is not higher than the specified amount<sup>23</sup>; nor does it apply to the rules of any scheme in so far as they impose, or allow any person to impose, an upper limit on the payment by a member of voluntary contributions which is equivalent to the maximum amount which, ignoring any remuneration in kind, could be paid in any period without prejudicing the qualification of the scheme for tax exemption<sup>24</sup> or tax approval<sup>25</sup>.

The requirements that the rules of the scheme must secure that any voluntary contributions paid by a member are to be used by the trustees or managers of the scheme to provide additional benefits for or in respect of him<sup>26</sup> and must secure that the value of the additional benefits is reasonable, having regard to the specified matters<sup>27</sup>, do not apply to the rules of any scheme in relation to a member's voluntary contributions to the extent that those contributions are paid under an agreement which was made before the specified date<sup>28</sup> and which has not, since that date, been varied<sup>29</sup>; and the requirement that the rules of the scheme must secure that the value of the additional benefits is reasonable having regard to the value of the other benefits under the scheme<sup>30</sup> does not apply to the rules of any scheme to the extent that the additional benefits provided in accordance with them are money purchase benefits<sup>31</sup>.

None of the voluntary contributions requirements applies to judicial pensions<sup>32</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS/(2) GENERAL PRINCIPLES RELATING TO OCCUPATIONAL AND OTHER PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/556A. Monitoring of employers' payments to personal pension schemes.

556A. Monitoring of employers' payments to personal pension schemes.

The following provisions apply where an employee is a member of a personal pension scheme and direct payment arrangements exist between the employee and his employer<sup>1</sup>. 'Direct payment arrangements' means arrangements under which contributions fall to be paid by or on behalf of the employer towards the scheme either on the employer's own account (but in respect of the employee), or on behalf of the employee out of deductions from the employee's earnings<sup>2</sup>.

The trustees or managers of the scheme must monitor the payment of contributions by or on behalf of the employer under the direct payment arrangements<sup>3</sup>. The trustees or managers may request the employer to provide them, (or arrange for them to be provided) with the payment information specified in the request<sup>4</sup>. Where, as a result of the employer's failure to so comply, the trustees or managers are unable to discharge the above duty<sup>5</sup>, they must give notice to that effect to the Regulatory Authority<sup>6</sup> within a reasonable period<sup>7</sup>. Where (1) a contribution payable under the direct payment arrangements has not been paid on or before its due date<sup>8</sup>, and (2) the trustees or managers have reasonable cause to believe that the failure to pay the contribution is likely to be of material significance in the exercise by the Regulatory Authority of any of their functions, they must give notice to that effect to the Regulatory Authority and the employee within a reasonable period after the due date<sup>9</sup>.

A person is guilty of an offence if he is knowingly concerned in the fraudulent evasion of the direct payment arrangements so far as they are arrangements for the payment by him or any other person of any contribution towards the scheme made on behalf of the employee out of deductions from the employee's earnings<sup>10</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum and, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or a fine or both<sup>11</sup>. No prosecution may be brought against the Crown for such an offence<sup>12</sup>.

In certain circumstances, regulations may provide for the above provisions to apply with such modifications as may be prescribed<sup>13</sup>. The provisions above do not vary the provisions of the direct payment arrangements or affect their enforceability<sup>14</sup>.

1 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(1) (s 111A added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 9).

3 Ibid s 111A(3) (s 111A(3) substituted by Pensions Act 2004 s 268(2)).

4 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(4). For the purposes of s 111A(4) 'payment information' is information required by the trustees or managers to enable them to discharge the duty imposed by s 111A(3): s 111A(5). The employer must comply with a request under s 111A(4) within a reasonable period: s 111A(6). If (1) the employer fails to take all such steps as are reasonable to secure compliance with the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(6) and as a result the trustees or managers of the scheme are unable to discharge the duty imposed by s 111A(3), or (2) a contribution payable under the direct payment arrangements is not paid to the trustees or managers of the scheme on or before its due date, the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (civil penalties: see PARA 611) applies to the employer: Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(8) a), (b) respectively (s 111A(8) amended by Pensions Act 2004 s 268(3)). A person is not required by virtue of head (2) above to pay a penalty under the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 in respect of a failure if in respect of that failure he has been (a) required to pay a penalty under that provision by virtue of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 3(7) (see PARA

873A.3) or (b) convicted of an offence under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(12) (see TEXT AND NOTE 10); s 111A(11).

5     le the duty imposed by ibid s 111A(3).

6     le the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority: see further PARA 598 et seq.

7     Pension Schemes Act 1993s 111A(7). See further NOTE 9.

8     'Due date', in relation to a contribution payable under the direct payment arrangements, means (1) if the contribution falls to be paid on the employer's own account, the latest day under the arrangements for paying it; (2) if the contribution falls to be paid on behalf of the employee, the last day of a prescribed period: ibid s 111A(15). The prescribed period is the period of 19 days commencing on the day following the last day of the month in which the deduction was made from the employee's earnings: Personal Pension Schemes (Payments by Employers) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2692 reg 5.

9     Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(7A) (s 111A(7A) added by Pensions Act 2004 s 268(2)).

If the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(7) or (7A) is not complied with, the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 applies to any trustee or manager of the scheme who has failed to take all such steps as are reasonable to secure compliance: Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(9) (s 111A(9) amended by Pensions Act 2004 s 268(4)).

10    Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(12).

11    Ibid s 111A(13).

12    However, ibid s 111A(12) applies to persons in the public service of the Crown as it applies to other persons: s 111A(14).

13    le in a case where direct payment arrangements give effect to a requirement arising under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 3(5): see further the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(16); and PARA 873A.3.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS/(2) GENERAL PRINCIPLES RELATING TO OCCUPATIONAL AND OTHER PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/557. Disclosure of information about schemes to members.

557. Disclosure of information about schemes to members.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may by regulations<sup>2</sup> specify requirements to be complied with in the case of an occupational pension scheme<sup>3</sup> or a personal pension scheme<sup>4</sup> with respect to keeping the specified persons informed:

- 1280 (1) of its constitution<sup>5</sup>;
- 1281 (2) of its administration and finances<sup>6</sup>;
- 1282 (3) of the rights and obligations that arise or may arise under it<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1283 (4) of any other matters that appear to the Secretary of State to be relevant to occupational pension schemes or personal pension schemes in general or to schemes of a description to which the scheme in question belongs<sup>8</sup>.

The specified persons are:

- 1284 (a) members and, in the case of an occupational pension scheme, prospective members<sup>9</sup> of the scheme<sup>10</sup>;
- 1285 (b) spouses of members and, in the case of an occupational pension scheme, of prospective members<sup>11</sup>;
- 1286 (c) persons within the application of the scheme and qualifying or prospectively qualifying for its benefits<sup>12</sup>;
- 1287 (d) in the case of an occupational pension scheme, independent trade unions<sup>13</sup> recognised to any extent for the purposes of collective bargaining in relation to members and to prospective members of the scheme<sup>14</sup>.

If the trustees or managers<sup>15</sup> of an occupational pension scheme or a personal pension scheme, having made default in complying with such regulations, fail to make good the default within 14 days after the service on them of a notice requiring them to do so, an order may be made under this provision<sup>16</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations specify forms for such notices<sup>17</sup>. Such an order is an order directing the trustees or managers to make good the default within such time as may be specified in the order<sup>18</sup>.

The power to make such an order is exercisable by the appropriate court<sup>19</sup> on the application of any of the following persons<sup>20</sup>:

- 1288 (i) the Secretary of State<sup>21</sup>;
- 1289 (ii) any person authorised by the Secretary of State to make such an application<sup>22</sup>; and
- 1290 (iii) any aggrieved person<sup>23</sup>.

Such an order may provide that all costs of and incidental to the application must be borne personally by any of the trustees or managers of the scheme<sup>24</sup>.

559. Membership to be voluntary.

Subject to such exceptions as may be prescribed<sup>1</sup>:

- 1291 (1) any term of a contract of service<sup>2</sup> (whenever made) or any rule of a personal or occupational pension scheme<sup>3</sup> to the effect that an employed earner<sup>4</sup> must be a member<sup>5</sup>:
- 145
198. (a) of a personal or occupational pension scheme;
199. (b) of a particular personal or occupational pension scheme; or
200. (c) of one or other of a number of particular personal or occupational pension schemes,
- 146
- 1292 is void<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1293 (2) any such term or rule to the effect that contributions must be paid by or in respect of an employed earner:
- 147
201. (a) to a particular personal or occupational pension scheme of which the earner is not a member; or
202. (b) to one or other of a number of personal or occupational pension schemes of none of which he is a member,
- 148
- 1294 is unenforceable for so long as he is not a member of the scheme or any of the schemes<sup>7</sup>.

The above provision must not be construed so as to have the effect that an employer<sup>8</sup> is required, when he would not otherwise be, to make contributions to a personal or occupational pension scheme; or to increase an employed earner's pay in lieu of making contributions to a personal or occupational pension scheme<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 555 note 1 ante. For the prescribed exceptions see PARA 744 post.

2 For the meaning of 'contract of service' see PARA 32 note 4 ante (definition applied by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1)).

6 Ibid s 160(1)(a).

7 Ibid s 160(1)(b).

8 For these purposes, 'employer' means: (1) in the case of an employed earner employed under a contract of service, his employer; (2) in the case of an employed earner employed in an office with emoluments, such person as may be prescribed in relation to that office or, if no such person is prescribed, the government department, public authority or body of persons responsible for paying the emoluments of the office: ibid s

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/13. INTRODUCTION TO PENSIONS/(2) GENERAL PRINCIPLES RELATING TO OCCUPATIONAL AND OTHER PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/560. Exemption of certain schemes from rule against perpetuities.

560. Exemption of certain schemes from rule against perpetuities.

The rules of law relating to perpetuities do not apply to the trusts of, or any disposition made under or for the purposes of, a personal or occupational pension scheme<sup>1</sup> at any time when it is<sup>2</sup>:

- 1295 (1) a public service pension scheme<sup>3</sup>;
- 1296 (2) an occupational pension scheme which is a contracted-out scheme<sup>4</sup> in relation to any employment<sup>5</sup>;
- 1297 (3) a personal pension scheme which is an appropriate scheme<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1298 (4) an occupational or personal pension scheme which satisfies prescribed<sup>7</sup> requirements<sup>8</sup>.

Regulations<sup>9</sup> under head (4) above may require a scheme:

- 1299 (a) to contain provisions in any prescribed form, or to any prescribed effect<sup>10</sup>;
- 1300 (b) to have tax exemption or tax approval<sup>11</sup> or to be such a scheme that it may be expected to qualify for tax exemption or tax approval<sup>12</sup>.

Such regulations may be so framed that, in prescribed circumstances, the requirements can be treated as satisfied if application has been duly made to the Inland Revenue with a view to obtaining tax approval for the scheme<sup>13</sup>. Regulations may include provision by which a scheme (other than a public service pension scheme<sup>14</sup>) to which this exemption ceases to apply may nevertheless be treated as continuing to be a scheme to which it applies for a period of two years from its ceasing to be such a scheme, or for such longer period as the Secretary of State<sup>15</sup> considers to be reasonable in the case of a particular scheme<sup>16</sup>. If this exemption ceases to apply to a scheme, trusts created and dispositions made under it or for its purposes are then again subject to the rules of law relating to perpetuities as if exemption had never applied to it<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'personal' or 'occupational' pension schemes see PARAS 710, 741 post.

2 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163(1). Section 163(1) applies whether the trusts or dispositions in question are created or made before or after s 163 first applies to the scheme, but s 163 does not validate with retrospective effect any trusts or dispositions which the rules of law relating to perpetuities (including, where applicable, the Perpetuities and Accumulations Act 1964 s 3(1) ('wait and see': see PERPETUITIES AND ACCUMULATIONS vol 35 (Reissue) PARA 1009)) already require to be treated as void before the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163 applies to the scheme: s 163(3).

3 Ibid s 163(2)(a). For the meaning of 'public service pension scheme' see PARA 874 post.

4 For the meaning of 'contracted-out scheme' see PARA 880 post.

5 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163(2)(b). 'Employment' includes any trade, business, profession, office or vocation and 'employed' except in the expression 'employed earner' (see PARA 32 ante: definition applied by s 181(1)) is to be construed accordingly: s 181(1).

6 Ibid s 163(3)(c). For the meaning of 'appropriate scheme' see PARA 880 note 9 post.

7 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 555 note 1 ante. An occupational pension scheme is a scheme to which ibid s 163 (as amended) applies at any time when it satisfies any of the following requirements: (1) it is a superannuation fund to which exemption from income tax is allowed under the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 608 (see PARA 748 post); (2) it is a superannuation fund to which the Inland Revenue gives relief from income tax under s 614(5) (overseas pensions); (3) it is a trust scheme approved by the Inland Revenue for the purposes of s 620(5) (see PARA 690 post); (4) it is a scheme, or part of a scheme, which is a retirement benefits scheme approved by the Inland Revenue for the purposes of Pt XIV Ch I (ss 590-612) (as amended) (see PARA 747 et seq post); and where an application for approval of the scheme or part of the scheme has been made under s 604 (see PARA 747 post), the scheme will be treated as satisfying the requirements of this head for so long as the application is not withdrawn or refused and the Inland Revenue has not told the applicant that it believes the application has been dropped; and (5) it is a retirement benefits scheme and the Inland Revenue is satisfied, under s 596(2)(b) (as amended) (see PARA 557 post), that the scheme corresponds to a scheme approved by the Inland Revenue for the purposes of Pt XIV Ch I (as amended): see the Personal and Occupational Pension Schemes (Perpetuities) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/1143, reg 3 (amended by SI 1994/1062).

A personal pension scheme is a scheme to which the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163 (as amended) applies at any time when it is approved by the Inland Revenue for the purposes of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 Pt XIV Ch IV (ss 630-655) (as amended) (see PARA 711 et seq post); and where an application for approval of the scheme has been made under s 631 (see PARA 711 post), the scheme will be treated as satisfying these requirements for so long as the application is not withdrawn or refused and the Inland Revenue has not told the applicant that it believes the application has been dropped: see the Personal and Occupational Pension Schemes (Perpetuities) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/1143, reg 4 (amended by SI 1994/1062).

9 For the meaning of 'regulations' see PARA 557 note 2 ante.

10 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163(4)(a).

11 For these purposes, 'tax exemption' and 'tax approval' mean respectively exemption from tax and approval of the Inland Revenue, in either case under any such provision of the Income Tax Acts as may be prescribed: Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1). For the meaning of 'the Income Tax Acts' see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 21.

12 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163(4)(b).

13 Ibid s 163(5).

14 For the meaning of 'public service pension scheme' see PARA 874 post.

15 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

16 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163(6) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 151, Sch 5 paras 18, 21). An occupational pension scheme that ceases to be contracted-out or to satisfy the requirements of any of heads (1)-(5) set out in note 7 supra, and a personal pension scheme that ceases to be an appropriate scheme or to satisfy the relevant requirements set out in that note, will nevertheless be treated as continuing to be a scheme to which the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163 (as amended) applies for a further period of two years from the cesser, or for such longer period as the Secretary of State considers reasonable in the case of the particular scheme: see the Personal and Occupational Pension Schemes (Perpetuities) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/1143, reg 4 (amended by SI 1994/1062; and SI 1996/2131).

17 Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163(7). Section 163(7) is without prejudice to any rights which vested while s 163 (as amended) applied: s 163(8). Regulations may provide for a scheme, whose fund was registered under the Superannuation and other Trust Funds (Validation) Act 1927 immediately before the repeal of that Act took effect, to retain the benefit of that Act subject to prescribed conditions and either indefinitely or for a prescribed period: Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163(9). At the date at which this volume states the law, no order bringing into force the repeal of the Superannuation and other Trust Funds (Validation) Act 1927 had been made. Until such time as that repeal is brought into force, the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 163 (as amended) has effect with the omission of s 163(9): see s 191, Sch 9 paras 1, 2.

562. Meaning of 'pensionable age'.

Pensionable age<sup>1</sup> means, in the case of a man, the age of 65<sup>2</sup> and, in the case of a woman,<sup>3</sup> the age of 60<sup>4</sup>. There is to be a graduated equalisation of the pensionable age until it is 65 for both men and women. The process of equalisation will begin on 6 July 2010 and will be completed by 6 March 2020<sup>5</sup>. Women born before 6 April 1950 will be unaffected<sup>6</sup> while women born after 5 April 1955 attain pensionable age at 65<sup>7</sup>. Once a person has reached the pensionable age he will be treated as being retired unless he opts for deferment of his pension entitlement<sup>8</sup>.

1 'Pensionable age' has the meaning given by the rules contained in the Pensions Act 1995 s 126, Sch 4 para 1: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1) (definition substituted by the Pensions Act 1995 ss 126(c), 134(4), Sch 4 para 13(a)). A population census is acceptable proof of a claimant's age in certain circumstances: see Decision CP 11/49. Medical evidence may also be relied upon: see Decision R(P)1/75.

565. Consequences of a failure to meet contribution conditions in full.

Benefits may be payable at a reduced rate for claimants who do not satisfy the contribution conditions in full but who otherwise qualify for a Category A or a Category B retirement pension<sup>1</sup>.

Regulations may provide for persons to be entitled to any of the following benefits, namely:

- 1307 (1) a widowed mother's allowance<sup>2</sup>;
- 1308 (2) a widow's pension<sup>3</sup>;
- 1309 (3) a Category A retirement pension<sup>4</sup>;
- 1310 (4) a Category B retirement pension<sup>5</sup>, in cases where the first contribution condition specified in relation to that benefit<sup>6</sup> is satisfied and the second contribution condition so specified is not<sup>7</sup>. The first condition is that the contributor concerned<sup>8</sup> must in respect of any one relevant year<sup>9</sup> have actually paid contributions of a relevant class<sup>10</sup> and that the earnings factor<sup>11</sup> must be not less than the qualifying earnings factor for that year<sup>12</sup>. The second condition is that (a) the contributor concerned must, in respect of each of not less than the requisite number of years of his working life<sup>13</sup>, have paid or been credited with contributions of a relevant class or been credited (in the case of 1987-88 or any subsequent year) with earnings; and that (b) in the case of each of those years, the earnings factor<sup>14</sup> must be not less than the qualifying earnings factor for that year<sup>15</sup>.

Regulations so made must provide for benefit payable by virtue of any such regulations to be payable at a rate, or to be of an amount, less than that which would be applicable<sup>16</sup> had both of the relevant contribution conditions been fully satisfied<sup>17</sup>; the rate or amount prescribed may vary with the extent to which the relevant contribution conditions are satisfied (and may be nil)<sup>18</sup> but the amount prescribed for any increase of benefit in respect of a child<sup>19</sup> must be the same as if both of the relevant contribution conditions had been fully satisfied<sup>20</sup>.

Regulations may also provide that where a person is entitled by virtue of the above provisions to a Category A or Category B retirement pension consisting only of the additional pension<sup>21</sup> with no basic pension<sup>22</sup>, and that retirement pension, and any graduated retirement benefit<sup>23</sup> to which he may be entitled, together amount to less than the prescribed rate, that person's entitlement as respects that retirement pension is to be satisfied either altogether or for a prescribed period by the making of a single payment of the prescribed amount<sup>24</sup>.

In any case where an employed earner<sup>25</sup> who is married dies as a result of a personal injury arising out of and in the course of his employment<sup>26</sup> or of a prescribed disease or injury<sup>27</sup> and the contribution conditions are not wholly satisfied in respect of the employed earner, those conditions must be taken to be satisfied for the purposes of the entitlement of the employed earner's widow or widower to any of the following benefits<sup>28</sup>:

- 1311 (i) a widow's payment<sup>29</sup>;
- 1312 (ii) a widowed mother's allowance;
- 1313 (iii) a widow's pension;
- 1314 (iv) a Category B retirement pension<sup>30</sup> for widows and widowers<sup>31</sup>, but this has effect only where the employed earner's death occurred on or after 11 April 1988<sup>32</sup>.

1 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 60 (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 126(c), Sch 4 para 21(9)); the Social Security (Widow's Benefit and Retirement Pensions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/642, reg 6 (as amended); and the text and notes 5-32 infra. 7 Ibid s 60(1).

8 For the meaning of 'contributor concerned' see PARA 55 note 7 ante.

9 For the purposes of the first condition, a relevant year is any year ending before that in which the contributor concerned attained pensionable age or died under that age; and the table set out in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5(5) shows the requisite number of years for the purpose of the second condition, by reference to a working life of a given duration: Sch 3 para 5(5). For the purposes of Pts I-VI (ss 1-122) (as amended), a person's working life is the period between (1) (inclusive) the tax year in which he attained the age of 16; and (2) (exclusive) the tax year in which he attained pensionable age or died under that age: Sch 3 para 5(8) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 134(5)). For the meaning of 'year' see PARA 55 note 7 ante; and for the meaning of 'pensionable age' see PARA 562 ante.

11 Ie the earnings factor derived (1) if that year is 1987-88 or any subsequent year, from earnings upon which such of those contributions as are primary Class 1 contributions were paid or treated as paid and any Class 2 or Class 3 contributions; or (2) if that year is an earlier year, from the contributions referred to in head (1) supra: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5(2)(b). For the meaning of 'the earnings factor' see PARA 56 ante.

12 Ibid Sch 3 para 5(2). The first condition is taken to be satisfied if the contributor concerned was entitled to long-term incapacity benefit at any time during the year in which he attained pensionable age or died under that age, or the year immediately preceding that year: Sch 3 para 5(6) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 para 38(1), (3)).

13 The second condition is taken to be satisfied notwithstanding that the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5(3)(a), (b) is not complied with as respects each of the requisite number of years if its requirements are complied with as respects at least half that number of years (or at least 20 of them, if that is less than half); and in each of the other years the contributor concerned was, within the meaning of regulations, precluded from regular employment by responsibilities at home: Sch 3 para 5(7) (the words in parentheses are prospectively repealed by the Pensions Act 1995 ss 126(b), 177, Sch 4 para 4, Sch 7 Pt II with effect to any person attaining pensionable age on or after 6 April 2010).

14 For these purposes, the earnings factor in the case of 1987-88 or any subsequent year is that which is derived from any earnings upon which such of the contributions mentioned in head (a) in the text as are primary Class 1 contributions were paid or treated as paid or earnings credited and any Class 2 or Class 3 contributions for the year; or in the case of any earlier year, is that which is derived from the contributions mentioned in head (a) in the text: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5(4).

565 Consequences of failure to meet contribution conditions in full

TEXT AND NOTES--References in the 1992 Act s 60 to a Category A or Category B retirement pension do not include one to which Sch 3 para 5A applies: s 60(9) (added by Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 4). See also 1992 Act s 60A (added by 2007 Act Sch 1 para 5) (failure to satisfy contribution condition in Sch 3 para 5A).

TEXT AND NOTES 1-15--The following provisions apply to (1) a Category A retirement pension in a case where the contributor concerned attains pensionable age on or after 6 April 2010; (2) a Category B retirement pension payable by virtue of the 1992 Act s 48A (see PARAS 572, 573) in a case where the contributor concerned attains pensionable age on or after that date; (3) a Category B retirement pension payable by virtue of s 48B (see PARAS 574, 575) in a case where the contributor concerned dies on or after that date without having attained pensionable age before that date: Sch 3 para 5A(1) (added by Pensions Act 2007 s 1(3)). The contribution condition for a Category A or Category B retirement pension in relation to which the 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5A applies is that (a) the contributor concerned must, in respect of each of not less than 30 years of his working life, have paid or been credited with contributions of a relevant class or been credited (in the case of 1987-88 or any subsequent year) with earnings; and (b) in the case of each of those years, the earnings factor derived as mentioned in Sch 3 para 5A(3) must be not less than the qualifying earnings factor for that year: Sch 3 para 5A(2) (as added). For the purposes of head (b), the earnings factor (i) in the case of 1987-88 or any subsequent year, is that which is derived from (A) so much of the contributor's earnings as did not exceed the upper earnings limit and upon which such of the contributions mentioned in head (a) as are primary Class 1 contributions were paid or treated as paid or earnings credited; and (B) any Class 2 or Class 3 contributions for the year; or (ii) in the case of any earlier year, is that which is derived from the contributions mentioned in head (a): Sch 3 para 5A(3) (as added). Regulations may modify Sch 3 para 5A(2) and (3) for the purposes of their application in a case where the contributor concerned has paid, or been credited with, contributions, or contributions have been deemed to be, or treated as, paid by or credited to him, under the National Insurance Act 1946 or the National Insurance Act 1965: 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5A(4) (as added).

Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5(1) amended: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 8 para 13(3); Pensions Act 2007 s 1(2).

NOTE 11--In head (1) for 'earnings' read 'so much of the contributor's earnings as did not exceed the upper earnings limit and': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5(2)(b) (amended by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 Sch 1 para 14(4), with effect in relation to the tax year 2003-04 and subsequent tax years (s 8(2))).

NOTE 12--The first condition will be taken to be satisfied if the contributor concerned was entitled to main phase employment and support allowance at any time during (1) the year in which he attained pensionable age or died under that age, or (2) the year immediately preceding that year: 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5(6A) (added by Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(13)). The reference in the 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5(6A) to main phase employment and support allowance is to an employment and support allowance in the case of which the calculation of the amount payable in respect of the claimant includes an addition under the Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 2(1)(b) or 4(2)(b) (addition where conditions of entitlement to support component or work-related activity component satisfied): 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5(6B) (added by 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(13)).

NOTE 13--Nothing in the 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5(7) applies in relation to any benefit to which s 23A (see PARA 565A) applies: Sch 3 para 5(7) (amended by Pensions Act 2007 s 3(2)).

Regulations may provide that a person is not to be taken for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5(7) as precluded from regular employment by responsibilities at home unless he meets the prescribed requirements as to the provision of information to the Secretary of State: Sch 3 para 5(7A) (added by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 40). TEXT AND NOTE 20--Subject to savings (see SI 2003/938), Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 60(6) repealed: Tax Credits Act 2002 Sch 6.

TEXT AND NOTE 28--In Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 60(2) after 'married' add 'or a civil partner' and for 'widow or widower' read 'widow, widower or surviving civil partner': Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 31.

565A. Contributions credits for relevant parents and carers.

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply to the following benefits (1) a Category A retirement pension in a case where the contributor concerned<sup>2</sup> attains pensionable age on or after 6 April 2010; (2) a Category B retirement pension<sup>3</sup> in a case where the contributor concerned attains pensionable age on or after that date; (3) a Category B retirement pension<sup>4</sup> in a case where the contributor concerned dies on or after that date without having attained pensionable age before that date; (4) a widowed parent's allowance payable in a case where the contributor concerned dies on or after that date; (5) a bereavement allowance payable in a case where the contributor concerned dies on or after that date<sup>5</sup>. The contributor concerned in the case of a benefit to which these provisions apply will be credited with a Class 3 contribution for each week falling after 6 April 2010 in respect of which the contributor was a relevant carer<sup>6</sup>. A person is a relevant carer in respect of a week if the person (a) is awarded child benefit for any part of that week in respect of a child under the age of 12, (b) is a foster parent<sup>7</sup> for any part of that week, or (c) is engaged in caring, within the meaning given by regulations, in that week<sup>8</sup>. The contributor concerned in the case of a benefit to which these provisions apply will be credited with 52 Class 3 contributions for each tax year ending before 6 April 2010 in which the contributor was precluded from regular employment by responsibilities at home<sup>9</sup>.

1    Ie the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 23A.

2    In ibid s 23A 'the contributor concerned' has the meaning given in s 21(5)(a) (see PARA 55): s 23A(9) (added by Pensions Act 2007 s 3(1)).

3    Payable by virtue of the 1992 Act s 48A (see PARAS 572, 573).

4    Payable by virtue of ibid s 48B (see PARAS 574, 575).

5    Ibid s 23A(1).

6    Ibid s 23A(2).

7    In ibid s 23A 'foster parent' has the meaning given by regulations: s 23A(9).

8    Ibid s 23A(3). Regulations may make provision for a person's entitlement to be credited with Class 3 contributions by virtue of falling within head (b) or (c) in the text to be conditional on the person (1) applying to be so credited in accordance with the prescribed requirements, and (2) complying with the prescribed requirements as to the provision of information to the Secretary of State: s 23A(4). In exercise of the power so conferred, the Secretary of State has made the Social Security (Contributions Credits for Parents and Carers) Regulations 2010, SI 2010/19 (amended by SI 2010/385).

9    Within the meaning of regulations under the 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5(7) (see PARA 565): s 23A(5). But the maximum number of tax years for which a person can be credited with contributions under s 23A(5) is (1) in the case of a benefit mentioned in heads (1)-(3) in the text, 22; (2) in the case of a benefit mentioned in head (4) or (5) in the text, half the requisite number of years of the person's working life: s 23A(6). The table in Sch 3 para 5(5) (requisite number of years of a working life of given duration: see PARA 565) applies for the purposes of head (2) as it applies for the purposes of the second condition set out in Sch 3 para 5(3): s 23A(7).

For the purpose of determining entitlement to a benefit to which s 23A applies, a week that falls partly in one tax year and partly in another is to be treated as falling in the year in which it begins and not in the following year: s 23A(8).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/14. STATE RETIREMENT PENSIONS/(1) INTRODUCTION/566. Contributions paid in error.

566. Contributions paid in error.

Regulations may, where the following provisions apply in the case of any individual, and the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> is of the opinion that it is appropriate for the regulations to apply to the individual, provide for entitlement to, and the amount of, additional pension<sup>2</sup> to be determined as if the individual had been an employed earner<sup>3</sup> and, accordingly, the contributions had been properly paid<sup>4</sup>. These provisions apply in the case of any individual if the individual has paid amounts by way of primary Class 1 contributions which, because the individual was not an employed earner, were paid in error, and prescribed conditions<sup>5</sup> are satisfied<sup>6</sup>. Where they apply in the case of any individual, and the Secretary of State is of the opinion that it is appropriate for regulations made to provide, during the transition from invalidity benefit to incapacity benefit<sup>7</sup>, for incapacity benefit to include the additional pension element of invalidity pension<sup>8</sup>, to have the following effect in the case of the individual, regulations may also provide for the transitional regulations mentioned to have effect as if, in relation to the provisions in force before 18 November 1994<sup>9</sup> with respect to that additional pension element, the individual had been an employed earner and, accordingly, the contributions had been properly paid<sup>10</sup>.

Regulations may also provide, where:

- 1315 (1) such provision made by regulations as is mentioned above<sup>11</sup> applies in respect of any individual;
- 1316 (2) prescribed conditions are satisfied; and
- 1317 (3) any amount calculated by reference to the contributions in question has been paid in respect of that individual by way of minimum contributions by the Secretary of State<sup>12</sup>, for that individual to be treated for the purposes of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 as if that individual had been an employed earner and, accordingly, the amount had been properly paid<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 This reference to additional pension is to additional pension for the individual or the individual's spouse falling to be calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45 for the purposes of (1) Category A retirement pension; (2) Category B retirement pension for widows or widowers; (3) widowed mother's allowance and widow's pension; and (4) incapacity benefit (except in transitional cases): s 61A(3) (s 61A added by the Pensions Act 1995 s 133). As to Category A and Category B retirement pension see PARA 568 et seq post; as to widowed mother's allowance see PARA 85 ante; as to widow's pension see PARA 86 ante; and as to incapacity benefit see PARA 59 et seq ante.

3 For the meaning of 'employed earner' see PARA 32 ante.

4 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 61A(2) (as added: see note 2 supra). Where such provision made by such regulations applies in respect of any individual, regulations under s 1(4), Sch 1 para 8(1)(m) (return of contributions: see PARA 47 ante) may not require the amounts paid by way of primary Class 1 contributions to be repaid: s 61A(5) (as so added). For the meaning of 'primary Class 1 contributions' see PARA 36 ante; and as to contributions generally see PARA 31 et seq ante.

Where s 61A (as so added) applies in the case of an individual and the Secretary of State is of the opinion that it is appropriate for the following provision to apply, the entitlement of the individual to, and the amount of, additional pension is to be determined as if the individual had been an employed earner and, accordingly, all of the primary Class 1 contributions in question had been properly paid: Social Security (Additional Pension) (Contributions Paid in Error) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1245, reg 3(1)(a). The reference to additional pension is to additional pension for the individual or the individual's spouse falling to be calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45 for the purposes of Category A retirement pension, Category B retirement pension for widows or widowers, widowed mother's allowance and widow's pension, and incapacity benefit (except in transitional cases): reg 3(2).

5 The prescribed conditions are that: (1) the Secretary of State is satisfied that the error was not made with the individual's consent or connivance or attributable to any negligence on the individual's part; (2) none of the contributions in question has been returned to the individual in accordance with the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 32 (as amended) (which provides for the return of contributions overpaid or paid in error); and (3) by the date on which the individual reaches pensionable age, or such later date as the Secretary of State considers reasonable in a particular case, the Secretary of State has not received written notification from the individual by a notice stating that the individual does not wish the Social Security (Additional Pension) (Contributions Paid in Error) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1245, reg 3 (see note 4 supra) to apply in his case: reg 2(1), (2). In a case where the individual in question has died, a reference to the individual, except in head (1) supra, includes a reference to his surviving spouse: reg 2(3).

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 61A(1) (as added: see note 2 supra).

7 As to that transition see PARA 59 ante.

8 Ie regulations made by virtue of the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 4(8): see PARA 59 ante.

9 Ie the commencement date of the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 4(8): see the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 (Commencement) Order 1994, SI 1994/2926.

10 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 61A(4) (as added: see note 2 supra). Where s 61A (as so added) applies in the case of an individual and the Secretary of State is of the opinion that it is appropriate for the following provision to apply, in the case of an individual who is entitled to a transitional award of incapacity benefit, regulations made by virtue of the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 4(8) (provision during transition from invalidity benefit to incapacity benefit for incapacity benefit to include the additional pension element of invalidity pension) have effect as if, in relation to the provisions in force before the commencement of that section with respect to that additional pension element, the individual had been an employed earner and, accordingly, all of the primary Class I contributions in question had been properly paid: Social Security (Additional Pension) (Contributions Paid in Error) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1245, reg 3(1)(b).

11 Ie regulations as mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 61A(2) or (4): see the text and notes 1-4, 7-10 supra.

12 Ie under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 43 (as amended): see PARA 913 post.

13 Where the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 61A (as added) applies in the case of an individual and the Secretary of State is of the opinion that it is appropriate for the following provision to apply, where any amount calculated by reference to the contributions in question has been paid in respect of the individual by way of minimum contributions under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 43 (as amended) (contributions to personal pension schemes: see PARA 913 post) the individual is to be treated for the purposes of that Act as if he had been an employed earner and, accordingly, the amount had been properly paid: Social Security (Additional Pension) (Contributions Paid in Error) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1245, reg 3(1)(c).

567. Persons not generally entitled to more than one retirement pension.

A person who would, apart from the general rule<sup>4</sup>, be entitled for the same period to both a Category A or a Category B retirement pension<sup>5</sup> and a Category C or a Category D retirement pension<sup>6</sup> is entitled to both of those pensions for that period, subject to any adjustment<sup>7</sup> of them in pursuance of regulations<sup>8</sup>; and a person who would, apart from the general rule, be entitled to both a Category A and a Category B retirement pension for the same period, or to both a Category C and a Category D retirement pension for the same period, may from time to time give notice in writing to the Secretary of State specifying which of those pensions he wishes to receive<sup>9</sup>. If a person gives such a notice, the pension so specified is the one to which he is entitled in respect of any week commencing after the date of the notice<sup>10</sup>. If no such notice is given, the person is entitled to whichever of the pensions is from time to time the most favourable to him (whether it is the pension which he claimed or not)<sup>11</sup>.

568. Entitlement to a Category A retirement pension.

A person is entitled<sup>1</sup> to a Category A retirement pension if he is over pensionable age<sup>2</sup> and he satisfies the specified<sup>3</sup> contribution conditions<sup>4</sup>. The person becomes so entitled on the day on which he attains pensionable age and his entitlement continues throughout his life<sup>5</sup>. A Category A retirement pension is not payable in respect of any period falling before the day on which the pensioner's entitlement is regarded<sup>6</sup> as commencing for that purpose<sup>7</sup>.

A failure to meet the full contribution conditions may mean that the retirement pension is paid at a reduced rate<sup>8</sup>. Except in certain limited circumstances<sup>9</sup>, the entitlement to a Category A retirement pension is based upon the claimant's own contributions record<sup>10</sup>.

TEXT AND NOTES--Now a person will be entitled to a Category A retirement pension if he is over pensionable age and he satisfies the relevant conditions or condition: 1992 Act s 44(1) (amended by Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 1(2)). 'The relevant conditions or condition' means (1) in a case where the person attains pensionable age before 6 April 2010, the conditions specified in the 1992 Act Sch 3 para 5; (2) in a case where the person attains pensionable age on or after that date, the condition specified in Sch 3 para 5A (see PARA 565): s 44(1A) (added by 2007 Act Sch 1 para 1(3)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/14. STATE RETIREMENT PENSIONS/(2) ENTITLEMENT/(i) Category A Retirement Pensions/569. Composition of a Category A retirement pension.

569. Composition of a Category A retirement pension.

A Category A retirement pension consists of a basic pension<sup>1</sup> payable at a weekly rate and an additional pension<sup>2</sup> payable where there are one or more surpluses in the pensioner's earnings factors<sup>3</sup> for the relevant years<sup>4</sup>. The weekly rate of the basic pension is determined in accordance with legislation which is frequently updated<sup>5</sup>. The weekly rate of the additional pension in a Category A retirement pension in any case where the pensioner attained pensionable age in a tax year<sup>6</sup> before 6 April 1999 is the weekly equivalent of 1.25 per cent of the amount of the surpluses in the pensioner's earnings factors for the relevant years<sup>7</sup>. The weekly rate of the additional pension in a Category A retirement pension in any case where the pensioner attains pensionable age in a tax year after that date is to be:

1318 (1) in relation to any surpluses in the pensioner's earnings factors for the tax years in the period beginning with 1978-79 and ending with 1987-88, the weekly equivalent of a percentage of the amount of those surpluses, that percentage being expressed as 25 divided by the number of tax years in the pensioner's working life<sup>8</sup> which fall after 5 April 1978<sup>9</sup>;

1319 (2) in relation to any surpluses in the pensioner's earnings factors in a tax year after 1987-88, the weekly equivalent of the relevant percentage<sup>10</sup> of the amount of those surpluses<sup>11</sup>.

Adjustments are made to the earnings factor for the purpose of calculating additional pension where, in the case of any relevant year, family credit<sup>12</sup> is paid in respect of any employed earner or disability working allowance<sup>13</sup> is paid to any employed earner<sup>14</sup>.

The sums which are the weekly rate of the additional pension in a Category A retirement pension are subject to alteration by orders made<sup>15</sup> by the Secretary of State<sup>16</sup>.

1 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(3)(a).

2 See ibid s 44(3)(b).

3 For these purposes and the purposes of ibid s 45 (see the text and notes 6-11 infra), there is a surplus in the pensioner's earnings factor for a relevant year if that factor exceeds the qualifying earnings factor for that year, and the amount of the surplus is the amount of that excess, as increased by the last order under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148 (as amended) (see PARA 56 ante) to come into force before the end of the final relevant year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(5A) (added by the Pensions Act 1995 s 128(1), (2)). For transitional provisions see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(8). Any reference for those purposes to the pensioner's earnings factor for any relevant year is a reference: (1) where the relevant year is 1987-88 or any subsequent tax year, to the aggregate of (a) his earnings factors derived from earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions were paid or treated as paid in respect of that year, and (b) his earnings factors derived from Class 2 and Class 3 contributions actually paid in respect of that year, or, if less, the qualifying earnings factor for that year; and (2) where the relevant year is an earlier tax year, to the aggregate of (a) his earnings factors derived from Class 1 contributions actually paid by him in respect of that year, and (b) his earnings factors derived from Class 2 and Class 3 contributions actually paid by him in respect of that year, or, if less, the qualifying earnings factor for that year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(6) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 128(1), (2)). The Secretary of State may, however, until an appointed day, prescribe circumstances in which pensioner's earnings factors for any relevant year may be calculated in such manner as may be prescribed: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(7A) (added, with transitory effect, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 6, Sch 4 paras 1-3). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed. For these purposes, 'relevant year' means 1978-79 or any subsequent tax year in the period between (inclusive) the tax year in which the pensioner attained the age of 16, and (exclusive) the tax year in which he attained pensionable age; and 'final relevant year' means the last tax year which is a relevant year in relation to the pensioner: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(7).

5 See ibid s 44(4) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 para 11; and amended by annual benefits up-rating orders: see PARA 17 ante).

6 For the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante.

7 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45(1). As to calculating the weekly equivalent see s 45(6), (7).

8 For the meaning of 'working life' see PARA 565 note 9 ante.

9 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45(2)(a), (4)(b). Regulations may direct that in prescribed cases or classes of cases any tax year must be disregarded for the purpose of calculating the number of tax years for these purposes, if it is a tax year after 5 April 1978 in which the (1) pensioner was credited with contributions or earnings by virtue of regulations under s 22(5) (see PARA 56 ante); or (2) was precluded from regular employment by responsibilities at home; or (3) would have been treated as falling within heads (1) or (2) supra in prescribed circumstances, but not so as to reduce the number of years below 20: s 45(5). The number of tax years is also calculated differently for the purpose of determining the additional pension falling to be calculated under s 45 by virtue of s 39(1) (as amended) (see PARA 87 ante) or s 48A(4) or s 48B(2) (both as added) (see PARAS 573, 575 post) in a case where the deceased spouse died under pensionable age: see s 46(2) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11, Sch 1 para 12; and the Pensions Act 1995 s 126(b), (c), Sch 4 paras 5, 21(5)).

568-570 Category A Retirement Pensions

As to the entitlement to a Category A retirement pension where a full gender recognition certificate is issued to a person see Gender Recognition Act 2004 Sch 5 para 7. See further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 121A.

569 Composition of a Category A retirement pension

TEXT AND NOTES--The weekly rate of the additional pension in a Category A retirement pension is reduced as follows in any case where (1) the pensioner has become subject to a state scheme pension debit; and (2) the debit is to any extent referable to the additional pension: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45B(1) (s 45B added by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 1, 2). If the pensioner became subject to the debit in or after the final relevant year, the weekly rate of the additional pension is reduced by the appropriate weekly amount: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45B(2). If the pensioner became subject to the debit before the final relevant year, the weekly rate of the additional pension is reduced by the appropriate weekly amount multiplied by the relevant revaluation percentage: s 45B(3). The appropriate weekly amount for the purposes of s 45B(2), (3) is the weekly rate, expressed in terms of the valuation day, at which the cash equivalent, on that day, of the pension mentioned in s 45B(5) is equal to so much of the debit as is referable to the additional pension: s 45B(4). The pension referred to above is a notional pension for the pensioner by virtue of s 44(3)(b) which becomes payable on the later of (a) his attaining pensionable age; and (b) the valuation day: s 45B(5). The relevant revaluation percentage is the percentage specified, in relation to earnings factors for the tax year in which the pensioner became subject to the debit, by the last order under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148 (see PARA 56) to come into force before the end of the final relevant year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45B(6). The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision about the calculation and verification of cash equivalents for the purposes of s 45B: s 45B(7) (substituted by Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 41(2)). The power conferred by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45B(7) includes power to provide (i) for calculation or verification in such manner as may be approved by or on behalf of the Government Actuary; and (ii) for things done under the regulations to be required to be done in accordance with guidance from time to time prepared by a person prescribed by the regulations: s 45B(7A) (added by 2000 Act s 41(2)). In exercise of such power, it is now provided that cash equivalents are to be calculated and verified in such manner as may be approved by or on behalf of the Government Actuary: Sharing of State Scheme Rights (Provision of Information and Valuation) (No 2) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2914, reg 4. 'Final relevant year' means the tax year immediately preceding that in which the pensioner attains pensionable age; 'state scheme pension debit' means a debit under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 49(1)(a) (see PARA 961B.3); and 'valuation day' means the day on which the pensioner became subject to the state scheme pension debit: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45B(8). For the meaning of tax year see PARA 961B.3.

NOTE 3--Reference to s 45 is now to s 45, Schs 4A and 4B; and for 'that year, and the amount of the surplus' read 'that year, the amount of the surplus is the amount of that excess and, for the purposes of s 45(1), (2)(a), (b), the adjusted amount of the surplus': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(5A) (amended by 2000 Act s 35(5), (6); and Pensions Act 2007 Sch 2 para 5(2)).

Head (1) now refers to any subsequent tax year before the first appointed year; and new head (3) where the relevant year is the first appointed year or any subsequent year, to the aggregate of his earnings factors derived from so much of his earnings as did not exceed the applicable limit and on which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid in respect of that year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(6) (amended by 2000 Act ss 30(2), 35(7); National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 Sch 1 para 10; and 2007 Act s 12(2)(a), Sch 2 para 5(3)). For the meaning of 'first appointed year' see PARA 56. 'The applicable limit' means (a) in relation to a tax year before 2009-10, the upper earnings limit; (b) in relation to 2009-10 or any subsequent tax year, the upper accrual point: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(7)(c) (added by 2007 Act s 12(2)(b); and amended by National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 s 3(3)). 'The upper accrual point' is £770: 1992 Act s 122(1) (substituted by National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 s 3(4)(a)). The Treasury may by regulations prescribe an equivalent of the upper accrual point in relation to earners paid otherwise than weekly (and references in this or any other Act to 'the prescribed equivalent', in the context of the upper accrual point, are to the equivalent prescribed under this provision in relation to such earners: 1992 Act s 122(6A) (s 122(6A), (6B) added by National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 s 3(4)

(b)). The power conferred by the 1992 Act s 122(6A) includes power to prescribe an amount which exceeds by not more than £1 the amount which is the arithmetical equivalent of the upper accrual point: s 122(6B) (as added).

The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A(1)-(4) applies to the first appointed year or any subsequent tax year before 2010-11: s 44A(A1) (added by 2007 Act Sch 1 para 34(2)). For the purposes of head (3), if any of the conditions in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A(2) is satisfied for a relevant year to which s 44A(1) applies, a pensioner is deemed to have an earnings factor for that year which is derived from so much of his earnings as did not exceed the applicable limit and on which primary Class 1 contributions were paid; and is equal to the amount which, when added to any other earnings factors taken into account under s 44A(2), produces an aggregate of earnings factors equal to the low earnings threshold: s 44A(1) (s 44A added by 2000 Act s 30(3); Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A(1) amended by National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 Sch 1 para 11; 2007 Act Sch 1 para 34(3); and National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 1 para 4(2)). For these purposes 'the applicable limit' has the same meaning as in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44: s 44A(5A) (added by National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 1 para 4(3)). The conditions referred to in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A(1) are that (a) the pensioner would, apart from s 44A, have an earnings factor for the year (i) equal to or greater than the qualifying earnings factor for the year; but (ii) less than the low earnings threshold for the year; (b) invalid care allowance (i) was payable to the pensioner throughout the year; or (ii) would have been so payable but for the fact that under regulations the amount payable to him was reduced to nil because of his receipt of other benefits; (c) for the purposes of Sch 3 para 5(7)(b) (see PARA 565), the pensioner is taken to be precluded from regular employment by responsibilities at home throughout the year by virtue of (i) the fact that child benefit was payable to him in respect of a child under the age of six; or (ii) his satisfying such other condition as may be prescribed; (d) the pensioner is a person satisfying the requirement in s 44A(3) to whom long-term incapacity benefit or qualifying employment and support allowance was payable throughout the year, or would have been so payable but for the fact that (i) he did not satisfy the contribution conditions in Sch 3 para 2 (see PARA 61) or, as the case may be, the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 1; or (ii) under regulations the amount payable to him was reduced to nil because of his receipt of other benefits or of payments from an occupational pension scheme or personal pension scheme: s 44A(2) (s 44A as so added). For provision under head (c)(ii) see the Additional Pension and Social Security Pensions (Home Responsibilities) (Amendment) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1323 (amended by SI 2009/2206); and the Social Security Pensions (Home Responsibilities) Amendment Regulations 2008, SI 2008/498. The requirement referred to in head (d) is that for one or more relevant years the pensioner has paid, or (apart from the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A) is treated as having paid, primary Class 1 contributions on earnings equal to or greater than the qualifying earnings factor, and the years for which he has such a factor constitute at least one-tenth of his working life: s 44A(3). For these purposes, a pensioner's working life does not include any tax year before 1978-79, or any year in which he is deemed under s 44A(1) to have an earnings factor by virtue of fulfilling the condition in heads (b) and (c), and the figure calculated by dividing his working life by ten is rounded to the nearest whole year (and any half year is rounded down): s 44A(4). The Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148A (added by 2000 Act s 33(1)) makes provision concerning the review by the Secretary of State, in the tax year preceding the first appointed year, and in each subsequent tax year, of the general level of earnings obtaining in Great Britain and, where there has been an increase in that level, to increase the low earnings threshold accordingly. As to the low earnings threshold for the tax years following the tax year 2008-09 see Social Security Pensions (Low Earnings Threshold) Order 2009, SI 2009/610; and as to that for the tax years following the tax year 2009-10 see Social Security Pensions (Low Earnings Threshold) Order 2010, SI 2010/468. In head (d)(ii) 'occupational pension scheme' and 'personal pension scheme' have the meanings given by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30DD(6) for the purposes of s 30DD(5) (see PARA 62): s 44A(6). In s 44A(2)(d) 'qualifying employment and support allowance' means contributory employment and support allowance where (A) that allowance was payable for a continuous period of 52 weeks; (B) that allowance included the support component under the Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 2(2); or (C) in the case of a man born between 6 April 1944 and 5 April 1947 or a woman born between 6 April 1949 and 5 April 1951, that allowance was payable for a continuous period of 13 weeks immediately following a period throughout which statutory sick pay was payable: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A(7) (added by SI 2008/1554). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A(1), a pensioner is deemed to have an earnings factor in relation to any relevant year as specified in s 44A(1) if severe disablement allowance was payable to him throughout the year, and he satisfies the requirement in s 44A(3): 2000 Act s 30(4). The following do not apply to a pensioner attaining pensionable age on or after 6 April 2010 (A) the requirement referred to in head (d), and (B) s 44A(3) and (4): s 44A(4A) (added by 2007 Act Sch 1 para 34(4)).

For deemed earnings factors from 2010-11 onwards and earnings factor credits see 1992 Act ss 44B, 44C (added by 2007 Act s 9(1); 1992 Acts s 44B amended by National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 1 para 5, Sch 2).

The 2007 Act s 12(6) applies if it appears to the Secretary of State that (apart from s 12(6)) he would be required to make an order under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148A by virtue of which the low earnings threshold for the following tax year would be an amount not less than the upper accrual point: 2007 Act s 12(5). In s 12 'the low earnings threshold' has the meaning given by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44A(5); and 'the upper accrual point' has the meaning given by s 122(7) and (8): 2007 Act s 12(10). In that event the Secretary of State (1) is not required to make such an order under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148A, and (2) instead must make an order abolishing the low earnings threshold and the upper accrual point as from the beginning of the following tax year: 2007 Act s 12(6). An order under s 12(6) may make (a) such consequential, incidental or supplemental provision, and (b) such transitional, transitory or saving provision, as the Secretary of State thinks necessary or expedient in connection with, or in consequence of, the abolition of the low earnings threshold and the upper accrual point: s 12(7). An order under s 12(6) may in particular amend, repeal or revoke any provision of any Act or subordinate legislation (whenever passed or made): s 12(8). No order may be made under s 12(6) unless a draft of the order has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 12(9).

NOTE 5--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(4) further amended: Social Security Act 1998 s 68; SI 2008/632.

TEXT AND NOTE 7--For 'amount' read 'adjusted amount': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45(1) (amended by 2000 Act s 35(1), (8)(a)). Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45(6) amended: 2000 Act s 35(1), (8)(b)).

TEXT AND NOTES 8-11--The weekly rate of the additional pension in a Category A retirement pension in any case where the pensioner attains pensionable age in a tax year after that date is now to be the sum of heads (1)-(3); in heads (1) and (2) for 'amount' read 'adjusted amount'; head (2) now refers to a tax year after 1987-88 but before the first appointed year; and new head (3) in relation to any tax years falling within the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45(3A), the weekly equivalent of the amount calculated in accordance with Sch 4A; and new head (4) in relation to the flat rate introduction year and subsequent tax years, the weekly equivalent of the amount calculated in accordance with Sch 4B: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45(2) (amended by 2000 Act ss 31(1), 35(8)(a); and 2007 Act s 11(2)). 'The flat rate introduction year' means such tax year as may be designated as such by order: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1) (amended by 2007 Act s 11(4)). The first appointed year and subsequent tax years before the flat rate introduction year fall within the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45(3A): s 45(3A) (added by 2000 Act s 31(2); amended by 2007 Act s 11(3)). As to the amount of the additional pension see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4A (added by 2000 Act s 31(3); and amended by Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 51; 2007 Act s 10, Sch 2 para 11, Sch 7 Pt 5; and National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 2). See also, with regard to the amount of the additional pension, the Additional Pension and Social Security Pensions (Home Responsibilities) (Amendment) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1323 (amended by SI 2009/2206), and the Social Security Pensions (Home Responsibilities) Amendment Regulations 2008, SI 2008/498. See also Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4B (added by 2007 Act s 11(5)(a), Sch 2 Pt 1; and amended by National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 2) (additional pension: accrual rates for purposes of head (4); further amended by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 11 Pt 2). See further Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148AA (added by 2007 Act s 11(5)(b), Sch 2 Pt 2) which makes provision for up-rating the flat rate accrual amount introduced by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4B.

NOTE 9--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 46(2) refers also to the calculation of additional pension under s 39C(1) (see PARA 87C): s 46(2) (amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 8 paras 2, 5(a)). Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 46(2) further amended: Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 23. The number of tax years is also now calculated differently for the purpose of determining the additional pension falling to be calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45 by virtue of s 48BB (see PARA 575A) in a case where the deceased spouse or civil partner died under pensionable age: see s 46(3) (added by 2000 Act s 32(1); and amended by Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 23). For the purpose of determining the additional pension falling to be calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45 by virtue of s 39C(1) (see PARA 87C) in a case where the deceased spouse or civil partner died under pensionable age, s 45 has effect subject to the following additional modifications (1) the omission of s 45(2)(d), and (2) the omission in s 45(3A)(b) of the words 'before the flat rate introduction year': s 46(4) (added by 2007 Act Sch 2 para 6).

570. Use of former spouse's contributions.

Where a person has been married<sup>1</sup> and, in respect of the tax year<sup>2</sup> in which the marriage terminated or any previous tax year, does not with his own contributions<sup>3</sup> satisfy the contribution conditions<sup>4</sup> for a Category A<sup>5</sup> retirement pension then, for the purpose of enabling him to satisfy those conditions (but only in respect of any claim for a Category A retirement pension), the contributions of his former spouse may to the prescribed extent<sup>6</sup> be treated as if they were his own contributions<sup>7</sup>.

This right to rely upon the contributions of a former spouse does not apply in relation to any person who attained pensionable age<sup>8</sup> before 6 April 1979 if the termination of his marriage also occurred before that date<sup>9</sup>. Where a person has been married more than once the entitlement to use a former spouse's contributions applies only to the spouse of the last marriage<sup>10</sup>.

1 The marriage in question must be valid both as to essential and formal validity: see Decisions R(P)9/59; R(P)1/59. Polygamous marriages are treated as monogamous during periods in which they are monogamous in fact: see the Social Security and Family Allowances (Polygamous Marriages) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/561 (as amended); and PARA 26 ante.

<sup>2</sup> Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 48BB(3), (4) (as added and amended: see NOTE 1). A pension so payable is payable at a weekly rate corresponding to the weekly rate of the additional pension determined in accordance with ss 44-45, Schs 4A and 4B (see PARAS 568, 569) as those provisions apply in relation to a Category A retirement pension, but subject to s 46(3) and to s 48BB(6)-(10) and the modification in s 48C(4): s 48BB(5) (as added, amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 ss 32(2), 35(1), (11); the Tax Credits Act 2002 Sch 3 para 31; and the Pensions Act 2007 Sch 2 para 9). Where the spouse or civil partner died under pensionable age, references in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 44-45, Sch 4A, as so applied, to the tax year in which the person attained pensionable age will be taken as references to the tax year in which the spouse or civil partner died: s 48BB(6) (as added, amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 35(1), (11); the Tax Credits Act 2002 Sch 3 para 31; and the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 27). Where the spouse or civil partner dies after 5 October 2002, the pension payable by virtue of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 48BB(4) will, before making any reduction required by s 48BB(8), be one half of the amount which it would be apart from this provision: s 48BB(7) (as added; and amended by Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 39(1), (2); and the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 27). Where the person was under the age of 55 at the relevant time, the weekly rate of the pension will be reduced by seven per cent of what it would be apart from this provision multiplied (1) by the number of years by which the person's age at that time was less than 55, any fraction of a year being counted as a year; or (2) by ten, if that number exceeds ten: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 48BB(8) (as added). For these purposes, 'the relevant time' means (a) where the person became entitled to a widowed parent's allowance in consequence of the death of the spouse or civil partner, the time when the person's entitlement to that allowance ended; and (b) otherwise, the time of the spouse's or civil partner's death: s 48BB(9) (as added; and amended by Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 27). The amount determined in accordance with the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 48BB(5)-(9) as the weekly rate of the pension payable to the person by virtue of s 48BB(4) will be increased by such percentage as equals the overall percentage by which, had the pension been in payment as from the date of the spouse's or civil partner's death until the date when the person attained pensionable age, that weekly rate would have been increased during that period by virtue of any orders under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150 (annual up-rating of benefits: see PARA 17): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 48BB(10) (as added; and amended by Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 27).

576. Category B retirement pension for widowers attaining pensionable age before 6 April 2010.

A man is entitled<sup>1</sup> to a Category B retirement pension if he has had a wife and she has died on or after 6 April 1979, and he was married<sup>2</sup> to her when she died and (1) they were both over pensionable age<sup>3</sup> when she died<sup>4</sup>; and (2) before her death she satisfied the relevant contribution conditions<sup>5</sup> for a Category A retirement pension<sup>6</sup>. In these circumstances the weekly rate of the man's Category B retirement pension is determined on the same basis as a Category A retirement pension<sup>7</sup> taking references in the relevant statutory provisions to the pensioner as being references to the wife<sup>8</sup>. In the case of a widower whose wife dies after 5 April 2000, the additional pension falling to be calculated<sup>9</sup> is to be one-half of the amount which it would otherwise be<sup>10</sup>.

A man becomes entitled to a Category B retirement pension on the day on which the conditions of entitlement become satisfied in his case and his entitlement continues throughout his life<sup>11</sup>. These provisions do not, however, confer a right to a Category B retirement pension on a man who attains pensionable age on or after 6 April 2010<sup>12</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/14. STATE RETIREMENT PENSIONS/(2) ENTITLEMENT/(iii) Category C and Category D Retirement Pensions/582A. Shared additional pension.

582A. Shared additional pension.

A person is entitled to a shared additional pension if he is (1) over pensionable age; and (2) entitled to a state scheme pension credit<sup>1</sup>. A person's entitlement to a shared additional pension continues throughout his life<sup>2</sup>. The weekly rate of a shared additional pension is the appropriate weekly amount<sup>3</sup>, unless the pensioner's entitlement to the state scheme pension credit arose before the final relevant year<sup>4</sup>, in which case it is that amount multiplied by the relevant revaluation percentage<sup>5</sup>.

The weekly rate of a shared additional pension is reduced as follows in any case where (a) the pensioner has become subject to a state scheme pension debit<sup>6</sup>; and (b) the debit is to any extent referable to the pension<sup>7</sup>. If the pensioner became subject to the debit in or after the final relevant year, the weekly rate of the pension is reduced by the appropriate weekly amount<sup>8</sup>. If the pensioner became subject to the debit before the final relevant year, the weekly rate of the additional pension is reduced by the appropriate weekly amount multiplied by the relevant revaluation percentage<sup>9</sup>. The pension referred to above is a notional pension for the pensioner<sup>10</sup> which becomes payable on the later of (i) his attaining pensionable age; and (ii) the valuation day<sup>11</sup>.

A person's entitlement to a shared additional pension is deferred (A) where he would be entitled to a Category A or Category B retirement pension but for the fact that his entitlement to such a pension is deferred, if and so long as his entitlement to such a pension is deferred; and (B) otherwise, if and so long as he does not become entitled to the shared additional pension by reason only of not satisfying the conditions relating to entitlement to benefit dependent on claim<sup>12</sup>.

Provision is made as to the entitlement to a shared additional pension where a full gender recognition certificate is issued to a person<sup>13</sup>.

1 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55A(1) (ss 55A-55C added by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 6 para 3; Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55C substituted by Pensions Act 2004 s 297(2)). 'State scheme pension credit' means a credit under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 49(1)(b) (see PARA 961B.3): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55A(7).

2 Ibid s 55A(2).

3 The appropriate weekly amount for these purposes is the weekly rate, expressed in terms of the valuation day, at which the cash equivalent, on that day, of the pensioner's entitlement, or prospective entitlement, to the shared additional pension is equal to the state scheme pension credit: ibid s 55A(4). 'Valuation day', in s 55A, means the day on which the pensioner becomes entitled to the state scheme pension credit: s 55A(7). The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision about the calculation and verification of cash equivalents for the purposes of s 55A: s 55A(6) (substituted by Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 41(3)). The power conferred by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55A(6) includes power to provide (1) for calculation or verification in such manner as may be approved by or on behalf of the Government Actuary; and (2) for things done under the regulations to be required to be done in accordance with guidance from time to time prepared by a person prescribed by the regulations: s 55A(6A) (added by Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 41(3)). In exercise of the power under ss 55A(6), 55B(7) (see NOTE 8) it is now provided that cash equivalents are to be calculated and verified in such manner as may be approved by or on behalf of the Government Actuary: Sharing of State Scheme Rights (Provision of Information and Valuation) (No 2) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2914, reg 4. 4 'Final relevant year' means the tax year immediately preceding that in which the pensioner attains pensionable age: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55A(7). For the meaning of tax year see PARA 961B.3.

5 Ibid s 55A(3). For the purposes of s 55A(3), the relevant revaluation percentage is the percentage specified, in relation to earnings factors for the tax year in which the entitlement to the state scheme pension credit arose, by the last order under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148 (see PARA 56) to come into force before the end of the final relevant year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55A(5).

6 'State scheme pension debit', means a debit under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 49(1)(a) (see PARA 961B.3): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55B(8).

7 Ibid s 55B(1).

8 Ibid s 55B(2). The appropriate weekly amount for the purposes of s 55B(2) and (3) (see TEXT AND NOTE 9) is the weekly rate, expressed in terms of the valuation day, at which the cash equivalent, on that day, of the pension mentioned in s 55B(5) (see TEXT AND NOTES 10, 11) is equal to so much of the debit as is referable to the shared additional pension: s 55B(4). 'Valuation day', in s 55B, means the day on which the pensioner became subject to the state scheme pension debit: s 55B(8). The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision about the calculation and verification of cash equivalents for the purposes of s 55B: s 55B(7) (s 55B(7) substituted by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 41(4)). The power conferred by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55B(7) includes power to provide (1) for calculation or verification in such manner as may be approved by or on behalf of the Government Actuary; and (2) for things done under the regulations to be required to be done in accordance with guidance from time to time prepared by a person prescribed by the regulations: s 55B(7A) (added by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 41(4)). As to the exercise of this power, see NOTE 3.

9 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55B(3). For the purposes of s 55B(3), the relevant revaluation percentage is the percentage specified, in relation to earnings factors for the tax year in which the pensioner became subject to the debit, by the last order under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 148 to come into force before the end of the final relevant year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55B(6).

(3) GRADUATED RETIREMENT BENEFIT

583. Graduated retirement benefit.

Graduated retirement benefit is payable as an increase in the weekly rate of the retirement pension. Graduated retirement benefit was introduced by the National Insurance Act 1959<sup>1</sup> and is now governed by provisions of the National Insurance Act 1965<sup>2</sup> which remain in force in order to ensure payment of the benefit for those who had actual or prospective rights prior to 6 April 1975<sup>3</sup>.

So long as the relevant provisions continue in force<sup>4</sup>, regulations may make provision:

- 1320 (1) for amending the provision relating to the value of unit of graduated contributions<sup>5</sup> so that the value is the same for women as it is for men and for replacing the provisions for an increase of graduated retirement benefit in cases of deferred retirement<sup>6</sup> with provisions corresponding to those providing for an increase in Category A or Category B retirement pensions<sup>7</sup> in cases of deferred retirement<sup>8</sup>;
- 1321 (2) for amending the provision for persons to be treated as receiving a nominal retirement pension<sup>9</sup> so that where a person has claimed a Category A or Category B retirement pension but is not entitled<sup>10</sup> to such a pension, either because of an election to defer retirement<sup>11</sup> or because he has withdrawn his claim for the pension, he is not to be treated for those purposes as receiving such a pension at a nominal weekly rate<sup>12</sup>;
- 1322 (3) for extending the provision for an increase of a woman's retirement pension by reference to her late husband's graduated retirement benefit<sup>13</sup> to men and their late wives and for that provision to apply, with modifications, as it applies to women and their late husbands<sup>14</sup>.

Heads (1) to (3) above are without prejudice to any other statutory power<sup>15</sup> to modify the provisions relating to graduated retirement benefit<sup>16</sup>.

The amount of the graduated retirement benefit is calculated as a specified sum per week of graduated contributions paid<sup>17</sup>. The pensioner must be over pensionable age<sup>18</sup>.

2 The provisions are the National Insurance Act 1965 ss 36, 37, 118(1); continued in force in modified form by virtue of the Social Security (Graduated Retirement Benefit) (No 2) Regulations 1978, SI 1978/393 (as amended and modified).

Regulations may provide that in the case of a person of any prescribed description<sup>1</sup> who has become entitled<sup>2</sup> to a Category A or Category B retirement pension<sup>3</sup> (but is, in the case of a woman<sup>4</sup>, under the age of 65 or, in the case of a man, under the age of 70)<sup>5</sup>, and who elects in such manner and in accordance with such conditions as may be prescribed<sup>6</sup> that the regulations are to apply in his case, the statutory provisions relating to contributory pensions<sup>7</sup> are to have effect as if that person had not become entitled to such a retirement pension<sup>8</sup>.

585. Increase of retirement pension where entitlement is deferred.

Where a person's entitlement to a Category A<sup>1</sup> or Category B<sup>2</sup> retirement pension is deferred the rate of pension is increased in accordance with the statutory provisions<sup>3</sup>. A person's entitlement to a Category A or Category B retirement pension is deferred if and so long as that person:

- 1323 (1) falls to be treated as not having become entitled<sup>4</sup> to that pension in consequence of an election<sup>5</sup> properly made<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1324 (2) does not become entitled to that pension by reason only of not satisfying the statutory conditions with respect to making a claim<sup>7</sup> for the benefit, or in the case of a Category B retirement pension payable by virtue of a spouse's contributions<sup>8</sup>, of the spouse not satisfying those conditions with respect to his Category A retirement pension<sup>9</sup>, and, in relation to any such pension, 'period of deferment' is to be construed accordingly<sup>10</sup>.

The sums which are the increases in the rates of retirement pension where entitlement is deferred are subject to annual up-rating<sup>11</sup>.

2 As to Category B retirement pensions generally see PARA 572 ante.

3 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55(1) (s 55 substituted by the Pensions Act 1995 s 143(3)). Where a person's entitlement to a Category A or Category B retirement pension is deferred, the rate of his pension is, in general, to be increased by an amount equal to the aggregate of the increments to which he is entitled under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 55(1), Sch 5 para 2 (as amended), but only if that amount is enough to increase the rate of the pension by at least 1%: Sch 5 para 1. As to the calculation of increments see Sch 5 paras 2, 3 (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 42; and by the Pensions Act 1995 s 126(c), Sch 4 para 21; further prospectively amended, with effect from 6 April 2010, by Sch 4 para 6). ### 585 Increase of retirement pension where entitlement is deferred

TEXT AND NOTES--Where a person's entitlement to a Category A or Category B retirement pension is deferred, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 5 has effect: s 55(1) (substituted by Pensions Act 2004 s 297(1)). The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 5 para A1 makes provision enabling an election to be made where the pensioner's entitlement is deferred, Sch 5 paras 1-3 make provision about increasing pension where the pensioner's entitlement is deferred, Sch 5 paras 3A, 3B make provision about lump sum payments where the pensioner's entitlement is deferred, Sch 5 para 3C makes provision enabling an election to be made where the pensioner's deceased spouse or civil partner has deferred entitlement, Sch 5 paras 4-7 make provision about increasing pension where the pensioner's deceased spouse or civil partner has deferred entitlement, Sch 5 paras 7A, 7B make provision about lump sum payments where the pensioner's deceased spouse or civil partner has deferred entitlement, Sch 5 paras 7C-9 make supplementary provision: s 55(2) (as so substituted; amended by SI 2005/2053). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 a person's entitlement to a Category A or Category B retirement pension is deferred if and so long as that person (1) does not become entitled to that pension by reason only (a) of not satisfying the conditions of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 1 (entitlement to benefit dependent on claim), or (b) in the case of a Category B retirement pension payable by virtue of a spouse's or civil partner's contributions, of the spouse or civil partner not satisfying those conditions with respect to his Category A retirement pension, or (2) in consequence of an election under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 54(1), falls to be treated as not having become entitled to that pension, and, in relation to any such pension, 'period of deferment' must be construed accordingly: s 55(3) (as substituted and amended). ## (ii) Increases for Invalidity

586. Increase of a Category A retirement pension for invalidity.

Apart from circumstances in which there has been a failure to meet the contribution<sup>1</sup> conditions<sup>2</sup>, the weekly rate<sup>3</sup> of a Category A retirement pension is to be increased if the pensioner was entitled to an age addition<sup>4</sup> to long-term incapacity benefit<sup>5</sup> in respect of any day falling within the period of eight weeks<sup>6</sup> ending immediately before the day on which he attains pensionable age<sup>7</sup> or the last day before the beginning of that period<sup>8</sup>.

The increase of a Category A retirement pension for invalidity is of an amount equal to the appropriate weekly rate of the age addition to long-term incapacity benefit on that day with regard to the rates in force from time to time<sup>9</sup>. Where for any period the weekly rate of a Category A retirement pension includes an additional pension<sup>10</sup>, the relevant amount<sup>11</sup> must be deducted from the amount that would otherwise be the increase for invalidity<sup>12</sup>. The pensioner is entitled to an increase only if there is a balance remaining after the deduction of the relevant amount and, if there is such a balance, the entitlement of the pensioner is to an increase equal to the balance remaining<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to contributions generally see PARA 31 et seq ante.

2 I.e. subject to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 61 (as amended): s 47(1). A Category A or Category B retirement pension which is payable by virtue of s 60(1) (as amended) (see PARA 565 ante) must not be increased under s 47(1) (as amended) if the pension contains no basic pension in consequence of a failure to satisfy a contribution condition: s 61(1). Where a person is entitled to short-term incapacity benefit at a rate determined under section 30B(3) (as added) (see PARA 62 ante) and the retirement pension by reference to which the rate of the benefit is determined would have been payable only by virtue of s 60 (as amended) and would, in consequence of a failure to satisfy a contribution condition, have contained no basic pension, the benefit must not be increased under s 47(1): s 61(2) (substituted by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 23). For the meaning of 'basic pension' see PARA 569 text and note 1 ante. As to Category A and Category B retirement pension generally see PARA 568 et seq ante.

3 For the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

4 As to age addition generally see PARA 588 post.

5 I.e. by virtue of regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30B(7) (as amended): see PARA 62 ante.

6 Regulations may provide that ibid s 47(1) (as amended) is to have effect as if for the reference to eight weeks there were substituted a reference to a larger number of weeks specified in the regulations: s 47(8).

7 For the meaning of 'pensionable age' see PARA 562 ante.

8 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 47(1) (s 47(1), (5) amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 para 13).

9 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 47(1), (5) (as amended: see note 8 supra).

10 For these purposes, any reference to an additional pension is a reference to that pension after any increase under ibid s 52(3) (see PARA 578 ante) but without any increase under s 55, Sch 5 paras 1, 2 (see PARA 585 ante): s 47(4). As to additional pension generally see PARA 579 text and note 2 ante.

11 For these purposes, 'the relevant amount' means an amount equal to the additional pension, reduced by the amount of any reduction in the weekly rate of the Category A retirement pension made by virtue of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 46 (as amended) (contracting out: see PARA 916 post): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 47(3) (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 39).

594. Pension increase in respect of person with care of children.

The weekly<sup>1</sup> rate of a Category A<sup>2</sup> retirement pension or a Category C<sup>3</sup> retirement pension payable to a person who satisfies the prescribed conditions<sup>4</sup> is to be increased by the amount specified in the legislation<sup>5</sup> for any period during which a person who is neither the spouse of the pensioner nor a child<sup>6</sup> has the care of a child or children in respect of whom the pensioner is entitled to child benefit<sup>7</sup>.

The increase does not apply if the pensioner is a person whose spouse is entitled to a Category B<sup>8</sup> retirement pension or to a Category C retirement pension where the entitlement to the Category C pension is on the basis<sup>9</sup> that she is over pensionable age and satisfies the prescribed conditions and her husband is entitled to a Category C pension<sup>10</sup>. Regulations may, however, in such a case in which the person referred to is residing with the pensioner and fulfils such further conditions as may be prescribed, authorise an increase of benefit under these provisions, but subject (taking account of the earnings<sup>11</sup> of the person residing with the pensioner, other than such of that person's earnings as may be prescribed) to provisions comparable to those that may be made<sup>12</sup> imposing an earnings reduction in any pension increase for a wife or (on or after 6 April 2010) for a spouse<sup>13</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/15. REGULATION OF PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/(1) THE OCCUPATIONAL PENSIONS REGULATORY AUTHORITY/(i) Establishment/598. Establishment of the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority.

15. REGULATION OF PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION

(1) THE OCCUPATIONAL PENSIONS REGULATORY AUTHORITY

(i) Establishment

598. Establishment of the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority.

There is a body corporate called the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority ('the authority')<sup>1</sup>. The authority must consist of not less than seven members appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup>, one of whom must be so appointed as chairman<sup>3</sup>. In addition to the chairman, the authority must comprise:

- 1327 (1) a member appointed after the Secretary of State has consulted organisations appearing to him to be representative of employers<sup>4</sup>;
- 1328 (2) a member appointed after the Secretary of State has consulted organisations appearing to him to be representative of employees<sup>5</sup>;
- 1329 (3) a member who appears to the Secretary of State to be knowledgeable about life assurance business<sup>6</sup>;
- 1330 (4) a member who appears to the Secretary of State to have experience of, and to have shown capacity in, the management or administration of occupational pension schemes<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1331 (5) two members who appear to the Secretary of State to be knowledgeable about occupational pension schemes<sup>8</sup>, and such other member or members as the Secretary of State may appoint<sup>9</sup>. Neither the authority nor any person who is a member or employee of the authority is liable in damages for anything done or omitted in the discharge or purported discharge of the functions of the authority under Part I of the Pensions Act 1995<sup>10</sup> or the Pension Schemes Act 1993<sup>11</sup>, or any provisions in force in Northern Ireland corresponding to either of them, unless it is shown that the act or omission was in bad faith<sup>12</sup>.

The authority must not be regarded as the servant or agent of the Crown, or as enjoying any status, privilege or immunity of the Crown and its property must not be regarded as property of, or property held on behalf of, the Crown<sup>13</sup>. The authority may do anything (except borrow money) which is calculated to facilitate the discharge of its functions, or is incidental or conducive to their discharge<sup>14</sup>.

A person holds and vacates office as chairman or other member of the authority in accordance with the terms of the instrument appointing him<sup>15</sup>. If, however, a member of the authority becomes or ceases to be chairman, the Secretary of State may vary the terms of the instrument appointing him to be a member so as to alter the date on which he is to vacate office<sup>16</sup>. A person may at any time resign office as chairman or other member of the authority by giving written notice of his resignation signed by him to the Secretary of State<sup>17</sup>. The chairman of the authority may at any time be removed from office by notice in writing given to him by the Secretary of State<sup>18</sup> and if a person so ceases to be chairman, he must cease to be a member of the authority<sup>19</sup>.

If the Secretary of State is satisfied that a member of the authority other than the chairman:

- 1332 (a) has been absent from meetings of the authority for a period longer than three consecutive months without the authority's permission;
- 1333 (b) has become bankrupt or made an arrangement with his creditors; or
- 1334 (c) is unable or unfit to discharge the functions of a member, the Secretary of State may remove that member by notice in writing<sup>20</sup>.

The Secretary of State may pay the authority such sums as he thinks fit towards its expenses<sup>21</sup>. The authority may pay, or make provision for paying, to or in respect of the chairman or any other member such salaries or other remuneration, and such pensions, allowances, fees, expenses or gratuities, as the Secretary of State may determine<sup>22</sup>. Where a person ceases to be a member of the authority otherwise than on the expiration of his term of office and it appears to the Secretary of State that there are circumstances which make it right for that person to receive compensation, the authority may make to that person a payment of such amount as the Secretary of State may determine<sup>23</sup>.

All members of the authority are disqualified for membership of the House of Commons<sup>24</sup>.

The authority is subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration<sup>25</sup>.

The authority is the Registrar of Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes<sup>26</sup>.

The Occupational Pensions Board was dissolved with effect from 6 April 1997<sup>27</sup>.

605. Suspension orders.

The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority<sup>1</sup> may by order suspend a trustee of a trust scheme<sup>2</sup>:

- 1354 (1) pending consideration being given to the making of a prohibition order<sup>3</sup> against him<sup>4</sup>;
- 1355 (2) where proceedings have been instituted against him for an offence involving dishonesty or deception and have not been concluded<sup>5</sup>;
- 1356 (3) where a petition has been presented to the court for an order adjudging him bankrupt, or for the sequestration of his estate, and proceedings on the petition have not been concluded<sup>6</sup>;
- 1357 (4) where the trustee is a company, if a petition for the winding up of the company has been presented to the court and proceedings on the petition have not been concluded<sup>7</sup>;
- 1358 (5) where an application has been made to the court for a disqualification order against him under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986<sup>8</sup> and proceedings on the application have not been concluded<sup>9</sup>; or
- 1359 (6) where the trustee is a company or Scottish partnership<sup>10</sup> and, if any director or, as the case may be, partner were a trustee, the authority would have power to suspend him under head (2), head (3) or head (5) above<sup>11</sup>.

Such an order:

- 1360 (a) if made by virtue of head (1) above has effect for an initial period not exceeding 12 months<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1361 (b) in any other case, has effect until the proceedings in question are concluded<sup>13</sup>, but the authority may by order extend the initial period referred to in head (a) above for a further period of 12 months, and any such suspension order suspending a person ceases to have effect if a prohibition order<sup>14</sup> is made against that person<sup>15</sup>.

A suspension order has the effect of prohibiting the person suspended, during the period of his suspension, from exercising any functions as trustee of any trust scheme to which the order applies; and the order may apply to a particular trust scheme, a particular class of trust schemes or trust schemes in general<sup>16</sup>. Such an order may be made on one of the grounds set out in heads (2) to (5) above whether or not the proceedings were instituted, petition presented or application made (as the case may be) before or after 6 April 1997<sup>17</sup>. The authority may, on the application of any person so suspended, by order revoke the order, either generally or in relation to a particular scheme or a particular class of schemes; but a revocation made at any time cannot affect anything done before that time<sup>18</sup>. A suspension order may make provision as respects the period of the trustee's suspension for matters arising out of it, and in particular for enabling any person to execute any instrument in his name or otherwise act for him and for adjusting any rules governing the proceedings of the trustees to take account of the reduction in the number capable of acting<sup>19</sup>.

598-636 The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority

The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority ('OPRA') is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(1). An order under s 322 which appoints the day on which s 300(1) comes into force (ie 6 April 2005: see SI 2005/695) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which OPRA is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become the property, rights and liabilities of the Pensions Regulator or the Secretary of State, and (2) for any function of OPRA falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Regulator, the Secretary of State or the Department for Social Development in Northern Ireland: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(2). Subject to s 300(4), information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 82-87 (disclosure of information: see PARA 636A.34) as having been obtained by the Regulator in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom OPRA obtained it: s 300(3). Information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) which was supplied to OPRA for the purposes of its functions by an authority exercising functions corresponding to the functions of OPRA in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom (the 'overseas authority') is to be treated for the purposes mentioned in s 300(3) as having been supplied to the Regulator for the purposes of its functions by the overseas authority: s 300(4). Where tax information disclosed to OPRA is obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2), s 300(3) does not apply and s 88(3) and (4) (see PARA 636A.34) applies as if that information had been disclosed to the Regulator by virtue of s 88(2): s 300(5). ### 607. Removal or suspension of trustees; consequences.

Where a trustee of a trust scheme<sup>1</sup> is removed by a prohibition order<sup>2</sup>, or a trustee of such a scheme ceases to be a trustee by reason of his disqualification, the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority<sup>3</sup> may by order appoint another trustee in his place<sup>4</sup>. ### 611. Civil penalties.

Where the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that by reason of any act or omission the following provisions apply to any person, it may by notice in writing require him to pay, within a prescribed period<sup>2</sup>, a penalty in respect of that act or omission not exceeding the maximum amount<sup>3</sup>. 'The maximum amount' means:

- 1370 (1) £5,000 in the case of an individual and £50,000 in any other case<sup>4</sup>; or
- 1371 (2) such lower amount as may be prescribed in the case of an individual or in any other case<sup>5</sup>, and the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup> may by order amend head (1) above by substituting higher amounts for the amounts for the time being specified in that head<sup>7</sup>.

Regulations<sup>8</sup> made by virtue of Part I of the Pensions Act 1995<sup>9</sup> may provide for any person who has contravened<sup>10</sup> any provision of such regulations to pay, within a prescribed period, a penalty not exceeding an amount specified in the regulations; and the regulations must specify different amounts in the case of individuals from those specified in other cases and any amount so specified may not exceed the amount for the time being specified in the case of individuals or, as the case may be, others in head (1) above<sup>11</sup>. An order or regulations so made does or do not affect the amount of any penalty recoverable under these provisions by reason of an act or omission occurring before the order is or, as the case may be, the regulations are made<sup>12</sup>.

Where<sup>13</sup> (a) such a penalty is recoverable from a body corporate or Scottish partnership<sup>14</sup> by reason of any act or omission of the body or partnership as a trustee of a trust scheme<sup>15</sup>; and (b) the act or omission was done with the consent or connivance of, or is attributable to any neglect on the part of, any persons mentioned below<sup>16</sup>, these provisions apply to each of those persons who consented to or connived in the act or omission or to whose neglect the act or omission was attributable<sup>17</sup>.

The persons referred to in head (b) above:

- 1372 (i) in relation to a body corporate, are any director, manager, secretary, or other similar officer of the body, or a person purporting to act in any such capacity<sup>18</sup>, and where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, any member in connection with his functions of management<sup>19</sup>; and
- 1373 (ii) in relation to a Scottish partnership, are the partners<sup>20</sup>.

Where the authority requires any person to pay such a penalty it may not also require the body corporate, or Scottish partnership, in question to pay a penalty in respect of the same act or omission<sup>21</sup>. A penalty under these provisions is recoverable by the authority<sup>22</sup> which must pay to the Secretary of State any penalty so recovered<sup>23</sup>.

612. Powers to wind up schemes.

Subject to the following provisions, the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority<sup>1</sup> may by order direct or authorise an occupational pension scheme<sup>2</sup> to be wound up if it is satisfied that:

- 1374 (1) the scheme, or any part of it, ought to be replaced by a different scheme<sup>3</sup>;
- 1375 (2) the scheme is no longer required<sup>4</sup>; or
- 1376 (3) it is necessary in order to protect the interests of the generality of the members<sup>5</sup> of the scheme that it be wound up<sup>6</sup>.

The authority may not make an order on either of the grounds referred to in head (1) or head (2) above unless it is satisfied that the winding up of the scheme:

- 1377 (a) cannot be achieved otherwise than by means of such an order<sup>7</sup>; or
- 1378 (b) can only be achieved in accordance with a procedure which:
  - 151 205. (i) is liable to be unduly complex or protracted; or
  - 206. (ii) involves the obtaining of consents which cannot be obtained, or can only be obtained with undue delay or difficulty<sup>8</sup>, and that it is reasonable in all the circumstances to make the order<sup>9</sup>.
  - 152

Such an order made on either of the grounds referred to in head (1) or head (2) above may be made only on the application of the trustees or managers<sup>10</sup> of the scheme<sup>11</sup>, any person other than the trustees or managers who has power to alter any of the rules of the scheme<sup>12</sup>, or the employer<sup>13</sup>.

Such an order authorising a scheme to be wound up must include such directions with respect to the manner and timing of the winding up as the authority thinks appropriate having regard to the purposes of the order<sup>14</sup>. The winding up of a scheme in pursuance of an order of the authority is as effective in law as if it had been made under powers conferred by or under the scheme<sup>15</sup>. An order may be made and complied with in relation to a scheme in spite of any enactment<sup>16</sup> or rule of law, or any rule of the scheme, which would otherwise operate to prevent the winding up<sup>17</sup>, or (except for the purpose of the authority determining whether or not it is satisfied as mentioned above), without regard to any such enactment, rule of law or rule of the scheme as would otherwise require, or might otherwise be taken to require, the implementation of any procedure or the obtaining of any consent, with a view to the winding up<sup>18</sup>.

In the case of a public service pension scheme<sup>19</sup> an order directing or authorising the scheme to be wound up may only be made on the grounds referred to in head (3) above<sup>20</sup>, and such an order may, as the authority thinks appropriate, adapt, amend or repeal any enactment in which the scheme is contained or under which it is made<sup>21</sup>.

UPDATE

598-676 Regulation of Private Pension Provision

As to the Personal Accounts Delivery Authority see PARA 676A.

598-636 The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority

The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority ('OPRA') is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(1). An order under s 322 which appoints the day on which s 300(1) comes into force (ie 6 April 2005: see SI 2005/695) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which OPRA is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become the property, rights and liabilities of the Pensions Regulator or the Secretary of State, and (2) for any function of OPRA falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Regulator, the Secretary of State or the Department for Social Development in Northern Ireland: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(2). Subject to s 300(4), information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 82-87 (disclosure of information: see PARA 636A.34) as having been obtained by the Regulator in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom OPRA obtained it: s 300(3). Information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) which was supplied to OPRA for the purposes of its functions by an authority exercising functions corresponding to the functions of OPRA in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom (the 'overseas authority') is to be treated for the purposes mentioned in s 300(3) as having been supplied to the Regulator for the purposes of its functions by the overseas authority: s 300(4). Where tax information disclosed to OPRA is obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2), s 300(3) does not apply and s 88(3) and (4) (see PARA 636A.34) applies as if that information had been disclosed to the Regulator by virtue of s 88(2): s 300(5). For this purpose 'tax information' has the same meaning as in s 88: s 300(5). For provision relating to the transfer of employees from OPRA to the Regulator see s 301.

As to the Pensions Regulator see Pensions Act 2004 Pt 1 (ss 1-106, Schs 1-4); and PARA 636A.

612 Powers to wind up schemes

NOTE 5--In definition of 'member' reference to pensioner member is now to pensioner or pension credit member: Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1) (amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 para 61(2)). 'Pensioner member' is also not an active member of the scheme: Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1) (amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 Sch 5 para 8(3)). After an occupational pension scheme has been wound up, the subsequent acquisition of a cause of action by the trustees will not make the beneficiaries 'members' under the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1) or the Register of Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes Regulations 1997, SI 1997/371, reg 1(4)(a) (SI 1997/371 replaced: SI 2005/597): Bus Employees Pension Trustees Ltd v Harrod; NBPF Pension Trustees Ltd v Paddock [1999] 2 All ER 993.

Definition of 'transfer credits' in Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1) amended: Pensions Act 2004 Sch 12 para 69(2).

TEXT AND NOTES 11-13--1995 Act s 11(3) omitted: 2004 Act s 22(a), Sch 13 Pt 1.

The Authority may, during an assessment period (within the meaning of s 132 (meaning of 'assessment period' for the purposes of Pt 2: see PARA 659C.7) in relation to an occupational pension scheme, by order direct the scheme to be wound up if they are satisfied that it is necessary to do so in order (1) to ensure that the scheme's protected liabilities do not exceed its assets, or (2) if those liabilities do exceed its assets, to keep the excess to a minimum: 1995 Act s 11(3A) (added by the 2004 Act s 22(b)). In the 1995 Act s 11(3A) (a) 'protected liabilities' has the meaning given by the 2004 Act s 131 (see PARA 659C.6), and (b) references to the assets of the scheme are references to those assets excluding any assets representing the value of any rights in respect of money purchase benefits (within the meaning of the 2004 Act) under the scheme: 1995 Act s 11(3B) (as so added).

TEXT AND NOTE 14--Ibid s 11(4) is subject to the 2004 Act ss 28, 135 and 219 (winding up order made when freezing order has effect in relation to scheme, during assessment period under Pt 2 etc): 1995 Act s 11(4) (amended by the 2004 Act s 22(c)).

TEXT AND NOTES 17, 18--The 1995 Act s 11(6) does not have effect to authorise the Authority to make an order as mentioned in s 11(6)(a) or (b), if their doing so would be unlawful as a result of the Human Rights Act 1998 s 6(1) (unlawful for public authority to act in contravention of a Convention right: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS): 1995 Act s 11(6A) (added by the 2004 Act s 22(d)).

613. Powers to wind up public service schemes exercisable by appropriate authority.

The appropriate authority<sup>1</sup> may by order direct a public service pension scheme<sup>2</sup> to be wound up if it is satisfied that the scheme, or any part of it, ought to be replaced by a different scheme<sup>3</sup>, or the scheme is no longer required<sup>4</sup>. Such an order may, as that authority thinks appropriate, adapt, amend or repeal any enactment<sup>6</sup> in which the scheme is contained or under which it is made<sup>7</sup>.

1 'The appropriate authority', in relation to a scheme, means such Minister of the Crown or government department as may be designated by the Treasury as having responsibility for the particular scheme: Pensions Act 1995 s 12(3). Section 11(2) (see PARA 612 ante) applies for the purposes of s 12 as it applies for the purposes of s 11, but as if references to the authority were to the appropriate authority: s 12(2).

617. Review of decisions.

Subject to the following provisions and to those relating to references and appeals from the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority<sup>1</sup>, any determination by the authority of a question which it is within its functions to determine is final<sup>2</sup>. The authority must, on the application of any person ('the applicant') at any time within the prescribed period<sup>3</sup>, review any of its determinations:

- 1385 (1) to make a prohibition order<sup>4</sup> against the applicant<sup>5</sup>;
- 1386 (2) to require the applicant to pay a penalty<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1387 (3) to disqualify<sup>7</sup> the applicant from being a trustee of any trust scheme<sup>8</sup>.

The authority may on the application of a person appearing to it to be interested:

- 1388 (a) at any time review any such other of its determinations as is mentioned above (including a determination given by the authority on a previous review), if it is satisfied that there has been a relevant change of circumstances since the determination was made, or that the determination was made in ignorance of a material fact or based on a mistake as to a material fact or was erroneous in point of law<sup>9</sup>;
- 1389 (b) at any time within a period of six months from the date of the determination, or within such longer period as it may allow in any particular case, review such a determination on any ground<sup>10</sup>.

The authority's powers on such reviews include power:

- 1390 (i) to vary or revoke any determination or order previously made<sup>11</sup>;
- 1391 (ii) to substitute a different determination or order<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1392 (iii) generally to deal with the matters arising on the review as if they had arisen on the original determination<sup>13</sup>, and also include power to make savings and transitional provisions<sup>14</sup>.

Regulations<sup>15</sup> may make provision with respect to the procedure to be adopted on any application for such reviews under the above provisions or under any corresponding provision in force in Northern Ireland and generally with respect to such applications and reviews<sup>16</sup>.

2 Ibid s 96(1). Where the authority makes a determination, it must send to such persons as appear to the authority to be directly affected a notice in writing which contains the determination and the reasons for that determination and which specifies the right to apply for a review of that determination and the time limit for making such an application: Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/794, reg 2. Any document required or authorised by those regulations to be sent or delivered to any person is duly sent or delivered if it is sent to that person's appropriate address by post or if it is delivered to that person or left at that person's appropriate address: reg 20(1). The appropriate address of any person (except the authority) to whom any such document is to be sent or delivered is the address given by that person, or if none, the last known address of that person or, in the case of an incorporated company or body, the registered or principal office of that company or body: reg 20(3).

3 For these purposes, the prescribed period is 28 days beginning with the date of the notice referred to in ibid reg 2 (see note 2 supra): reg 3(2). The authority may, however, in any particular case extend the time limit so prescribed, or prescribed in any corresponding provision in force in Northern Ireland, whether or not it has already expired: reg 3(4). Where the time prescribed by the 1997 Regulations for doing any act expires on a public holiday, the act is in time if done on the next following day which is not a public holiday: reg 18(2). Subject to the provisions of reg 3(4), where the authority is satisfied that a person to whom the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/794, apply (other than the authority) could not reasonably be expected to send any document, or documents of any description, within the time limit imposed in those regulations, the authority may extend the time limit, whether or not it has already expired, in relation to that document or documents of that description: reg 18(1). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 555 note 1 ante.

5 Ibid s 96(2)(a).

6 Ie under ibid s 10 (see PARA 611 ante) or under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 168(4) (as substituted) (see PARA 970 post): see the Pensions Act 1995 s 96(2)(b).

7 Ie disqualification under ibid s 29(3) or (4): see PARA 788 post.

8 Ibid s 96(2)(c). For the meaning of 'trust scheme' see PARA 604 note 2 ante.

9 Ibid s 96(3)(a).

11 Ibid s 96(4)(a).

12 Ibid s 96(4)(b).

15 For the meaning of 'regulations' see PARA 600 note 2 ante.

16 Pensions Act 1995 s 96(5). Nothing in s 96(5) is to be taken to prevent such a review being entered upon by the authority without an application being made: s 96(6). In exercise of these powers, the Secretary of State for Social Security has made the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/794, which came into force on 6 April 1997 (reg 1(1)) and which, with the exception of regs 3(2), 21, apply to Northern Ireland (reg 1(4)). ### 598-676 Regulation of Private Pension Provision

598-636 The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority

The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority ('OPRA') is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(1). An order under s 322 which appoints the day on which s 300(1) comes into force (ie 6 April 2005: see SI 2005/695) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which OPRA is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become the property, rights and liabilities of the Pensions Regulator or the Secretary of State, and (2) for any function of OPRA falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Regulator, the Secretary of State or the Department for Social Development in Northern Ireland: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(2). Subject to s 300(4), information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 82-87 (disclosure of information: see PARA 636A.34) as having been obtained by the Regulator in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom OPRA obtained it: s 300(3). Information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) which was supplied to OPRA for the purposes of its functions by an authority exercising functions corresponding to the functions of OPRA in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom (the 'overseas authority') is to be treated for the purposes mentioned in s 300(3) as having been supplied to the Regulator for the purposes of its functions by the overseas authority: s 300(4). Where tax information disclosed to OPRA is obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2), s 300(3) does not apply and s 88(3) and (4) (see PARA 636A.34) applies as if that information had been disclosed to the Regulator by virtue of s 88(2): s 300(5). For this purpose 'tax information' has the same meaning as in s 88: s 300(5). For provision relating to the transfer of employees from OPRA to the Regulator see s 301.

B. PROCEDURE ON REVIEW

618. Application to the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority for a review.

An application to the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority for the review of a determination<sup>1</sup> must be made in writing, must be signed by the applicant and must state:

- 1393 (1) the name and address of the applicant;
- 1394 (2) the particulars of the determination in respect of which a review is sought;
- 1395 (3) the grounds on which a review of the determination is sought<sup>2</sup>;
- 1396 (4) the name and address of the applicant's representative (if any) and whether the authority should send replies or notices concerning the application to that representative rather than to the applicant<sup>3</sup>.

The applicant must send<sup>4</sup> with any application, or within 14 days thereafter, a copy of the documents on which he intends to rely for the purposes of the review<sup>5</sup>. Where an application will, or is likely to be, received outside the prescribed time limit<sup>6</sup>, the applicant must include with the application for a review a statement of the reasons on which he relies to justify the delay, and the authority must consider any such statement in deciding whether or not to extend the time limit<sup>7</sup>.

The authority may allow an application for a review to be treated as properly made even if the requirements of heads (1) to (4) above are not met, notwithstanding those requirements<sup>8</sup>.

Where a person dies after a determination of the authority to require that person to pay a penalty<sup>9</sup>, the authority may permit that person's executor or (as the case may be) administrator to make or continue an application for a review as if the personal representative had been substituted for that person<sup>10</sup>.

The applicant may at any time before the date fixed for a review withdraw an application by sending to the authority a notice in writing signed by the applicant which states that he withdraws that application<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the review of determinations and decisions see PARA 617 ante. As to the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority see PARA 598 ante.

2 The applicant may, at any time before he is notified of the date of the review, or, with the leave of the authority, at any time after he is so notified, amend the grounds referred to in head (3) in the text and submit any documents upon which he wishes to rely in support of those grounds as amended: Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/794, reg 3(7).

3 Ibid reg 3(1). Where a person acts on behalf of another, that person may take all such steps and do all such things for the purposes of the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/794, as that other person is thereby required or authorised to take or do: reg 17.

4 As to the method of sending documents etc see ibid reg 20; and PARA 617 note 2 ante. The appropriate address for the authority is the address of the office of the authority (ie Invicta House, Trafalgar Place, Brighton, East Sussex BN1 4DW): see reg 20(2).

6 For the prescribed time limit see PARA 617 note 3 ante.

9 Ie under the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (see PARA 611 ante), the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 168(4) (as substituted) (see PARA 970 post), or under any corresponding provision in force in Northern Ireland: see the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/794, reg 10(1).

619. Notification of decision to review or not to review.

Where the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority receives an application for a review<sup>1</sup>, the authority must decide whether to review the determination in question<sup>2</sup>. The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority may decide to determine a review<sup>1</sup> without an oral hearing:

- 1405 (1) if the applicant and such other persons as it appears to the authority may be directly affected by the review agree in writing; or
- 1406 (2) after having regard to the specified considerations<sup>2</sup>.

Where the authority has made a prohibition order<sup>3</sup> or a disqualification order<sup>4</sup>, an oral hearing must be held for any review of that determination, unless the person prohibited or (as the case may be) disqualified agrees in writing that the authority may review that determination without an oral hearing<sup>5</sup>.

The authority may hold an oral hearing to determine any question<sup>6</sup>, including any question which the authority initially decided to review without an oral hearing, if it is satisfied that an oral hearing is desirable<sup>7</sup>.

622. Notice of date, time, place and manner of review.

The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority must fix the date, time and place for the review<sup>1</sup> and whether it is to be dealt with by an oral hearing or not<sup>2</sup>, and, not less than 28 days<sup>3</sup> before that date, send<sup>4</sup> to the applicant, and to such other persons as it considers the justice of the case may require, a notice in writing specifying the date, time, place and manner of the review<sup>5</sup>. As to the Personal Accounts Delivery Authority see PARA 676A.

598-636 The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority

The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority ('OPRA') is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(1). An order under s 322 which appoints the day on which s 300(1) comes into force (ie 6 April 2005: see SI 2005/695) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which OPRA is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become the property, rights and liabilities of the Pensions Regulator or the Secretary of State, and (2) for any function of OPRA falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Regulator, the Secretary of State or the Department for Social Development in Northern Ireland: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(2). Subject to s 300(4), information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 82-87 (disclosure of information: see PARA 636A.34) as having been obtained by the Regulator in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom OPRA obtained it: s 300(3). Information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) which was supplied to OPRA for the purposes of its functions by an authority exercising functions corresponding to the functions of OPRA in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom (the 'overseas authority') is to be treated for the purposes mentioned in s 300(3) as having been supplied to the Regulator for the purposes of its functions by the overseas authority: s 300(4). Where tax information disclosed to OPRA is obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2), s 300(3) does not apply and s 88(3) and (4) (see PARA 636A.34) applies as if that information had been disclosed to the Regulator by virtue of s 88(2): s 300(5). For this purpose 'tax information' has the same meaning as in s 88: s 300(5). For provision relating to the transfer of employees from OPRA to the Regulator see s 301.

PROCEDURE ON REVIEW/623. Review committee.

623. Review committee.

When the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority decides to review a determination, the authority must appoint three of its members<sup>1</sup> to a committee to dispose of the review (whether it is to be dealt with by way of an oral hearing or not<sup>2</sup>), and none of the members so appointed must be a member who participated in making the determination which is the subject of the review<sup>3</sup>. A committee appointed in accordance with this provision is referred to as 'the review committee'<sup>4</sup>. The authority must nominate a member of the review committee as chairman of that committee<sup>5</sup>.

If, after the commencement of a review, any one member of the review committee other than the chairman is absent, the review may, with the consent of the applicant or, where there is no applicant, with the consent of such other persons as the review committee or its remaining members consider the justice of the case may require, be conducted by those remaining members, and in that event must be deemed to be properly constituted<sup>6</sup>.

A decision of the review committee may be taken by a majority and the decision must record whether it was unanimous or taken by a majority<sup>7</sup>.

The review committee must send<sup>8</sup> to the applicant, and to such other persons as the committee considers the justice of the case may require, a copy of, or sufficient extracts from, or particulars of, any document or other material relevant to the review which the authority has in its possession not less than 28 days<sup>9</sup> before the date fixed for the review<sup>10</sup>.

REGULATION OF PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/(1) THE OCCUPATIONAL PENSIONS REGULATORY AUTHORITY/(iii) Questioning the Decisions of the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority/B. PROCEDURE ON REVIEW/624. Oral hearings.

624. Oral hearings.

An oral hearing of a review<sup>1</sup> must be in public, except where the review committee<sup>2</sup> considers that by reason of the disclosure of intimate personal or financial circumstances, commercially sensitive information or information communicated or obtained in confidence, it is just and reasonable for the hearing, or part of it, to be in private<sup>3</sup>. The following persons are entitled to attend, and, in the case of persons listed in heads (1), (5) and (6) below, to be heard, at an oral hearing whether or not it takes place in public:

- 1411 (1) the applicant;
- 1412 (2) a member of the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority who is not appointed to the review committee;
- 1413 (3) the chief executive of the authority;
- 1414 (4) a member of the Council on Tribunals or of the Scottish Committee of that Council;
- 1415 (5) a witness called by the applicant or the authority or by any other person entitled to be heard;
- 1416 (6) such other persons as it appears to the authority the justice of the case may require<sup>4</sup>.

The authority may by summons require any person in the United Kingdom<sup>5</sup> to attend as a witness at an oral hearing of a review at such time and place as may be specified in the summons and to answer any questions at the hearing, produce any documents<sup>6</sup> or otherwise furnish any information relating to any matter in question in the review<sup>7</sup>. No person may, however, be compelled to give any evidence or produce any document or other material that he could not be compelled to give or produce in a court of law<sup>8</sup>.

The review committee must conduct the oral hearing of the review in such manner as the committee considers most appropriate for the clarification of the issues before it and generally for the just handling of the proceedings, and, where necessary, may adjourn the proceedings<sup>9</sup>. The applicant, and such other persons as the review committee considers the justice of the case may require, is or are entitled to give evidence, to call witnesses, to question any witnesses, and to address the review committee both on evidence and generally on the subject matter of the review<sup>10</sup>. The review committee may receive evidence of any fact which appears to the committee to be relevant even if such evidence would be inadmissible in proceedings before a court of law, but must not refuse to admit any evidence which is admissible at law and is relevant<sup>11</sup>. It may require evidence to be given on oath or affirmation and for that purpose may administer an oath or affirmation in due form<sup>12</sup>.

The review committee may, if satisfied that it is just and reasonable to do so, permit the applicant to rely on grounds for the review which were not stated in the application<sup>13</sup>.

The review committee may exclude from the hearing, or part of it, any person whose conduct has disrupted or is likely, in the opinion of the review committee, to disrupt the hearing<sup>14</sup>.

If the applicant, or any other person who has notified the authority of his intention to attend or be represented at the hearing, fails to attend or be represented, the review committee may dispose of the review in the absence of that person or may adjourn the hearing to a later date; provided that before disposing of a review in the absence of any such person the review committee must consider any written representations sent by him<sup>15</sup>, any reply sent by him<sup>16</sup> and, in the case of an applicant, his application<sup>17</sup> and the accompanying documents<sup>18</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'the Regulator' has the meaning given by s 1 (see PARA 636A.1): s 318(1).

2 The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority is dissolved: see ibid s 300 and PARA 598-636.

3 Ibid s 4(1). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'enactment' includes an enactment comprised in subordinate legislation (within the meaning of the Interpretation Act 1978): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1).

As regards the exercise of the Regulator's functions (1) the non-executive functions listed in s 8(4) (see PARA 636A.6) must, by virtue of s 8(2), be discharged by the committee established under s 8, (2) the functions mentioned in the following provisions are exercisable only by the Determinations Panel (a) s 10(1) (the power in certain circumstances to determine whether to exercise the functions listed in Sch 2 and to exercise them: see 636A.8), and (b) s 99(10) (the functions concerning the compulsory review of certain determinations: see PARA 636A.37), and (3) the exercise of other functions of the Regulator may be delegated by the Regulator under Sch 1 para 20: s 4(2). As to Sch 1 see PARA 636A.1. Section 4(2) is subject to any regulations made by the Secretary of State under Sch 1 para 21 (power to limit or permit delegation of functions): s 4(3). The main objectives of the Regulator in exercising its functions are (1) to protect the benefits under occupational pension schemes<sup>1</sup> of, or in respect of, members<sup>2</sup> of such schemes, (2) to protect the benefits under personal pension schemes of, or in respect of, members of such schemes<sup>3</sup>, (3) to reduce the risk of situations arising which may lead to compensation being payable from the Pension Protection Fund<sup>4</sup>, and (4) to promote, and to improve understanding of, the good administration of work-based pension schemes<sup>5</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'occupational pension scheme' has the meaning given by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 1 (see PARA 741): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1).

2 In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'member', in relation to an occupational pension scheme, means any active, deferred, pensioner or pension credit member within the meaning of the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1) (but see s 318(5)): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1).

Regulations may for any purpose of any provision of the Pensions Act 2004 (1) prescribe the persons who are to be regarded as members or prospective members of an occupational or personal pension scheme, and (2) make provision as to the times at which and circumstances in which a person is to be treated as becoming, or as ceasing to be, such a member or prospective member: s 318(5). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'regulations' means regulations made by the Secretary of State: s 318(1). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations: s 318(1). 3 Ibid within ibid s 5(2). For the purposes of head (2) in the text the members of personal pension schemes within s 5(2) are (1) the members who are employees in respect of whom direct payment arrangements exist, and (2) where the scheme is a stakeholder pension scheme, any other members: s 5(2). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'employee' has the meaning given by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1) (see PARA 598): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'direct payment arrangements', in relation to a personal pension scheme, has the same meaning as in the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A (see PARA 556A): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1). In s 5 'stakeholder pension scheme' means a personal pension scheme which is or has been registered under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 2 (register of stakeholder schemes: see PARA 873A.2): Pensions Act 2004 s 5(3).

6. Non-executive functions

Specified functions<sup>1</sup> (in Part 1 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>2</sup> referred to as 'the non-executive functions') are functions of the Regulator<sup>3</sup>. The Regulator must establish a committee to discharge the non-executive functions on its behalf<sup>4</sup>. Only non-executive members of the Regulator may be members of the committee<sup>5</sup>. The committee established under these provisions must prepare a report on the discharge of the non-executive functions for inclusion in the Regulator's annual report to the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup>. The committee's report must relate to the same period as that covered by the Regulator's report<sup>7</sup>. The committee may establish sub-committees, and the members of any such sub-committee (1) may include persons who are not members of the committee or of the Regulator, but (2) must not include persons who are executive members or other staff of the Regulator<sup>8</sup>. The committee may authorise any of its members or any of its sub-committees to discharge on its behalf (a) any of the non-executive functions; (b) the duty to prepare a report<sup>9</sup>. The Regulator must establish and maintain a committee consisting of (1) a chairman, and (2) at least six other persons, (in Part 1 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup> referred to as 'the Determinations Panel')<sup>2</sup>. The chairman of the Panel must (a) decide the number of persons to be appointed as the other members of the Panel, and (b) nominate a person suitable for each of those appointments<sup>3</sup>. The following are ineligible for appointment as members of the Panel (i) any member of the Regulator; (ii) any member of the staff of the Regulator; (iii) any member of the Board of the Pension Protection Fund; (iv) any member of the staff of that Board<sup>5</sup>. ## 8. Functions exercisable by the Determinations Panel

For transitional modification see SI 2005/695.

The Determinations Panel is to exercise on behalf of the Regulator (1) the power to determine in specified circumstances<sup>1</sup> whether to exercise a reserved regulatory function<sup>2</sup>, and (2) where it so determines to exercise a reserved regulatory function, the power to exercise the function in question<sup>3</sup>. Those circumstances are (a) where the Regulator considers that the exercise of the reserved regulatory function may be appropriate, or (b) where an application is made under, or by virtue of, any of specified listed provisions<sup>4</sup> for the Regulator to exercise the reserved regulatory function<sup>5</sup>. The Panel may be authorised<sup>6</sup> to exercise further functions of the Regulator on behalf of the Regulator<sup>7</sup>.

1 le in the circumstances described in the Pensions Act 2004 s 10(2).

2 For the purposes of ibid Pt 1 (ss 1-106), a function of the Regulator is a 'reserved regulatory function' if it is a function listed in Sch 2 (Sch 2 amended by Pensions Act 2007 s 14(7); and Pensions Act 2008 s 131(2), Sch 9 para 13): Pensions Act 2004 s 10(4). Regulations may amend Sch 2 by (1) adding any function of the Regulator conferred by, or by virtue of, the Pensions Act 2004 or any other enactment, (2) omitting any such function, or (3) altering the description of any such function contained in Sch 2: s 10(5). Section 10 is subject to any regulations made by the Secretary of State under Sch 1 para 21 (power to limit or permit delegation of functions: see PARA 636A.1): s 10(10).

The Panel may authorise any of its members or any of its sub-committees to exercise on its behalf (1) any of the functions of the Regulator which are exercisable by the Panel on behalf of the Regulator, or (2) any of the functions of the Panel under s 93(3) (see PARA 636A.37), s 99(11) (see PARA 636A.37) and Sch 1 para 18(2) (procedure): s 10(9).

9. Annual reports to Secretary of State

The Regulator must prepare a report for each financial year<sup>1</sup>. The Regulator must send each report to the Secretary of State as soon as practicable after the end of the financial year for which it is prepared<sup>2</sup>. The Secretary of State must lay before each House of Parliament a copy of every report received by him under these provisions<sup>3</sup>.

1 Pensions Act 2004 s 11(1). In s 11 'financial year' means (1) the period beginning with the date on which the Regulator is established and ending with the next following 31 March, and (2) each successive period of 12 months: s 11(6). Each report (a) must deal with the activities of the Regulator in the financial year for which it is prepared, including the matters mentioned in s 11(3), and (b) must include the report prepared under s 8(5) (see PARA 636A.6) by the committee established under s 8: s 11(2). The matters referred to in head (a) are (i) the strategic direction of the Regulator and the manner in which it has been kept under review; (ii) the steps taken to scrutinise the performance of the Chief Executive in securing that the Regulator's functions are exercised efficiently and effectively; (iii) the Regulator's objectives and targets (including its main objectives as set out in s 5 (see PARA 636A.3) or in any corresponding provision in force in Northern Ireland) and the steps taken to monitor the extent to which they are being met: s 11(3).

2 Ibid s 11(4).

3 Ibid s 11(5).

10. Provision of information, education and assistance

The Regulator may provide such information, education and assistance<sup>1</sup> as it considers appropriate to those involved in (1) the administration of work-based pension schemes<sup>2</sup>, or (2) advising the trustees or managers in relation to such schemes as to their operation<sup>3</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 12 'assistance' does not include financial assistance: s 12(4).

2 In ibid s 12 'work-based pension scheme' has the same meaning as in s 5 (Regulator's objectives: see PARA 636A.3): s 12(4).

3 Ibid s 12(1). To the extent that it is not authorised to do so under s 12(1), the Regulator may also provide such information, education and assistance as it considers appropriate to (1) employers in relation to work-based pension schemes, (2) persons involved in advising such employers as to the operation of such schemes, or (3) persons upon whom duties are imposed by or by virtue of s 238 (information and advice to employees: see PARA 965B.5): s 12(2) (head (3) not yet in force). For the purposes of s 12(2), 'employers in relation to work-based pension schemes' means, in the case of stakeholder pension schemes, the persons upon whom duties are imposed by or by virtue of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 3 (duty of employers to facilitate access to stakeholder pension schemes: see PARA 873A.3): Pensions Act 2004 s 12(3). In s 12 'stakeholder pension scheme' has the same meaning as in s 5 (Regulator's objectives: see 636A.3): s 12(4).

11. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: improvement notices

If the Regulator is of the opinion that a person (1) is contravening<sup>1</sup> one or more provisions of the pensions legislation<sup>2</sup>, or (2) has contravened one or more of those provisions in circumstances that make it likely that the contravention will continue or be repeated, it may issue a notice (an 'improvement notice') to that person directing him to take, or refrain from taking, such steps as are specified in the notice in order to remedy or prevent a recurrence of the contravention<sup>3</sup>. An improvement notice must (a) state that the Regulator is of that opinion and specify the provision or provisions of the pensions legislation in question, (b) contain a statement of the matters which it is asserted constitute the contravention and of the evidence on which that opinion is based, and (c) in respect of each step specified in the notice, state the period (being a period of not less than 21 days beginning with the date of the notice) within which it must be complied with<sup>4</sup>. Directions in an improvement notice (i) may be framed to any extent by reference to a code of practice issued by the Regulator<sup>5</sup>, and (ii) may be framed so as to afford the person to whom the notice is issued a choice between different ways of remedying or preventing the recurrence of the contravention<sup>6</sup>. Directions in an improvement notice may be expressed to be conditional on compliance by a third party with a specified direction, or specified directions, contained in a third party notice<sup>7</sup>. An improvement notice may direct the person to whom it is issued to inform the Regulator, within such period as may be specified in the notice, of how he has complied, or is complying, with the notice<sup>8</sup>. Where a contravention of a provision of the pensions legislation consists of a failure to take action within a time limit, for the purposes of these provisions the contravention continues until such time as the action is taken<sup>9</sup>. If the trustees or managers<sup>10</sup> of an occupational or personal pension scheme fail to comply with an improvement notice issued to them, the civil penalty provisions in the Pensions Act 1995<sup>11</sup> apply to any trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance<sup>12</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'contravention' includes failure to comply: s 318(1).

2 In ibid s 13 'pensions legislation' means any enactment contained in or made by virtue of (1) the Pension Schemes Act 1993, (2) the Pensions Act 1995 Pt 1, other than ss 62-66A (equal treatment), (3) the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Pt 1 or s 33, or (4) the Pensions Act 2004: s 13(7).

3 Ibid s 13(1).

4 Ibid s 13(2).

5 Under ibid s 90 (see PARA 636A.36).

6 Ibid s 13(3).

7 Ie a notice under ibid s 14 (see PARA 636A.12): s 13(4).

8 Ibid s 13(5).

9 Ibid s 13(6).

10 In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'managers', in relation to an occupational or personal pension scheme (other than a scheme established under a trust), means the persons responsible for the management of the scheme: s 318(1).

11 Ie the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (see PARA 611).

12 Pensions Act 2004 s 13(8). The Pensions Act 1995 s 10 also applies to any other person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with an improvement notice issued to him: Pensions Act 2004 s 13(9).

12. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: third party notices

Where the Regulator is of the opinion that (1) a person (a) is contravening one or more provisions of the pensions legislation<sup>1</sup>, or (b) has contravened one or more of those provisions in circumstances that make it likely that the contravention will continue or be repeated, (2) the contravention is or was, wholly or partly, a result of a failure of another person ('the third party') to do any thing, and (3) that failure is not itself a contravention of the pensions legislation, the Regulator may issue a notice (a 'third party notice') directing the third party to take, or refrain from taking, such steps as are specified in the notice in order to remedy or prevent a recurrence of his failure<sup>2</sup>. A third party notice must (i) state that the Regulator is of that opinion and specify the provision or provisions of the pensions legislation in question, (ii) contain a statement of (A) the matters which it is asserted constitute the contravention of the provision or provisions, and (B) the matters which it is asserted constitute the failure by the third party, and the evidence on which that opinion is based, and (iii) in respect of each step specified in the notice, state the period (being a period of not less than 21 days beginning with the date of the notice) within which it must be complied with<sup>3</sup>. Directions in a third party notice may be framed so as to afford the third party a choice between different ways of remedying or preventing the recurrence of his failure<sup>4</sup>. A third party notice may direct the third party to inform the Regulator, within such period as may be specified in the notice, of how he has complied, or is complying, with the notice<sup>5</sup>. Where a contravention of a provision of the pensions legislation consists of a failure to take action within a time limit, for the purposes of these provisions the contravention continues until such time as the action is taken<sup>6</sup>. The civil penalty provisions in the Pensions Act 1995<sup>7</sup> apply to a person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with a third party notice issued to him<sup>8</sup>. No duty to which a person is subject is to be regarded as contravened merely because of anything required to be done in compliance with a third party notice<sup>9</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 14 'pensions legislation' has the same meaning as in s 13 (see PARA 636A.11): s 14(8).

2 Ibid s 14(1).

3 Ibid s 14(2).

The following provisions are not yet in force. A person may not be required under or by virtue of the Pensions Act 2004 to produce, disclose or permit the inspection of protected items: s 311(1). For this purpose 'protected items' means (1) communications between a professional legal adviser and his client or any person representing his client which fall within s 311(3); (2) communications between a professional legal adviser, his client or any person representing his client and any other person which fall within s 311(3) (as a result of head (ii)); (3) items which (a) are enclosed with, or referred to in, such communications, (b) fall within s 311(3), and (c) are in the possession of a person entitled to possession of them: s 311(2). A communication or item falls within s 311(3) if it is made (i) in connection with the giving of legal advice to the client, or (ii) in connection with, or in contemplation of, legal proceedings and for the purpose of those proceedings: s 311(3). A communication or item is not a protected item if it is held with the intention of furthering a criminal purpose: s 311(4).

13. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: injunctions

If, on the application of the Regulator, the court is satisfied that (1) there is a reasonable likelihood that a particular person will do any act which constitutes a misuse or misappropriation of any of the assets of an occupational or personal pension scheme, or (2) a particular person has done any such act and there is a reasonable likelihood that he will continue or repeat the act in question or do a similar act, the court may grant an injunction restraining him from doing so<sup>1</sup>.

1 Pensions Act 2004 s 15(1). The jurisdiction conferred by s 15 is exercisable by the High Court: s 15(2).

14. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: restitution

If, on the application of the Regulator, the court is satisfied that there has been a misuse or misappropriation of any of the assets of an occupational or personal pension scheme, it may order any person involved<sup>1</sup> to take such steps as the court may direct for restoring the parties to the position in which they were before the misuse or misappropriation occurred<sup>2</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 16 a person is 'involved' if he appears to the court to have been knowingly concerned in the misuse or misappropriation of the assets: s 16(2).

2 Ibid s 16(1). The jurisdiction conferred by s 16 is exercisable by the High Court: s 16(3).

15. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: power of the Regulator to recover unpaid contributions

Where any employer contribution<sup>1</sup> payable towards an occupational or personal pension scheme is not paid on or before its due date<sup>2</sup>, the Regulator may, on behalf of the trustees or managers of the scheme, exercise such powers as the trustees or managers have to recover that contribution<sup>3</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 17 'employer contribution' (1) in relation to an occupational pension scheme, means any contribution payable by or on behalf of the employer towards the scheme in accordance with a schedule of contributions under s 227 (see PARA 824A.7) or a payment schedule under the Pensions Act 1995 s 87 (schedules of payments to money purchase schemes: see PARA 864) whether (a) on the employer's own account (but in respect of one or more employees), or (b) on behalf of an employee out of deductions from the employee's earnings, and (2) in relation to a personal pension scheme, means any contribution payable towards the scheme under direct payment arrangements: Pensions Act 2004 s 17(3). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'employer' (i) in relation to an occupational pension scheme, means the employer of persons in the description of employment to which the scheme in question relates (but see s 318(4)), and (ii) in relation to a personal pension scheme, where direct payment arrangements exist in respect of one or more members of the scheme who are employees, means an employer with whom those arrangements exist: s 318(1). Regulations may, in relation to occupational pension schemes, extend for the purposes of Pts 1, 2, 4-7, 9 the meaning of 'employer' to include (A) persons who have been the employer in relation to the scheme; (B) such other persons as may be prescribed: s 318(4) (partly in force). See Pension Protection Fund (Entry Rules) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/590 (amended by SI 2005/993, SI 2005/2113, SI 2005/2153, SI 2005/2224, SI 2006/580, SI 2007/782, SI 2008/731, SI 2008/1810, SI 2009/317, SI 2009/451, SI 2009/1552, SI 2010/196). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'earnings' has the meaning given by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1).

2 In ibid s 17 'due date' (1) in relation to employer contributions payable towards an occupational pension scheme in accordance with a schedule of contributions under s 227 (see PARA 824A.7), has the same meaning as in s 228 (see PARA 824A.8), (2) in relation to employer contributions payable in accordance with a payment schedule under the Pensions Act 1995 s 87 (schedules of payments to money purchase schemes: see PARA 864), has the meaning given by s 87(2)(c), and (3) in relation to employer contributions payable towards a personal pension scheme, has the same meaning as in the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A (monitoring of employer payments to personal pension schemes: see PARA 556A): Pensions Act 2004 s 17(3).

3 Ibid s 17(1). For the purposes of s 17(1), any employer contribution payable towards a personal pension scheme which is not paid on or before its due date is, if not a debt due from the employer to the trustees or managers apart from this provision, to be treated as if it were such a debt: s 17(2).

16. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: pension liberation: court's power to order restitution

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where money has been liberated from a pension scheme<sup>2</sup>. Where a person acquires the beneficial interest in recoverable property<sup>3</sup> in good faith, for value and without notice that the property is, or (as the case may be) represents, money liberated from a pension scheme (1) the property ceases to be recoverable property, and (2) no property that subsequently represents it is recoverable property<sup>4</sup>. The court, on the application of the Regulator, may make such order as the court thinks just and convenient for the purpose of securing that recoverable property, or money representing its value or proceeds of its sale, is transferred (a) towards a pension scheme, (b) towards an annuity or insurance policy, or (c) to the liberated member<sup>5</sup>. The jurisdiction conferred by the above provisions<sup>6</sup> is exercisable by the High Court<sup>7</sup>.

1 I.e. the Pensions Act 2004 s 19.

2 Ibid s 19(1). 'Pension scheme' means an occupational pension scheme or a personal pension scheme: s 18(1)(a). References to money liberated from a pension scheme are to be read in accordance with s 18(2): s 18(1)(c). Money is to be taken to have been liberated from a pension scheme if (1) the money directly or indirectly represents an amount that, in respect of accrued rights of a member of a pension scheme, has been transferred out of the scheme in pursuance of (a) a relevant statutory provision, or (b) a provision of the applicable rules, other than a relevant statutory provision, (2) the trustees or managers of the scheme transferred the amount out of the scheme on the basis that a third party ('the liberator') would secure that the amount was used in an authorised way, (3) the amount has not been used in an authorised way, and (4) the liberator has not secured, and is not likely to secure, that the amount will be used in an authorised way: s 18(2). The following are 'relevant statutory provisions' for the purposes of s 18(2) (i) the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 94(1)(a), (aa) or (b) (right to cash equivalent under Pt 4 Ch 4: see PARA 953); (ii) the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 101AB(1)(a) (right to cash transfer sum under Pt 4 Ch 5: see PARA 961A); (iii) the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 101F(1) (right to cash equivalent of pension credit benefit: see PARA 961A); Pensions Act 2004 s 18(3). In s 18(2) 'authorised way' means (A) where the amount concerned is transferred out of the scheme in pursuance of a provision mentioned in head (i), a way specified in s 18(2) or, as the case may be, the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 95(3) (see PARA 954); (B) where that amount is transferred out in pursuance of the provision mentioned in head (ii), a way specified in the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 101AE(2) (see PARA 961A); (C) where that amount is transferred out in pursuance of the provision mentioned in head (iii), a way specified in the Pensions Act 2004 s 18(2) or, as the case may be, the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 101F(3) (see PARA 961A); (D) where that amount is transferred out in pursuance of a provision of the kind mentioned in head (b), a way that is authorised by the applicable rules for amounts transferred out in pursuance of that provision: Pensions Act 2004 s 18(4). In s 18 'the applicable rules' has the same meaning as, in the case of the pension scheme concerned, that expression has in the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 94: Pensions Act 2004 s 18(5).

3 In ibid s 19 'recoverable property' means (subject to s 19(3)) (1) the money or any of it, or (2) property (of any kind and wherever situated) that, directly or indirectly, represents any of the money: s 19(2).

5 Ibid s 19(4). 'Liberated member', in relation to money liberated from a pension scheme, means the member of the pension scheme who is referred to in s 18(2)(a): s 18(1)(d).

An order under s 19(4) may (in particular) direct a person who holds recoverable property, or has any degree of control over recoverable property, to take steps for the purpose mentioned in s 19(4): s 19(5). Where the court makes an order under head (a) in the text, it may by order direct the trustees or managers of the scheme referred to in that head (1) to take steps for the purpose mentioned in s 19(4); (2) to apply the property or money transferred, in such manner as the court may direct, for the purpose of providing benefits under that scheme to or in respect of the liberated member: s 19(6). Regulations may modify any of the provisions of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 as it applies in relation to cases where an order is made under the Pensions Act 2004 s 19(6): s 19(7). See Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes (Pension Liberation) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/992 (amended by SI 2009/598). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'modifications' includes additions, omissions and amendments, and related expressions are to be construed accordingly: s 318(1). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12).

6 I.e. the Pensions Act 2004 s 19.

7 Ibid s 19(8). The generality of the jurisdiction conferred by s 16 (see PARA 636A.14) is not to be taken to be prejudiced by s 19: s 19(9). The generality of the jurisdiction conferred by s 19 is not to be taken to be prejudiced by s 21 (see PARA 636A.18): s 19(10).

17. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: pension liberation: restraining orders

The Regulator may make a restraining order in relation to an account with a deposit-taker<sup>1</sup> if (1) it is satisfied that the account contains money which has been liberated from a pension scheme, (2) it is satisfied that the account is held by or on behalf of (a) the liberator, or (b) a person who has to, or in practice is likely to, ensure that the account is operated in accordance with the liberator's directions, and (c) the order is made pending consideration being given to the making of one or more repatriation orders in relation to the account<sup>2</sup>. A restraining order is an order directing that no credit or debit of any amount may be made to the account concerned ('the restrained account') during the period for which the order has effect<sup>3</sup>. A restraining order must (i) specify the name of the deposit-taker in respect of which it is made, (ii) identify the account in respect of which it is made, and (iii) contain such other information as may be prescribed<sup>4</sup>. A restraining order takes effect when the deposit-taker concerned is notified by the Regulator of the making of the order, and<sup>5</sup> ceases to have effect through expiry of time at the end of the six months beginning with the day when it is made<sup>6</sup>. The Regulator may, at a time when a restraining order has effect, make an order extending (or further extending) the restraining order<sup>7</sup>. A restraining order does not prevent the crediting to the restrained account of an amount representing interest payable by the deposit-taker on any amount which is, or has been, in the account<sup>8</sup>. Where a restraining order has effect, the deposit-taker must return to the payer any money credited to the restrained account in breach of the order<sup>9</sup>. Where a restraining order has effect, the Regulator may, on an application made by or with the consent of the person by whom the restrained account is held, by order permit a payment specified in the order to be made out of the account if the Regulator is satisfied (A) that the payment will be made for the purpose of enabling any individual to meet his reasonable living expenses, or any person to carry on a trade, business, profession or occupation, (B) that the beneficial interest in the money out of which the payment will be made belongs to the individual, or person, concerned, or to a person who consents to the making of the payment, and (C) that the money out of which the payment will be made is not money liberated from a pension scheme<sup>10</sup>. The civil penalty provisions in the Pensions Act 1995<sup>11</sup> apply to a deposit-taker who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with any obligation imposed by a restraining order or by the above provisions<sup>12</sup>.

1 'Deposit-taker' has the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 49(8A) and (8B) (see PARA 798), except that, for the purposes of this definition, s 49(8A)(c) has effect with the omission of the words from 'or' to the end: Pensions Act 2004 s 18(1)(b).

2 Under ibid s 21 (see PARA 636A.18): s 20(1).

4 Ibid s 20(3) (head (iii) in the text not yet in force).

5 Subject to ibid s 20(7).

6 Ibid s 20(4). As to the service of notifications and electronic working under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 303-305.

7 Ibid s 20(5). An order under s 20(5) (an 'extension order') takes effect (1) when the deposit-taker concerned is notified by the Regulator of the making of the order, but (2) only if notification under head (1) occurs at a time when the restraining order concerned has effect: s 20(6). Where an extension order takes effect (a) the restraining order concerned does not cease to have effect through expiry of time until the end of the six months beginning with the time when it would have ceased to have effect through expiry of time had it not been extended, but (b) for so long as the extension order has effect, no further extension order can take effect before that time in relation to the restraining order: s 20(7).

8 Ibid s 20(8).

9 Ibid s 20(9).

10 Ibid s 20(10).

18. New powers in respect of occupational and personal pension schemes: pension liberation: repatriation orders

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where (1) a restraining order<sup>2</sup> has effect, and (2) the Regulator is satisfied that the restrained account<sup>3</sup> contains an amount of money liberated from a pension scheme<sup>4</sup>. The Regulator may by order (a) direct the deposit-taker concerned to pay from the account a sum not exceeding that amount (i) towards a pension scheme, (ii) towards an annuity or insurance policy, or (iii) to the liberated member, and (b) where it makes an order under head (a)(i), direct the trustees or managers of the scheme to apply the sum, in such manner as the Regulator may direct, for the purpose of providing benefits under the scheme to or in respect of the liberated member<sup>5</sup>. If it appears to the Regulator, on taking an overall view of transactions taking place before the restraining order was made, that there are two or more individuals each of whom is a person who is or may be the liberated member in relation to some of the money, the Regulator may determine the sums to be paid from the restrained account<sup>6</sup> on any basis that appears to the Regulator to be just and reasonable<sup>7</sup>. Regulations may modify any of the provisions of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 as it applies in relation to cases where an order is made under head (b) above<sup>8</sup>. The civil penalty provisions in the Pensions Act 1995<sup>9</sup> apply to a deposit-taker who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with a direction given to him under head (a) above<sup>10</sup>.

2    'Restraining order' means a restraining order under ibid s 20 (see PARA 636A.17): s 18(1)(e).

19. Powers in relation to winding up of occupational pension schemes: freezing orders

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply to an occupational pension scheme which is not a money purchase scheme<sup>2</sup>. The Regulator may make a freezing order in relation to such a scheme if and only if (1) the order is made pending consideration being given to the making of an order in relation to the scheme<sup>3</sup>, and (2) the Regulator is satisfied that (a) there is, or is likely to be if the order is not made, an immediate risk to the interests of members under the scheme or the assets of the scheme, and (b) it is necessary to make the freezing order to protect the interests of the generality of the members of the scheme<sup>4</sup>. A freezing order is an order directing that during the period for which it has effect no benefits are to accrue under the scheme rules<sup>5</sup> to, or in respect of, members of the scheme, and winding up of the scheme may not begin<sup>6</sup>. A freezing order may also contain one or more of the following directions which have effect during the period for which the order has effect (i) a direction that no new members, or no specified<sup>7</sup> classes of new member, are to be admitted to the scheme; (ii) a direction that no further contributions or payments, or no further specified contributions or payments, are to be paid towards the scheme by or on behalf of the employer, any members or any specified members of the scheme<sup>8</sup>; (iii) a direction that any amount or any specified amount which corresponds to any contribution which would be due to be paid towards the scheme on behalf of a member but for a direction under head (ii) above, and has been deducted from a payment of any earnings in respect of an employment, is to be repaid to the member in question by the employer; (iv) a direction that no benefits, or no specified benefits, are to be paid to or in respect of any members or any specified members under the scheme rules<sup>9</sup>; (v) a direction that payments of all benefits or specified benefits under the scheme rules to or in respect of all the members or specified members may only be made from the scheme if they are reduced in a specified manner or by a specified amount<sup>10</sup>; (vi) a direction that no transfers or no specified transfers of, or no transfer payments or no specified transfer payments in respect of, any member's rights under the scheme rules are to be made from the scheme, or no other steps or no specified other steps are to be taken to discharge any liability of the scheme to or in respect of a member of the scheme in respect of pensions or other benefits<sup>11</sup>; (vii) a direction that no statements of entitlement are to be provided to members of the scheme<sup>12</sup>; (viii) a direction that no refunds of, or no specified refunds of, or in respect of, contributions paid by or in respect of a member towards the scheme are to be made from the scheme, or refunds or specified refunds of, or in respect of, contributions paid by or in respect of a member towards the scheme may only be made from the scheme if they are determined in a specified manner and satisfy such other conditions as may be specified<sup>13</sup>. A freezing order may also require the trustees or managers of the scheme to obtain an actuarial valuation<sup>14</sup> within a specified period<sup>15</sup>.

1    I.e. the Pensions Act 2004 s 23.

2    Ibid s 23(1). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'money purchase scheme' has the meaning given by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1) (see PARA 811); Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1).

3    Under the Pensions Act 1995 s 11(1)(c) (power to wind up schemes where necessary to protect the generality of members: see PARA 612).

4    Pensions Act 2004 s 23(2). But no freezing order may be made in relation to a scheme during an assessment period (within the meaning of s 132: see PARA 659C.7) in relation to the scheme (see s 135(11) and PARA 659C.10): s 23(2).

5    In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires, references to the scheme rules, in relation to an occupational pension scheme, are references to (1) the rules of the scheme, except so far as overridden by a relevant legislative provision, (2) the relevant legislative provisions, to the extent that they have effect in relation to the scheme and are not reflected in the rules of the scheme, and (3) any provision which the rules of the scheme do not contain but which the scheme must contain if it is to conform with the requirements of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 Pt 4 Ch 1 (preservation of benefit under occupational pension schemes): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(2). As to 'the relevant legislative provision' see s 318(3).

7    In ibid s 23 'specified' means specified in the freezing order: s 23(11).

8    In head (ii) in the text (1) the references to contributions do not include contributions due to be paid before the order takes effect, and (2) the references to payments towards a scheme include payments in respect of pension credits where the person entitled to the credit is a member of the scheme: ibid s 23(5). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'pension credit' has the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1).

9    See further NOTE 10.

10   A freezing order may not contain a direction under head (iv) or (v) in the text which reduces the benefits payable to or in respect of a member, for the period during which the order has effect, below the level to which the trustees or managers of the scheme would have power to reduce them if a winding up of the scheme had begun at the time when the freezing order took effect: Pensions Act 2004 s 23(6).

11 A direction under head (vi) in the text may, in particular, provide that transfers or specified transfers of, or transfer payments or specified transfer payments in respect of, any member's rights under the scheme rules may not be made from the scheme unless the amounts paid out from the scheme in respect of the transfers or transfer payments are determined in a specified manner and the transfer or transfer payments satisfy such other conditions as may be specified: ibid s 23(7).

14 For the purposes of ibid s 23(8) 'an actuarial valuation' means a written valuation of the scheme's assets and liabilities prepared and signed by the actuary; and 'the actuary' means (1) the actuary appointed under the Pensions Act 1995 s 47(1)(b) (professional advisers: see PARA 787) in relation to the scheme, or (2) if no such actuary has been appointed (a) a person with prescribed qualifications or experience, or (b) a person approved by the Secretary of State: Pensions Act 2004 s 23(10). 15 Pensions Act 2004 s 23(8). A freezing order containing such a requirement must specify (1) the date by reference to which the assets and liabilities are to be valued, (2) the assets and liabilities which are to be taken into account, (3) the manner in which the valuation must be prepared, (4) the information and statements which it must contain, and (5) any other requirements that the valuation must satisfy: s 23(9).

20. Contribution notices where avoidance of employer debt

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply in relation to an occupational pension scheme other than (1) a money purchase scheme, or (2) a prescribed scheme or a scheme of a prescribed description<sup>2</sup>. The Regulator may issue a notice to a person stating that the person is under a liability to pay the sum specified in the notice (a 'contribution notice') (a) to the trustees or managers of the scheme, or (b) where the Board of the Pension Protection Fund has assumed responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004 (pension protection)<sup>3</sup>, to the Board<sup>4</sup>. The Regulator may issue a contribution notice to a person only if (i) the Regulator is of the opinion that the person was a party to an act or a deliberate failure to act which falls within specified provision<sup>5</sup>, (ii) the person was at any time in the relevant period (A) the employer in relation to the scheme, or (B) a person connected with, or an associate of, the employer, (iii) the Regulator is of the opinion that the person, in being a party to the act or failure, was not acting in accordance with his functions as an insolvency practitioner<sup>6</sup> in relation to another person, and (iv) the Regulator is of the opinion that it is reasonable to impose liability on the person to pay the sum specified in the notice, having regard to the extent to which, in all the circumstances of the case, it was reasonable for the person to act, or fail to act, in the way that the person did, and such other matters as the Regulator considers relevant<sup>7</sup>. But the Regulator may not issue a contribution notice, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, to a person of a prescribed description<sup>8</sup>.

4 Ibid s 38(2).

5 le falls within ibid s 38(5). An act or a failure to act falls within s 38(5) if (1) the Regulator is of the opinion that the material detriment test is met in relation to the act or failure (see Pensions Act 2004 s 38A) or that the main purpose or one of the main purposes of the act or failure was (a) to prevent the recovery of the whole or any part of a debt which was, or might become, due from the employer in relation to the scheme under the Pensions Act 1995 s 75 (deficiencies in the scheme assets: see PARA 850), or (b) to prevent such a debt becoming due, to compromise or otherwise settle such a debt, or to reduce the amount of such a debt which would otherwise become due, (2) it is an act which occurred, or a failure to act which first occurred (i) on or after 27 April 2004, and (ii) before any assumption of responsibility for the scheme by the Board in accordance with Pt 2 Ch 3, and (3) it is either (A) an act which occurred during the period of six years ending with the determination by the Regulator to exercise the power to issue the contribution notice in question, or (B) a failure which first occurred during, or continued for the whole or part of, that period: s 38(5) (amended by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 paras 2(1), 6, Sch 11 Pt 6). As to the 'material detriment test' see Pensions Act 2004 s 38A (ss 38A, 38B added by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 para 2(2)). As to how a person may make out a statutory defence to a contribution notice issued under the material detriment test see Pensions Act 2004 s 38B. For the purposes of s 38 references to a debt due under the Pensions Act 1995 s 75 include a contingent debt under s 75: Pensions Act 2004 s 38(8). Accordingly, in the case of such a contingent debt, the reference in head (b) to preventing a debt becoming due is to be read as including a reference to preventing the occurrence of any of the events specified in the Pensions Act 1995 s 75(4C)(a) or (b) on which the debt is contingent: Pensions Act 2004 s 38(9).

See further Pensions Act 2004 s 38(12), (13) (added by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 para 8).

6 For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 38 'insolvency practitioner', in relation to a person, means (1) a person acting as an insolvency practitioner, in relation to that person, in accordance with the Insolvency Act 1986 s 388, or (2) an insolvency practitioner within the meaning of the Pensions Act 2004 s 121(9)(b) (persons of a prescribed description: see PARA 659B.1): s 38(11).

7 Including (where relevant) the matters falling within the Pensions Act 2004 s 38(7): s 38(3) (amended by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 para 7(2)). For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 38(3) (1) the parties to an act or a deliberate failure include those persons who knowingly assist in the act or failure, and (2) 'the relevant period' means the period which (a) begins with the time when the act falling within s 38(5) occurs or the failure to act falling within s 38(5) first occurs, and (b) ends with the determination by the Regulator to exercise the power to issue the contribution notice in question: s 38(6). The matters within s 38(7) are (i) the degree of involvement of the person in the act or failure to act which falls within s 38(5), (ii) the relationship which the person has or has had with the employer (including, where the employer is a company within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 s 435(11), whether the person has or has had control of the employer within the meaning of s 435(10)), (iii) any connection or involvement which the person has or has had with the scheme, (iv) if the act or failure to act was a notifiable event for the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 69 (duty to notify the Regulator of certain events: see PARA 636A.28), any failure by the person to comply with any obligation imposed on the person by s 69(1) to give the Regulator notice of the event, (v) all the purposes of the act or failure to act (including whether a purpose of the act or failure was to prevent or limit loss of employment), (vi) the value of any benefits which directly or indirectly the person receives, or is entitled to receive, from the employer or under the scheme, (vii) the likelihood of relevant creditors being paid and the extent to which they are likely to be paid, (viii) the financial circumstances of the person, and (ix) such other matters as may be prescribed: s 38(7) (amended by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 para 7(3)) (head (vii) not yet in force). For the meaning of 'relevant creditors' see Pensions Act 2004 s 38(7A) (added by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 para 7(4)).

21. Financial support directions: general

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply in relation to an occupational pension scheme other than (1) a money purchase scheme, or (2) a prescribed scheme or a scheme of a prescribed description<sup>2</sup>. The Regulator may issue a financial support<sup>3</sup> direction<sup>4</sup> under these provisions in relation to such a scheme if the Regulator is of the opinion that the employer in relation to the scheme (a) is a service company<sup>5</sup>, or (b) is insufficiently resourced<sup>6</sup>, at a time determined by the Regulator which falls within specified provision<sup>7</sup> ('the relevant time')<sup>8</sup>. A financial support direction in relation to a scheme may be issued to one or more persons<sup>9</sup>. But the Regulator may issue such a direction to a person only if (i) the person is at the relevant time a person falling within specified provision<sup>10</sup>, and (ii) the Regulator is of the opinion that it is reasonable to impose the requirements of the direction on that person<sup>11</sup>. A financial support direction must identify all the persons to whom the direction is issued<sup>12</sup>.

Provision is made with respect to the transfer of members of the scheme<sup>13</sup>.

Provision is made with respect to partnerships and limited liability partnerships<sup>14</sup>.

2 Ibid s 43(1). See Pensions Regulator (Financial Support Directions etc) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2188 (amended by SI 2005/2224).

3 For the meaning of 'financial support' see Pensions Act 2004 s 45 (amended by SI 2009/1941) and SI 2005/2188.

4 A financial support direction in relation to a scheme is a direction which requires the person or persons to whom it is issued to secure (1) that financial support for the scheme is put in place within the period specified in the direction, (2) that thereafter that financial support or other financial support remains in place while the scheme is in existence, and (3) that the Regulator is notified in writing of prescribed events in respect of the financial support as soon as reasonably practicable after the event occurs: Pensions Act 2004 s 43(3). See SI 2005/2188. As to the service of notifications and electronic working under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 303-305. For the purposes of s 43(3), a scheme is in existence until it is wound up: s 43(10). No duty to which a person is subject is to be regarded as contravened merely because of any information or opinion contained in a notice given by virtue of head (3): s 43(11). This is subject to s 311 (protected items: see PARA 636A.12): s 43(11).

5 For the meaning of 'service company' see ibid s 44 (amended by SI 2009/1941). See further the Pensions Act 2004 s 51 (amended by SI 2009/1941) (interpretation).

6 For the meaning of 'insufficiently resourced' see 2004 Act s 44 (amended by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 para 14); and SI 2005/2188.

7 Ie falls within the Pensions Act 2004 s 43(9). A time falls within s 43(9) if it is a time which falls within a prescribed period which ends with the determination by the Regulator to exercise the power to issue the financial support direction in question: s 43(9). See SI 2005/2188.

11 Ibid s 43(5). The Regulator, when deciding for the purposes of head (ii) in the text whether it is reasonable to impose the requirements of a financial support direction on a particular person, must have regard to such matters as the Regulator considers relevant including, where relevant, the following matters (1) the relationship which the person has or has had with the employer (including, where the employer is a company within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 s 435(11), whether the person has or has had control of the employer within the meaning of s 435(10)), (2) in the case of a person falling within the Pensions Act 2004 s 43(6)(b) or (c) (see NOTE 10, heads (2), (3)), the value of any benefits received directly or indirectly by that person from the employer, (3) any connection or involvement which the person has or has had with the scheme, (4) the financial circumstances of the person, and (5) such other matters as may be prescribed: s 43(7) (head (5) not yet in force).

22. Financial support directions: clearance statements

An application may be made to the Regulator under the following provisions<sup>1</sup> for the issue of a clearance statement<sup>2</sup> in relation to circumstances described in the application and relating to an occupational pension scheme<sup>3</sup>. A clearance statement is a statement, made by the Regulator, that in its opinion in the circumstances described in the application (1) the employer in relation to the scheme would not be a service company<sup>4</sup>, (2) the employer in relation to the scheme would not be insufficiently resourced<sup>5</sup>, or (3) it would not be reasonable to impose the requirements of a financial support direction, in relation to the scheme, on the applicant<sup>6</sup>. Where an application is made under these provisions, the Regulator (a) may request further information from the applicant; (b) may invite the applicant to amend the application to modify the circumstances described<sup>7</sup>. Where an application is made under these provisions, the Regulator must as soon as reasonably practicable (i) determine whether to issue the clearance statement, and (ii) where it determines to do so, issue the statement<sup>8</sup>. A clearance statement issued under these provisions binds the Regulator in relation to the exercise of the power to issue a financial support direction<sup>9</sup> in relation to the scheme to the applicant unless (A) the circumstances in relation to which the exercise of such a power arises are not the same as the circumstances described in the application, and (b) the difference in those circumstances is material to the exercise of the power<sup>10</sup>.

Provision is made with respect to partnerships and limited liability partnerships<sup>11</sup>.

23. Financial support directions: contribution notices

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where there is non-compliance with a financial support direction<sup>2</sup>. The Regulator may issue a notice to any one or more of the persons to whom the direction was issued stating that the person is under a liability to pay to the trustees or managers of the scheme the sum specified in the notice (a 'contribution notice')<sup>3</sup>. The Regulator may issue a contribution notice to a person only if the Regulator is of the opinion that it is reasonable to impose liability on the person to pay the sum specified in the notice<sup>4</sup>. A contribution notice may not be issued under these provisions in respect of non-compliance with a financial support direction in relation to a scheme where the Board of the Pension Protection Fund has assumed responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004 (pension protection)<sup>5</sup>.

Provision is also made with respect to the sum specified in a contribution notice<sup>6</sup>, the content and effect of a contribution notice<sup>7</sup>, the relationship between contribution notices and employer debt<sup>8</sup> and partnerships and limited liability partnerships<sup>9</sup>.

2 Issued in relation to a scheme under ibid s 43 (see PARA 636A.21): s 47(1).

3 Ibid s 47(2).

4 Ibid s 47(3). The Regulator, when deciding for the purposes of s 47(3) whether it is reasonable to impose liability on a particular person to pay the sum specified in the notice, must have regard to such matters as the Regulator considers relevant including, where relevant, the following matters (1) whether the person has taken reasonable steps to secure compliance with the financial support direction, (2) the relationship which the person has or has had with the employer (including, where the employer is a company within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 s 435(11), whether the person has or has had control of the employer within the meaning of s 435(10)), (3) in the case of a person to whom the financial support direction was issued as a person falling within the Pensions Act 2004 s 43(6)(b) or (c) (see PARA 636A.21), the value of any benefits received directly or indirectly by that person from the employer, (4) the relationship which the person has or has had with the parties to any arrangements put in place in accordance with the direction (including, where any of those parties is a company within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 s 435(11), whether the person has or has had control of that company within the meaning of s 435(10)), (5) any connection or involvement which the person has or has had with the scheme, (6) the financial circumstances of the person, and (7) such other matters as may be prescribed: Pensions Act 2004 s 47(4) (head (7) not yet in force).

24. Restoration orders where transactions at an undervalue

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply in relation to an occupational pension scheme other than (1) a money purchase scheme, or (2) a prescribed scheme or a scheme of a prescribed description<sup>2</sup>. The Regulator may make a restoration order in respect of a transaction involving assets of the scheme<sup>3</sup> if (a) a relevant event<sup>4</sup> has occurred in relation to the employer in relation to the scheme, and (b) the transaction is a transaction at an undervalue entered into with a person at a time which (i) is on or after 27 April 2004, but (ii) is not more than two years before the occurrence of the relevant event in relation to the employer<sup>5</sup>. The above provisions apply without prejudice to the availability of any other remedy, even in relation to a transaction where the trustees or managers of the scheme or appropriate persons in question had no power to enter into the transaction<sup>6</sup>.

1 le the Pensions Act 2004 s 52.

2 Ibid s 52(1). See Pensions Regulator (Contribution Notices and Restoration Orders) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/931 (see PARA 636A.20).

3 A restoration order in respect of a transaction involving assets of a scheme is such an order as the Regulator thinks fit for restoring the position to what it would have been if the transaction had not been entered into: Pensions Act 2004 s 52(3). 'Transaction' includes a gift, agreement or arrangement and references to entering into a transaction are to be construed accordingly: s 52(8). 'Assets' includes future assets: s 52(8).

4 For the purposes of ibid s 52 a relevant event occurs in relation to the employer in relation to a scheme if and when on or after the appointed day (1) an insolvency event occurs in relation to the employer, or (2) the trustees or managers of the scheme make an application under s 129(1) (see PARA 659C.4) or receive a notice from the Board of the Pension Protection Fund under s 129(5)(a) (applications and notifications prior to the Board assuming responsibility for a scheme): s 52(4). For the purposes of s 52(4) (a) the 'appointed day' means the day appointed under s 126(2) (no pension protection under Pt 2 Ch 3 if the scheme begins winding up before the day appointed by the Secretary of State: see PARA 659C.1), (b) s 121 (meaning of 'insolvency event': see PARA 659B.1) applies for the purposes of determining if and when an insolvency event has occurred in relation to the employer, and (c) the reference to an insolvency event in relation to the employer does not include an insolvency event which occurred in relation to him before he became the employer in relation to the scheme: s 52(5).

5 Ibid s 52(2). A transaction involving assets of a scheme is a transaction at an undervalue entered into with a person ('P') if the trustees or managers of the scheme or appropriate persons in relation to the scheme (1) make a gift to P or otherwise enter into a transaction with P on terms that provide for no consideration to be provided towards the scheme, or (2) enter into a transaction with P for a consideration the value of which, in money or money's worth, is significantly less than the value, in money or money's worth, of the consideration provided by or on behalf of the trustees or managers of the scheme: s 52(6). In s 52(6) 'appropriate persons' in relation to a scheme means a person who, or several persons each of whom is a person who, at the time at which the transaction in question is entered into, is (a) a person of a prescribed description, and (b) entitled to exercise powers in relation to the scheme: s 52(7). See SI 2005/931, NOTE 2.

6 Pensions Act 2004 s 52(9).

7 See ibid s 53. See further s 54 (content and effect of a restoration order), s 55 (contribution notice where failure to comply with restoration order), s 56 (content and effect of contribution notice) and s 57 (amended by SI 2009/1941) (partnerships and limited liability partnerships).

25. Applications under the Insolvency Act 1986

The Regulator may apply for an order<sup>1</sup> in relation to a debtor if (1) the debtor is the employer in relation to an occupational pension scheme, and (2) condition A<sup>2</sup> or condition B<sup>3</sup> is met in relation to the scheme<sup>4</sup>. An application made under these provisions is to be treated as made on behalf of every victim of the transaction who is (a) a trustee or member of the scheme, or (b) the Board<sup>5</sup>.

1 Under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 423 (transactions defrauding creditors).

2 Condition A is that an actuarial valuation under the Pensions Act 2004 s 143 (see PARA 659C.15) obtained by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund in respect of the scheme indicates that the value of the assets of the scheme at the relevant time, as defined by s 143, was less than the amount of the protected liabilities, as defined by s 131 (see PARA 659C.6), at that time: Pensions Act 2004 s 58(3). See further NOTE 3.

3 Condition B is that an actuarial valuation, as defined by ibid s 224(2) (see PARA 824A.4), obtained by the trustees or managers of the scheme indicates that the statutory funding objective in s 222 (see PARA 824A.2) is not met: s 58(4). Section 58 does not apply where the valuation mentioned in s 58(3) or (4) is made by reference to a date that falls before the commencement of s 58 (ie 6 April 2005: see SI 2005/275): Pensions Act 2004 s 58(7).

4 Ibid s 58(2). In a case where the debtor (1) has been adjudged bankrupt, (2) is a body corporate which is being wound up or is in administration, or (3) is a partnership which is being wound up or is in administration, s 58(2) does not enable an application to be made under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 423 except with the permission of the court: Pensions Act 2004 s 58(5).

5 Ibid s 58(6).

Expressions which are defined by the Insolvency Act 1986 s 423 for the purposes of s 423 have the same meaning when used in the Pensions Act 2004 s 58: s 58(8).

26. Register of occupational and personal pension schemes

The Regulator must compile and maintain a register of occupational pension schemes and personal pension schemes which are, or have been, registrable schemes<sup>1</sup> (referred to in the Pensions Act 2004 as 'the register')<sup>2</sup>.

Regulations may provide (1) for (a) information recorded in the register, (b) extracts from the register, or (c) copies of the register or of extracts from it, to be provided to prescribed persons in prescribed circumstances, and (2) for the inspection of (i) the register, (ii) extracts from the register, or (iii) copies of the register or of extracts from it, by prescribed persons in prescribed circumstances<sup>3</sup>. The Secretary of State may direct the Regulator to submit to him statistical and other reports concerning information recorded in the register, and the operation of the Regulator's functions in relation to the register<sup>4</sup>.

Further provision relating to the register is made<sup>5</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 59 and ss 62-65 'registrable scheme' means an occupational pension scheme, or a personal pension scheme, of a prescribed description: s 59(2). See Register of Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes Regulations 2005, SI 2005/597 (amended by SI 2006/1733). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12).

2 Pensions Act 2004 s 59(1). In respect of each registrable scheme, the Regulator must record in the register (1) the registrable information most recently provided to it in respect of the scheme, and (2) if the Regulator has received (a) a notice under s 62(5) (scheme which is wound up or ceases to be registrable), (b) a copy of a notice under s 160 (transfer notice: see PARA 659C.24), or (c) any notice, or copy of a notice, under any provision in force in Northern Ireland corresponding to a provision mentioned in head (a) or (b), that fact: s 59(3). For the meaning of 'registrable information' see s 60, SI 2005/597, and the Occupational Pension Schemes (Regulatory Own Funds) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/3380, reg 14. In the Pensions Act 2004 s 59 references to 'registrable information', in relation to a scheme to which any provision in force in Northern Ireland corresponding to s 60(2) ('the corresponding Northern Ireland provision') applies, are to information of any description within the corresponding Northern Ireland provision: s 59(7). In respect of each scheme which has been a registrable scheme, but (i) has been, or is treated as having been, wound up, or (ii) has ceased to be a registrable scheme, the Regulator must maintain in the register the registrable information last provided to it in respect of the scheme: s 59(4). Information recorded in the register must be so recorded in such manner as the Regulator considers appropriate: s 59(5). In particular, the register may consist of more than one part: s 59(6).

3 Ibid s 61(1). See further SI 2005/597. Regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 s 61(1) may, in particular (1) confer functions on (a) the Secretary of State, or (b) a person authorised by him for the purposes of the regulations; (2) make provision with respect to the disclosure of information obtained by virtue of the regulations: s 61(2). Regulations which contain any provision made by virtue of head (2) may, in particular, modify s 82 (restricted information: see PARA 636A.34): s 61(3).

4 Ibid s 61(4). A direction under s 61(4) may specify (1) the form in which, and (2) the times at which, reports required by the direction are to be submitted: s 61(5). The Secretary of State may publish any report submitted to him by virtue of a direction under s 61(4) in such manner as he considers appropriate: s 61(6).

27. Register of prohibited trustees

The Regulator must keep in such manner as it thinks fit a register of all persons who are prohibited from acting as a trustee (the prohibition register)<sup>1</sup>. Arrangements made by the Regulator for the prohibition register must secure that the contents of the register are not disclosed or otherwise made available to members of the public except in accordance with the provision below<sup>2</sup>.

The Regulator must make arrangements to secure that the prohibition register is open, during its normal working hours, for inspection in person and without notice at (1) the principal office used by it for the carrying out of its functions, and (2) such other of its offices (if any) as it considers to be places where it would be reasonable for a copy of the register to be kept open for inspection<sup>3</sup>. If a request is made to the Regulator (a) to state whether a particular person identified in the request is a person appearing in the prohibition register as prohibited in respect of an occupational trust scheme<sup>4</sup> specified in the request, (b) to state whether a particular person so identified is a person appearing in that register as prohibited in respect of a particular description of occupational trust schemes so specified, or (c) to state whether a particular person so identified is a person appearing in that register as prohibited in respect of all occupational trust schemes, the Regulator must promptly comply with the request in such manner as it considers reasonable<sup>5</sup>. The Regulator may, in such manner as it considers appropriate, publish a summary of the prohibition register if<sup>6</sup> the summary (i) contains all the specified information<sup>7</sup>, (ii) arranges that information in the specified manner<sup>8</sup>, (iii) does not (except by identifying a person as prohibited in respect of all occupational trust schemes, in respect of a particular description of such schemes or in respect of a particular such scheme) identify any of the schemes in respect of which persons named in the summary are prohibited, and (iv) does not disclose any other information contained in the register<sup>9</sup>. The Regulator must ensure, in the case of any published summary, that a person is not identified in the summary as a prohibited person if it appears to the Regulator that the determination by virtue of which that person appears in the register (A) is the subject of any pending reference, review, appeal or legal proceedings which could result in that person's removal from the register, or (B) is a determination which might still become the subject of any such reference, review, appeal or proceedings<sup>10</sup>.

<sup>7</sup> I.e. all the information described in ibid s 67(4). That information is (1) the full names and titles, so far as the Regulator has a record of them, of all the persons appearing in the register as persons who are prohibited, (2) the dates of birth of such of those persons as are persons whose dates of birth are matters of which the Regulator has a record, and (3) in the case of each person whose name is included in the published summary, whether that person appears in the register (a) as prohibited in respect of only one occupational trust scheme, (b) as prohibited in respect of one or more particular descriptions of such schemes, but not in respect of all such schemes, or (c) as prohibited in respect of all such schemes: s 67(4). In s 67 'name', in relation to a person any of whose names is recorded by the Regulator as an initial, means that initial: s 67(10). For the purposes of head (3), the information in the published register must be arranged in three separate lists, one for each of the descriptions of prohibition specified in heads (a)-(c) of head (3): s 67(5). The Regulator must ensure, in the case of any published summary, that the particulars relating to a person do not appear in a particular list mentioned in s 67(5) if it appears to the Regulator that a determination by virtue of which that person's particulars would appear in that list (i) is the subject of any pending reference, review, appeal or legal proceedings which could result in such a revocation or other overturning of a prohibition of that person as would require his particulars to appear in a different list, or (ii) is a determination which might still become the subject of any such reference, review, appeal or proceedings: s 67(7). Where s 67(7) prevents a person's particulars from being included in a particular list in the published summary, they must be included, instead, in the list (if any) in which they would have been included if the prohibition to which the reference, review, appeal or proceedings relate or might relate had already been revoked or otherwise overturned: s 67(8). For the purposes of s 67 a determination is one which might still become the subject of a reference, review, appeal or proceedings if, and only if, in the case of that determination (A) the time for the making of an application for a review or reference, or for the bringing of an appeal or other proceedings, has not expired, and (B) there is a reasonable likelihood that such an application might yet be made, or that such an appeal or such proceedings might yet be brought: s 67(9).

8 le in the manner described in ibid s 67(5).

10 Ibid s 67(6).

28. Collecting information relevant to the Board of the Pension Protection Fund

The Regulator may collect any information which appears to it to be relevant to the exercise of the functions of the Board of the Pension Protection Fund<sup>1</sup>.

Except where the Regulator otherwise directs, the appropriate person<sup>2</sup> must give notice of any notifiable event<sup>3</sup> to the Regulator<sup>4</sup>. A notice<sup>5</sup> must be in writing, and<sup>6</sup> must be given as soon as reasonably practicable after the person giving it becomes aware of the notifiable event<sup>7</sup>. Regulations may require a notice to be given before the beginning of the prescribed period ending with the notifiable event in question<sup>8</sup>. No duty to which a person is subject is to be regarded as contravened merely because of any information or opinion contained in a notice under these provisions<sup>9</sup>.

1 Pensions Act 2004 s 68. As to the Board of the Pension Protection Fund see PARA 659A.

2 As to 'the appropriate person' see NOTE 4.

3 For these purposes 'notifiable event' means (1) a prescribed event in respect of an eligible scheme, or (2) a prescribed event in respect of the employer in relation to an eligible scheme: Pensions Act 2004 s 69(2). See Pensions Regulator (Notifiable Events) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/900 (amended by SI 2005/2113). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). In the Pensions Act 2004 s 69 'event' includes a failure to act and 'eligible scheme' has the meaning given by s 126 (see PARA 659C.1): s 69(9).

4 Ibid s 69(1). For the purposes of s 69(1) (1) in the case of an event within NOTE 3 head (1), each of the following is 'the appropriate person' (a) the trustees or managers of the scheme, (b) a person of a prescribed description, and (2) in relation to an event within NOTE 3 head (2), each of the following is 'the appropriate person' (i) the employer in relation to the scheme, (ii) a person of a prescribed description: s 69(3).

Where the trustees or managers of a scheme fail to comply with an obligation imposed on them by s 69(1), the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (civil penalties: see PARA 611) applies in relation to any trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance with the Pensions Act 2004 s 69(1): s 69(7). The Pensions Act 1995 s 10 also applies to any other person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with an obligation imposed on him by the Pensions Act 2004 s 69(1): s 69(8).

6 Subject to ibid s 69(5).

7 Ibid s 69(4).

8 Ibid s 69(5).

9 Ibid s 69(6). This is subject to s 311 (protected items: see PARA 636A.12): s 69(6).

29. Duty to report breaches of the law

Where a person<sup>1</sup> has reasonable cause to believe that (1) a duty which is relevant to the administration of the scheme in question, and is imposed by or by virtue of an enactment or rule of law, has not been or is not being complied with, and (2) the failure to comply is likely to be of material significance to the Regulator in the exercise of any of its functions, he must give a written report of the matter to the Regulator as soon as reasonably practicable<sup>2</sup>.

1 The Pensions Act 2004 s 70(2) imposes a reporting requirement on the following persons (1) a trustee or manager of an occupational or personal pension scheme; (2) a person who is otherwise involved in the administration of such a scheme; (3) the employer in relation to an occupational pension scheme; (4) a professional adviser in relation to such a scheme; (5) a person who is otherwise involved in advising the trustees or managers of an occupational or personal pension scheme in relation to the scheme: s 70(1). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires 'professional adviser', in relation to an occupational pension scheme, has the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 47 (see PARA 825): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1).

2 Ibid s 70(2). No duty to which a person is subject is to be regarded as contravened merely because of any information or opinion contained in a written report under s 70: s 70(3). This is subject to s 311 (protected items: see PARA 636A.12): s 70(3). The Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (civil penalties: see PARA 611) applies to any person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with an obligation imposed on him by the Pensions Act 2004 s 70: s 70(4).

30. Reports by skilled persons

The Regulator may issue a notice (a 'report notice') to (1) the trustees or managers of a work-based pension scheme<sup>1</sup>, (2) any employer in relation to such a scheme, or (3) any person who is otherwise involved in the administration of such a scheme, requiring them or, as the case may be, him to provide the Regulator with a report on one or more specified<sup>2</sup> matters which are relevant to the exercise of any of the Regulator's functions<sup>3</sup>. A report notice must require the person appointed to make the report to be a person (a) nominated or approved by the Regulator, and (b) appearing to the Regulator to have the skills necessary to make a report on the matter or matters concerned<sup>4</sup>. A report notice may require the report to be provided to the Regulator (i) in a specified form; (ii) before a specified date<sup>5</sup>. The costs of providing a report in accordance with a report notice must be met by the person to whom the notice is issued ('the notified person')<sup>6</sup>. But a report notice may require a specified person (other than the Regulator) to reimburse to the notified person the whole or any part of the costs of providing the report<sup>7</sup>. If the trustees or managers of a work-based pension scheme fail to comply with a report notice issued to them, the civil penalty provisions of the Pensions Act 1995<sup>8</sup> apply to any trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance<sup>9</sup>. Where a report notice is issued, any person who is providing (or who at any time has provided) services to the notified person in relation to a matter on which the report is required must give the person appointed to make the report such assistance as he may reasonably require<sup>10</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 71 'work-based pension scheme' has the same meaning as in s 5 (Regulator's objectives: see PARA 636A.3): s 71(11).

2 In ibid s 71 'specified', in relation to a report notice, means specified in the notice: s 71(11).

3 Ibid s 71(1).

4 Ibid s 71(2).

5 Ibid s 71(3).

6 Ibid s 71(4).

7 Ibid s 71(5). Where, by virtue of s 71(5), an amount is required to be reimbursed by a specified person to the notified person, that amount is to be treated as a debt due from the specified person to the notified person: s 71(6).

8 Ie the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (see PARA 611).

9 Pensions Act 2004 s 71(7). The Pensions Act 1995 s 10 also applies to any other person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with a report notice issued to him: Pensions Act 2004 s 71(8).

10 Ibid s 71(9). The duty imposed by s 71(9) is enforceable, on the application of the Regulator, by an injunction: s 71(10).

31. Gathering information

The Regulator may, by notice in writing, require any person<sup>1</sup> to produce any document<sup>2</sup>, or provide any other information, which is (1) of a description specified in the notice, and (2) relevant to the exercise of the Regulator's functions<sup>3</sup>.

An inspector<sup>4</sup> may, for the purposes of investigating whether, in the case of any occupational pension scheme, the occupational scheme provisions<sup>5</sup> are being, or have been, complied with, at any reasonable time enter premises liable to inspection<sup>6</sup>. An inspector may, for the purposes of investigating whether, in the case of a stakeholder scheme<sup>7</sup> specified provisions<sup>8</sup> are being, or have been, complied with, at any reasonable time enter premises liable to inspection<sup>9</sup>. An inspector may, for the purposes of investigating whether, in the case of any trust-based personal stakeholder scheme<sup>10</sup>, the trust-based scheme provisions<sup>11</sup> are being, or have been, complied with, at any reasonable time enter premises liable to inspection<sup>12</sup>. Further provision relating to the inspection of premises is made<sup>13</sup>.

1 Ie any person to whom the Pensions Act 2004 s 72(2) applies. Section 72(2) applies to (1) a trustee or manager of an occupational or personal pension scheme, (2) a professional adviser in relation to an occupational pension scheme, (3) the employer in relation to (a) an occupational pension scheme, or (b) a personal pension scheme where direct payment arrangements exist in respect of one or more members of the scheme who are employees, and (4) any other person appearing to the Regulator to be a person who holds, or is likely to hold, information relevant to the exercise of the Regulator's functions: s 72(2).

2 For the purposes of ibid ss 72-78 'document' includes information recorded in any form, and any reference to production of a document, in relation to information recorded otherwise than in a legible form, is to producing a copy of the information (1) in a legible form, or (2) in a form from which it can readily be produced in a legible form: s 79(2).

3 Ibid s 72(1). Where the production of a document, or the provision of information, is required by a notice given under s 72(1), the document must be produced, or information must be provided, in such a manner, at such a place and within such a period as may be specified in the notice: s 72(3).

4 For the purposes of ibid ss 72-78 'inspector' means a person appointed by the Regulator as an inspector: s 79(3).

5 As to the 'occupational scheme provisions' see ibid s 73(2).

6 Ibid s 73(1). Premises are liable to inspection for the purposes of s 73 if the inspector has reasonable grounds to believe that (1) members of the scheme are employed there, (2) documents relevant to the administration of the scheme are being kept there, or (3) the administration of the scheme, or work connected with that administration, is being carried out there: s 73(6).

7 In ibid s 73, 'stakeholder scheme' means an occupational pension scheme or a personal pension scheme which is or has been registered under (1) the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 2 (register of stakeholder schemes), or (2) any corresponding provision in force in Northern Ireland: Pensions Act 2004 s 73(7).

8 le the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 ss 1 and 2(4) (stakeholder pension schemes: registration etc), or any corresponding provisions in force in Northern Ireland.

10 For these purposes 'trust-based personal stakeholder scheme' means a personal pension scheme which (1) is a stakeholder scheme, and (2) is established under a trust: ibid s 73(5).

11 For these purposes the 'trust-based scheme provisions' means any provisions contained in or made by virtue of (1) any provision which applies in relation to trust-based personal stakeholder schemes by virtue of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 1 para 1, as the provision applies by virtue of Sch 1 para 1, or (2) any corresponding provision in force in Northern Ireland: Pensions Act 2004 s 73(5).

12 Ibid s 73(4).

13 See ibid s 74 (inspection of premises in respect of employers' obligations), s 75 (powers of inspectors), s 76 (supplementary provision), s 77 (penalties relating to ss 72-75) and s 78 (warrants).

32. Offences of providing false or misleading information

Any person who knowingly or recklessly provides the Regulator with information which is false or misleading in a material particular is guilty of an offence if the information (1) is provided in purported compliance with a requirement under specified provision<sup>1</sup> (2) is provided in applying for registration of a pension scheme<sup>2</sup>, or (3) is provided otherwise than as mentioned in head (1) or (2) above but in circumstances in which the person providing the information intends, or could reasonably be expected to know, that it would be used by the Regulator for the purpose of exercising its functions under the Pensions Act 2004 or the Pensions Act 1995<sup>3</sup>.

1 le under (1) the Pensions Act 2004 s 62 (the register: duties of trustees or managers: see PARA 636A.26), (2) s 64 (duty of trustees or managers to provide scheme return: see PARA 636A.26), (3) s 72 (provision of information: see PARA 636A.31), or (4) s 75 (inspection of premises: powers of inspectors: see PARA 636A.31).

2 Under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 2 (registration of stakeholder pension schemes: see PARA 873A.2).

3 Pensions Act 2004 s 80(1). Any person guilty of an offence under s 80(1) is liable (1) on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum; (2) on conviction on indictment, to a fine or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both: s 80(2). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 403.

33. Use of information

Information (1) contained in the register, or (2) otherwise held by the Regulator in the exercise of any of its functions, may be used by the Regulator for the purposes of, or for any purpose connected with or incidental to, the exercise of its functions<sup>1</sup>.

1 Pensions Act 2004 s 81.

34. Disclosure of information

Restricted information<sup>1</sup> must not be disclosed (1) by the Regulator, or (2) by any person who receives the information directly or indirectly from the Regulator<sup>2</sup>. Restricted information may be disclosed with the consent of the person to whom it relates and (if different) the person from whom the Regulator obtained it<sup>3</sup>. Any person who discloses information in contravention of these provisions<sup>4</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable (a) on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>5</sup> or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months, or both; (b) on conviction on indictment, to a fine or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both<sup>6</sup>.

Further provision relating to the disclosure on information is made<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 82 and ss 83-87, 'restricted information' means any information obtained by the Regulator in the exercise of its functions which relates to the business or other affairs of any person, except for information (1) which at the time of the disclosure is or has already been made available to the public from other sources, or (2) which is in the form of a summary or collection of information so framed as not to enable information relating to any particular person to be ascertained from it: s 82(4).

2 Ibid s 82(1). Section 82(1) is subject to (1) s 82(3), and (2) ss 71(9) (see PARA 636A.30), 83-88 and 235 (see PARA 965B.2): s 82(2).

4 I.e. the Pensions Act 2004 s 82.

5 As to the statutory maximum see PARA 403.

35. Publishing reports etc

The Regulator may, if it considers it appropriate to do so in any particular case, publish a report of the consideration given by it to the exercise of its functions in relation to that case and the results of that consideration<sup>1</sup>. For the purposes of the law of defamation, the publication of any matter by the Regulator is privileged unless the publication is shown to be made with malice<sup>2</sup>.

1 Pensions Act 2004 s 89(1). The publication of a report under s 89(1) may be in such form and manner as the Regulator considers appropriate: s 89(2).

36. Codes of practice

The Regulator may issue codes of practice (1) containing practical guidance in relation to the exercise of functions under the pensions legislation<sup>1</sup>, and (2) regarding the standards of conduct and practice expected from those who exercise such functions<sup>2</sup>. The Regulator may from time to time revise the whole or any part of a code of practice issued under these provisions<sup>3</sup> and issue that revised code<sup>4</sup>. A failure on the part of any person to observe any provision of a code of practice does not of itself render that person liable to any legal proceedings<sup>5</sup>. A code of practice issued under these provisions is admissible in evidence in any legal proceedings and, if any provision of such a code appears to the court or tribunal concerned to be relevant to any question arising in the proceedings, it must be taken into account in determining that question<sup>6</sup>.

Provision is made about the procedure to be followed when a code of practice is issued or revoked<sup>7</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 90 'the pensions legislation' means any enactment contained in or made by virtue of (1) the Pension Schemes Act 1993, (2) the Pensions Act 1995 Pt 1, other than ss 62-66A (equal treatment), (3) the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Pt 1 or s 33, or (4) the Pensions Act 2004: s 90(6).

2 Ibid s 90(1). The Regulator must issue one or more such codes of practice relating to the following matters (1) what constitutes a 'reasonable' period for the purposes of any provision of the pensions legislation (other than any enactment contained in or made by virtue of Pt 2 (ss 107-220) which requires any action to be taken within such a period; (2) the circumstances in which the Regulator expects to issue contribution notices under s 38 (see PARA 636A.20) as a result of being of the opinion that the material detriment test is met in relation to an act or failure; (3) the discharge of the duty imposed by s 69 (duty to notify Regulator of certain events: see PARA 636A.28); (4) the discharge of the duty imposed by s 70 (duty to report breaches of the law: see PARA 636A.29); (5) the discharge of duties imposed on trustees or managers of occupational pension schemes by, or by virtue of, Pt 3 (scheme funding (ss 221-233)); (6) the discharge of the duties imposed by ss 241 and 242 (member-nominated trustees and directors: see PARA 794A); (7) the obligations imposed by ss 247 and 248 (requirements for knowledge and understanding: individual and corporate trustees: see PARA 800A); (8) the discharge of the duty imposed by the Pensions Act 1995 s 49(9)(b) (duty of trustees or managers of occupational pension schemes to report material failures by employers to pay contributions deducted from employee's earnings timeously: see PARA 798); (9) the discharge of the duties imposed by ss 67-67I (the subsisting rights provisions: see PARA 833A); (10) the discharge of the duty imposed by s 88(1) (duties of trustees and managers of money purchase schemes to report failures to pay employer contributions etc timeously: see PARA 864); (11) the discharge of the duty imposed by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 111A(7A) (duty of trustees or managers of personal pension schemes to report material failures to pay employer contributions timeously: see PARA 556A); (12) such other matters as are prescribed for the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 90: s 90(2) (amended by Pensions Act 2008 Sch 9 para 3). The discharge of the duty imposed by the Pensions Act 2004 s 249A(1) (see PARA 800A.3) is a prescribed matter for the purposes of head (12): Occupational Pension Schemes (Internal Controls) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/3379, reg 3.

This is subject to s 13(3)(a) and (8) (power for improvement notice to direct that person complies with code of practice and civil penalties for failure to comply: see PARA 636A.11): s 90(4). In s 90 'legal proceedings' includes proceedings of the Pensions Ombudsman, proceedings of the Ombudsman for the Board of the Pension Protection Fund and proceedings of the Board of the Pension Protection Fund under s 207 (see PARA 659F.1) or 208 (see PARA 659F.2): s 90(6).

37. Exercise of regulatory functions

The Regulator must determine the procedure that it proposes to follow in relation to the exercise of its regulatory functions<sup>1</sup>. The Determinations Panel<sup>2</sup> must determine the procedure to be followed by it in relation to any exercise by it on behalf of the Regulator of (1) the power to determine whether to exercise a regulatory function, and (2) where the Panel so determines to exercise a regulatory function, the power to exercise the function in question<sup>3</sup>. The procedure determined under these provisions<sup>4</sup> (a) must provide for the procedure required under the standard procedure<sup>5</sup> and the special procedure<sup>6</sup> and (b) may include such other procedural requirements as the Regulator or, as the case may be, the Panel considers appropriate<sup>7</sup>.

The Regulator must issue a statement of the procedure determined under the above provisions<sup>8</sup>.

Detailed provision is made with respect to the standard procedure and the special procedure<sup>9</sup>. In addition provision is made relating to the compulsory review of a determination to take regulatory action<sup>10</sup>, the duty to have regard to the interests of members of the scheme<sup>11</sup>, and powers to vary or revoke orders, notices or directions<sup>12</sup>.

598-676 Regulation of Private Pension Provision

598-636 The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority

The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority ('OPRA') is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(1). An order under s 322 which appoints the day on which s 300(1) comes into force (ie 6 April 2005: see SI 2005/695) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which OPRA is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become the property, rights and liabilities of the Pensions Regulator or the Secretary of State, and (2) for any function of OPRA falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Regulator, the Secretary of State or the Department for Social Development in Northern Ireland: Pensions Act 2004 s 300(2). Subject to s 300(4), information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 82-87 (disclosure of information: see PARA 636A.34) as having been obtained by the Regulator in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom OPRA obtained it: s 300(3). Information obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2) which was supplied to OPRA for the purposes of its functions by an authority exercising functions corresponding to the functions of OPRA in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom (the 'overseas authority') is to be treated for the purposes mentioned in s 300(3) as having been supplied to the Regulator for the purposes of its functions by the overseas authority: s 300(4). Where tax information disclosed to OPRA is obtained by the Regulator by virtue of s 300(2), s 300(3) does not apply and s 88(3) and (4) (see PARA 636A.34) applies as if that information had been disclosed to the Regulator by virtue of s 88(2): s 300(5). For this purpose 'tax information' has the same meaning as in s 88: s 300(5). For provision relating to the transfer of employees from OPRA to the Regulator see s 301.

As to the Pensions Regulator see Pensions Act 2004 Pt 1 (ss 1-106, Schs 1-4); and PARA 636A.

Establishment of the Pensions Compensation Board.

(2) THE PENSIONS COMPENSATION BOARD

637. Establishment of the Pensions Compensation Board.

There is a body corporate called the Pensions Compensation Board ('the board')<sup>1</sup>. The board consists of not less than three members appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup>, one of whom must be so appointed as chairman<sup>3</sup>. In addition to the chairman, the board comprises:

- 1460 (1) a member appointed after the Secretary of State has consulted:
155
- 211. (a) organisations appearing to him to be representative of employers<sup>4</sup>; and
- 212. (b) the chairman<sup>5</sup>;
156
- 1461 (2) a member appointed after the Secretary of State has consulted:
157
- 213. (a) organisations appearing to him to be representative of employees<sup>6</sup>; and
- 214. (b) the chairman<sup>7</sup>,

and such other member or members as the Secretary of State may appoint after consultation with the chairman<sup>8</sup>.

Payments made by the board may be made on such terms (including terms requiring repayment in whole or in part) and on such conditions as the board thinks appropriate<sup>9</sup>. The board may borrow from an institution authorised under the Banking Act 1987<sup>10</sup> such sums as it may from time to time require for exercising any of its functions<sup>11</sup> provided that the aggregate amount outstanding in respect of the principal of any money so borrowed by the board must not exceed the prescribed<sup>12</sup> amount<sup>13</sup>.

Neither the board nor any person who is a member or employee of the board may be liable in damages for anything done or omitted in the discharge or purported discharge of the functions of the board under Part I of the Pensions Act 1995<sup>14</sup>, or any corresponding provisions in force in Northern Ireland, unless it is shown that the act or omission was in bad faith<sup>15</sup>.

The board is not to be regarded as the servant or agent of the Crown, or as enjoying any status, privilege or immunity of the Crown; and its property is not to be regarded as property of, or property held on behalf of, the Crown<sup>16</sup>. The board may do anything which is calculated to facilitate the discharge of its functions, or is incidental or conducive to their discharge, including in particular giving guarantees or indemnities in favour of any person, or making any other agreement or arrangement with or for the benefit of any person<sup>17</sup>.

A person holds and vacates office as chairman or other member of the board in accordance with the terms of the instrument appointing him<sup>18</sup>. If, however, a member of the board becomes or ceases to be chairman, the Secretary of State may vary the terms of the instrument appointing him to be a member so as to alter the date on which he is to vacate office<sup>19</sup>.

A person may at any time resign office as chairman or other member of the board by giving written notice of his resignation signed by him to the Secretary of State<sup>20</sup>. The chairman or any other member of the board may at any time be removed from office by notice in writing given to him by the Secretary of State<sup>21</sup>.

The board may pay, or make provision for paying, to or in respect of the chairman or any other member such salaries or other remuneration, and such pensions, allowances, fees, expenses or gratuities, as the Secretary of State may determine<sup>22</sup>. Where a person ceases to be a member of the board otherwise than on the expiration of his term of office and it appears to the Secretary of State that there are circumstances which make it right for that person to receive compensation, the board may make to that person a payment of such amount as the Secretary of State may determine<sup>23</sup>.

All members of the board are disqualified for membership of the House of Commons<sup>24</sup>. The board is subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration<sup>25</sup>.

Cases where compensation provisions apply.

643. Cases where compensation provisions apply.

Subject to the following exceptions, an application for compensation<sup>1</sup> in respect of an occupational pension scheme<sup>2</sup> may be made if all the following conditions are met:

- 1474 (1) the scheme is a trust scheme<sup>3</sup>;
- 1475 (2) the employer<sup>4</sup> is insolvent<sup>5</sup>;
- 1476 (3) the value of the assets of the scheme has been reduced, and there are reasonable grounds for believing that the reduction was attributable to an act or omission constituting a prescribed<sup>6</sup> offence<sup>7</sup>;
- 1477 (4) in the case of a salary-related trust scheme<sup>8</sup>, immediately before the date of the application<sup>9</sup> the value of the assets of the scheme is less than 90 per cent of the amount of the liabilities of the scheme<sup>10</sup>; and
- 1478 (5) it is reasonable in all the circumstances that the members<sup>11</sup> of the scheme should be assisted by the Pensions Compensation Board<sup>12</sup> paying to the trustees of the scheme, out of funds for the time being held by it, an amount determined in accordance with the compensation provisions<sup>13</sup>.

The compensation provisions do not apply in respect of a trust scheme falling within a prescribed class or description<sup>14</sup>; and head (3) above applies only to reductions in value since the appointed day<sup>15</sup>. Where these provisions apply to an application for compensation, the trustees must obtain any recoveries of value<sup>16</sup>, to the extent that they may do so without disproportionate cost and within a reasonable time<sup>17</sup>.

As to when an employer is taken to be insolvent see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 123(1); and PARA 853 note 5 post (definition applied by the Pensions Act 1995 s 81(8)). Section 81(1)(b) is modified in relation to multi-employer schemes: see the Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 8(1)(a).

6    For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 555 note 1 ante.

7    Pensions Act 1995 s 81(1)(c). The prescribed offence for these purposes is any offence involving dishonesty, and for the avoidance of doubt dishonesty includes an intent to defraud: Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 3.

8    For the purposes of the Pensions Act 1995 Pt I (ss 1-125) (see PARA 598 et seq ante, 644 et seq post), an occupational pension scheme is salary-related if the scheme is not a money purchase scheme and the scheme does not fall within a prescribed class or description, and 'salary-related trust scheme' is to be read accordingly: s 125(1). For the meaning of 'money purchase scheme' see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1); and PARA 811 note 2 post (definition applied by the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(5)).

9    'The application date' means the date of the application for compensation under ibid s 82 (see PARA 644 post): s 81(3)(a).

10 Ibid s 81(1)(d). Section 81(1)(d) is substituted in relation to (1) a money purchase scheme (ie an occupational pension scheme under which all the benefits that may be provided other than death benefits are money purchase benefits); and (2) an ear-marked scheme (ie an occupational pension scheme which is a money purchase scheme under which all the benefits are secured by one or more policies of insurance or annuity contracts and such policies or contracts are specifically allocated to the provision of benefits for individual members or any other person who has a right to benefits under the scheme): see the Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, regs 1(2), 10(1)(a)(i), (2)(a)(i)-(iii).

11 For the meaning of 'member' see PARA 612 note 5 ante.

12 As to the Pensions Compensation Board see PARA 637 ante.

13 Pensions Act 1995 s 81(1)(e). In the Pensions Act 1995 Pt I (see PARA 598 et seq ante, 644 et seq post), the 'compensation provisions' means the provisions of ss 81-85: s 81(3). As to ss 82-85 see PARAS 644-647 post. Section 56(3), (4) applies for the purposes of the compensation provisions as it applies for the purposes of ss 56-61 (see PARA 811 et seq post): s 81(7). Regulations may modify the compensation provisions in their application to trust schemes falling within a prescribed class or description: s 86. For the meaning of 'regulations' see PARA 600 note 2 ante. For the meaning of 'modify' see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1); and PARA 664 note 10 post (definition applied by the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(5)).

14 The compensation provisions do not apply to: (1) a scheme which has fewer than two members and no beneficiaries; (2) a scheme the only benefits provided by which are death benefits and under the provisions of which no member has accrued rights; (3) a scheme which provides relevant benefits within the meaning of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 612(1) (see PARA 741 note 6 post), but is neither an approved scheme (ie a scheme approved or formerly approved under s 590 or s 591 (as amended), or in respect of which an application for such an approval has been duly made which has not been determined: see PARA 747 et seq post) nor a relevant statutory scheme within the meaning of s 611A (as added) (see PARA 756 note 2 post); (4) a scheme whose members are fewer than 12, all of whom are trustees and under the rules of which all trustee decisions must be made by unanimous agreement, save that the non-participation of a pensioner trustee in any such decision must be disregarded; (5) a public service pension scheme within the meaning of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 1 (see PARA 874 post); (6) a relevant lump sum retirement benefits scheme; (7) a scheme in respect of which any Minister of the Crown has given a guarantee or made any other arrangements for the purpose of securing that the assets of the scheme are sufficient to meet its liabilities; or (8) a scheme with such a superannuation fund as is mentioned in the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 615(6) (certain overseas pensions): see the Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, regs 1(2), 2(1), (2). For these purposes, 'scheme' means an occupational pension scheme which is a trust scheme (reg 1(2)); 'lump sum benefits' does not include benefits paid by way of commuted retirement pension (reg 2(2)); 'pensioner trustee' has the meaning given in the Retirement Benefits Schemes (Restriction on Discretion to Approve) (Small Self-administered Schemes) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1614 (see PARA 751 note 24 post) (Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 2(2)); 'relevant benefits' has the meaning given in the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 612(1) (see PARA 741 note 6 post) (Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 2(2)); and 'relevant lump sum retirement benefits scheme' means an approved scheme (a) which has been categorised by the Board of Inland Revenue for the purposes of its approval as a centralised scheme for non-associated employers; (b) which is not contracted-out; and (c) under the provisions of which the only benefits which may be provided on or after retirement (other than money purchase benefits derived from the payment of additional contributions by any person) are lump sum benefits which are not calculated by reference to any member's salary (reg 2(2)).

15 Pensions Act 1995 s 81(2). 'The appointed day' means the day appointed under s 180 for the commencement of s 81 (ie 6 April 1997): s 81(3)(b).

16 'Recovery of value' means any increase in the value of the assets of the scheme, being an increase attributable to any payment received (otherwise than from the board) by the trustees of the scheme in respect of any act or omission: (1) which there are reasonable grounds for believing constituted a prescribed offence; and (2) to which any reduction in value falling within ibid s 81(1)(c) was attributable: s 81(3)(f). It is for the board to determine whether anything received by the trustees of the scheme is to be treated as a payment received for any such act or omission as is referred to in s 81(3)(f); and in s 81 'payment' includes any money or money's worth: s 81(4).

17 Ibid s 81(5). If s 81(5) is not complied with, s 3 (prohibition orders: see PARA 604 ante) applies to any trustee who has failed to take all such steps as are reasonable to secure compliance: s 81(6).

The amount of the payment or (if there is more than one) the aggregate:

- 1479 (1) must not exceed 90 per cent of the shortfall at the application date<sup>14</sup>, together with interest at the prescribed rate for the prescribed period on the shortfall or (if the shortfall comprises more than one reduction in value) on each of the reductions<sup>15</sup>; and also

1    le one to which the Pensions Act 1995 s 81 applies: see PARA 643 ante.

2    For the purposes of ibid s 82, the 'qualifying period', subject to s 82(5), is the period expiring with the period of 12 months mentioned in s 82(4): s 82(3). The period of 12 months referred to in s 82(3) is that beginning with the later of the following times: (1) the insolvency date; (2) when the auditor or actuary of the scheme, or the trustees, knew or ought reasonably to have known that a reduction of value falling within s 81(1)(c) had occurred, being, in each case, a time after the appointed day (see PARA 643 note 15 ante): s 82(4). 'The insolvency date' means the date on which the employer became insolvent (s 81(3)(c)) or, where a scheme applies to earners in employments under different employers, the date on which the last employer became insolvent (see the Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 8(1)(b)). For the meaning of 'employer' see PARA 598 note 4 ante. As to when an employer is taken to be insolvent see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 123(1); and PARA 853 note 5 post (definition applied by the Pensions Act 1995 s 81(8)). As to the auditor and the actuary see PARA 825 post; and as to 'the appointed day' see PARA 643 note 14 ante.

3    For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 555 note 1 ante.

4    Pensions Act 1995 s 82(1). An application for compensation in respect of a scheme may only be made by (1) the trustees of a scheme, or their representative; (2) a person concerned with the administration of, or the provision of benefits under, the scheme, or his representative; or (3) a member of, or beneficiary under, the scheme, or his representative: Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 4. As to the procedure on determination of an application see PARA 645 post; and as to review of determinations see PARA 648 et seq post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/15.
REGULATION OF PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/(2) THE PENSIONS COMPENSATION BOARD/645.
Procedure on determination of application for payment.

645. Procedure on determination of application for payment.

The Pensions Compensation Board must, within 14 days of receipt of an application<sup>1</sup>, send to the applicant a written notice acknowledging receipt of the application and setting out the steps to be taken by the board in determining the application<sup>2</sup>. After an application has been sent or delivered to the board at its proper address it may not be withdrawn without the board's consent in writing, but that consent must not be unreasonably refused<sup>3</sup>.

Where an applicant dies or is unable or unwilling to continue with an application, the board may appoint such other person as it thinks fit as a successor to the applicant, if that other person consents in writing, and the application must be carried on by that other person in substitution for the applicant<sup>4</sup>.

The board may hold an oral hearing in respect of any question which it is within its functions to determine<sup>5</sup>. Where the board so decides, it must fix the date, time and place for the hearing and, not less than 28 days<sup>6</sup> before that date, send to the applicant, and to such other persons as it appears to the board the justice of the case may require, a notice in writing specifying the date, time and place of the hearing, and the manner in which it is to be conducted<sup>7</sup>. The notice must also ask the person notified to confirm within 14 days of receipt of the notice whether or not that person or his representative, if any, will attend the hearing, and if so, the names and addresses of the witnesses, if any, that person or his representative intends to call<sup>8</sup>.

An oral hearing must be in public except where the board is satisfied that, by reason of the disclosure of intimate personal or financial circumstances, commercially sensitive information, or information communicated or obtained in confidence, it is just and reasonable for the hearing, or part of it, to be in private<sup>9</sup>. The board may exclude from the hearing, or part of it, any person whose conduct has disrupted or is likely, in the opinion of the board, to disrupt the hearing<sup>10</sup>. The following persons are entitled to attend, and, in the case of persons listed in heads (1) to (3) and (6) below, to be heard, at an oral hearing whether or not it takes place in public:

- 1481 (1) the applicant;
- 1482 (2) a witness called by the applicant or the board or by any other person entitled to be heard;
- 1483 (3) the trustees of the scheme to which the application relates;
- 1484 (4) a member of the Council on Tribunals or of the Scottish Committee of that Council;
- 1485 (5) the secretary to the board;
- 1486 (6) such other persons as it appears to the board the justice of the case may require<sup>11</sup>.

If the applicant or any other person entitled to be heard fails to attend or be represented at an oral hearing, the board may, unless it is satisfied that there is sufficient reason for that absence, hear and determine the application in the absence of that person or may adjourn the hearing<sup>12</sup>.

The board must conduct the oral hearing in such manner as it considers most suitable to the clarification of the issues before it, and generally as to the just handling of the proceedings<sup>13</sup>. The applicant and any other person entitled to be heard is entitled to give evidence, to call witnesses, to question any witnesses and to address the board both on evidence and generally on the subject matter of the hearing<sup>14</sup>. The board may receive evidence of any fact which appears to the board to be relevant even if such evidence would be inadmissible in proceedings before a court of law, but must not refuse to admit any evidence which is admissible at law and is relevant<sup>15</sup>.

If the board is satisfied that it is just and reasonable to do so, it may permit the applicant to rely on grounds for the compensation claim which were not set out in the application, whether or not amended<sup>16</sup>.

The board must, within 14 days of making a determination as to whether to make a payment or payments to the trustees of the scheme to which the application relates, send written notice of its decision to the applicant, and, if different, to the trustees<sup>17</sup>. The written notice must contain:

- 1487 (a) a statement of reasons for the board's decision;
- 1488 (b) where a decision is made to award compensation, details of the terms and conditions, if any, subject to which the payment or payments will be made;
- 1489 (c) a statement that there is a right to request a review of the board's determination<sup>18</sup>.

The notice must be signed by the chairman of the board<sup>19</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'application' means an application to the Pensions Compensation Board for compensation under the Pensions Act 1995 s 82 (see PARA 644 ante) or, as the case may be, under the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation; and the word 'applicant' must be construed accordingly: Pensions Compensation Board (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/724, reg 2. As to the Pensions Compensation Board see PARA 637 ante.

2 Ibid reg 3. Any document required or authorised by the Pensions Compensation Board (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/724, to be sent or delivered to any person is duly sent or delivered if sent to that person's proper address by post or if delivered to that person or left at that person's proper address: reg 28(1). The proper address for the board, or the review board, is the address of the office of the board; and the proper address of any other person to whom any such document is to be sent or delivered is the address given by that person, or, if none, the last known address of that person, or, in the case of an incorporated company or body, the registered or principal office of that company or body: reg 28(2).

5 Ibid reg 5. The requirements of Pt II (regs 2-9) apply in respect of such hearings: reg 5. Any irregularity resulting from failure to comply with any of those provisions does not, however, of itself render the application in question or the proceedings in question void: reg 27(1). Clerical mistakes in any written statement of a determination or errors arising in such a document from an accidental slip or omission may be corrected by the chairman of the board certifying the correction in writing on the document: reg 27(2).

6 The time appointed by the Pensions Compensation Board (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/724, for the doing of any act or the taking of any step by any person may be extended by the board upon such terms, if any, as it appears to the board the justice of the case may require, and such extension may be granted although the request therefor is not made until after the expiration of the time appointed: reg 26.

7 Ibid reg 6(1).

8 Ibid reg 6(2). Where a person acts on behalf of another, that person may take all such steps and do all such things for the purposes of the Pensions Compensation Board (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/724, as that other person is thereby required or authorised to take or do: reg 25.

REGULATION OF PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/(2) THE PENSIONS COMPENSATION BOARD/646.
Payments made in anticipation.

646. Payments made in anticipation.

The Pensions Compensation Board<sup>1</sup> may, on an application for compensation<sup>2</sup>, make a payment or payments to the trustees of a trust scheme<sup>3</sup> where in its opinion:

- 1490 (1) the compensation provisions apply<sup>4</sup>, or may apply, to the application<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1491 (2) the trustees would not otherwise be able to meet liabilities falling within a prescribed class<sup>6</sup>, but the board has not determined the settlement date<sup>7</sup>. Amounts payable under these provisions must be determined in accordance with regulations<sup>8</sup>. Where any such payment is made, the board may, except in prescribed circumstances<sup>9</sup>:

- 1492 (a) if it subsequently forms the opinion that the compensation provisions do not apply to the application for compensation in respect of the scheme<sup>10</sup>; or
- 1493 (b) if it subsequently forms the opinion that the amount of the payment was excessive, recover so much of the payment as it considers appropriate<sup>11</sup>.

4 Ie where the Pensions Act 1995 s 81 (see PARA 643 ante) applies: see s 84(1)(a).

5 Ibid s 84(1)(a).

6 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 555 note 1 ante. The prescribed class of liabilities are (1) any liability for payment of pensions which has arisen at the application date; (2) any liability which arises between the application date and the settlement date for payment of (a) guaranteed minimum pensions; (b) pensions, other than guaranteed minimum pensions, payable to persons reaching normal pension age; (c) pensions payable to beneficiaries; (d) ill-health retirement pensions; (3) in the case of a scheme where some or all of the benefits that may be provided are money purchase benefits, any specified liability: Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 6(1). The specified liability referred to is the approximate amount of any monthly pension that would have been payable in respect of money purchase benefits prior to the settlement date but for the loss: reg 6(2). Except where any liability for payment of a pension arises in connection with terminal illness, such liability does not for these purposes include any liability for payment of a lump sum, whether or not deriving from the commutation of pension rights; and a person is regarded as terminally ill where his expectation of life is less than one year, and the expression terminal illness is to be construed accordingly: reg 6(3), (4).

7 Pensions Act 1995 s 84(1)(b). As to the settlement date see PARA 644 note 9 ante.

Regulations may modify the compensation provisions in their application to trust schemes falling within a prescribed class or description: s 86. For the meaning of 'modify' see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 181(1); and PARA 664 note 10 post (definition applied by the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(5)). Payments made in anticipation must be calculated: (1) so that, so far as the board is reasonably able to achieve, the extent to which liabilities specified in the Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 6(1) (see note 6 supra) are satisfied after the board has made a payment under the Pensions Act 1995 s 83 (see PARA 644 ante) is undiminished; (2) so as to counter-balance any payments in anticipation made previously which were too great or too small; (3) so as not to exceed the amount required to enable the trustees of the scheme, prior to the settlement date, to meet such liabilities as are so specified; and (4) so as not to exceed 90% of the shortfall at the application date: Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 6(5).

9 For these purposes, the prescribed circumstances in which any payment made under the Pensions Act 1995 s 84(1) may not be recovered, in whole or in part, are where such recovery would cause pensions in payment to be reduced: Occupational Pension Schemes (Pensions Compensation Provisions) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/665, reg 6(6).

Pensions Act 1995 ss 78-86, 96-114, Sch 2 repealed: Pensions Act 2004 Sch 13 Pt 1.

The Pensions Compensation Board is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 302(1). An order under the Pensions Act 2004 s 322 appointing the day on which s 302(1) is to come into force (ie 1 September 2005: see SI 2005/1720) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which the Pensions Compensation Board is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become property, rights and liabilities of the Board of the Pension Protection Fund (see PARA 659A), and (2) for any function of the Pensions Compensation Board falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund: Pensions Act 2004 s 302(2). Information obtained by the Board by virtue of the Pensions Act 2004 s 302(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 197-201 and 203 (disclosure of information: see PARAS 659E.7, 659E.8) as having been obtained by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom the Pensions Compensation Board obtained it: s 302(3). Where tax information disclosed to the Pensions Compensation Board is obtained by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund by virtue of s 302(2), s 302(3) does not apply, and s 202(3) and (4) (see PARA 659E.7) apply as if that information had been disclosed to the Board of the Pension Protection Fund by virtue of s 202(2): s 302(4). For this purpose 'tax information' has the same meaning as in s 202: s 302(4). Where the Pensions Compensation Board's disclosure under the Pensions Act 1995 s 114(3) (see PARA 659) of information to which the Pensions Act 2004 s 302(3) applies was subject to any express restriction, the Board of the Pension Protection Fund's powers of disclosure under ss 198-201 and 203, in relation to that information, are subject to the same restriction: s 302(5).

649. Applications for review.

An application<sup>1</sup> must be made in writing, signed by the applicant and must state:

- 1501 (1) the name and address of the applicant and the nature of his connection with the scheme, if any;
- 1502 (2) the name and address of the applicant's representative<sup>2</sup>, if any, and whether the Pensions Compensation Board should send replies or notices concerning the application to that representative rather than to the applicant;
- 1503 (3) the grounds upon which a review of the determination is sought;
- 1504 (4) the particulars of the determination in respect of which a review is sought;
- 1505 (5) whether the applicant wishes to be heard on the application<sup>3</sup>.

The applicant must submit with the application, or within 28 days<sup>4</sup> thereafter, any documents upon which he wishes to rely in support of his application for review<sup>5</sup>.

The board must, within 14 days of receipt of an application, send to the applicant a written notice acknowledging receipt of the application and setting out the steps to be taken by the board in determining the application<sup>6</sup>.

The applicant may, at any time before receiving notice of the date of the review and after receiving notice of that date, with the leave of the board amend the grounds upon which a review of the determination is sought and submit any documents upon which he wishes to rely in support of those grounds as amended<sup>7</sup>.

The applicant may withdraw an application at any time by sending or delivering to the office of the board a written notice, signed by the applicant, stating that the application is withdrawn<sup>8</sup>. Where an applicant dies or is unable to continue with an application, the board may appoint as a successor to the applicant a person appearing to the board to be interested, if that person consents in writing, and the application for a review must be carried on by that person in substitution for the applicant<sup>9</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'application' means, in relation to a determination by the Pensions Compensation Board of a question which it is within its functions to determine, an application to the board for a review of that determination, and the word 'applicant' must be construed accordingly: Pensions Compensation Board (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/724, reg 10. Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/15. REGULATION OF PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/(2) THE PENSIONS COMPENSATION BOARD/653. Procedure on a review.

653. Procedure on a review.

The Pensions Compensation Board<sup>1</sup> may not authorise any of its members individually to review a determination to which these provisions apply<sup>2</sup>. The person who acts as chairman of the review board<sup>3</sup> must not be the member of the board who acted as chairman of the proceedings at which the determination the subject of the review was made<sup>4</sup>.

In the event that the votes of members of the review board are equally divided, the chairman of the review board has a second and casting vote<sup>5</sup>.

An oral hearing of a review must be in public except where the review board is satisfied that, by reason of the disclosure of intimate personal or financial circumstances, commercially sensitive information, or information communicated or obtained in confidence, it is just and reasonable for the hearing, or part of it, to be in private<sup>6</sup>. The review board may exclude from the hearing, or part of it, any person whose conduct has disrupted or is likely, in the opinion of the board, to disrupt the hearing<sup>7</sup>. The following persons are entitled to attend, and, in the case of persons listed in heads (1), (4), (5) and (7) below, to be heard at, an oral hearing of a review whether or not it takes place in public:

- 1511 (1) the applicant (if any);
- 1512 (2) a member of the board who is not appointed to the review board;
- 1513 (3) a member of the Council on Tribunals or of the Scottish Committee of that Council;
- 1514 (4) a witness called by the applicant (if any) or the board or by any other person entitled to be heard;
- 1515 (5) the trustees of the scheme to which the application relates;
- 1516 (6) the secretary to the board;
- 1517 (7) such other person as it appears to the board the justice of the case may require<sup>8</sup>.

If the applicant or any other person entitled to be heard fails to attend or be represented at an oral hearing of a review, the review board may, unless it is satisfied that there is sufficient reason for such absence, hear and determine the review in the absence of that person or may adjourn the hearing<sup>9</sup>.

The review board must conduct the oral hearing of the review in such manner as the review board considers most suitable to the clarification of the issues before it and generally as to the just handling of the proceedings, including where necessary adjournment of the proceedings<sup>10</sup>. The applicant (if any) and any other person entitled to be heard is entitled to give evidence, to call witnesses, to question any witnesses and to address the review board both on evidence and generally on the subject matter of the hearing<sup>11</sup>. The review board may receive evidence of any fact which appears to the board to be relevant, even if such evidence would be inadmissible in proceedings before a court of law, but must not refuse to admit any evidence which is admissible at law and is relevant<sup>12</sup>.

The review board may, if it is satisfied that it is just and reasonable to do so, permit the applicant to rely on grounds for the review which were not stated in the application, whether or not amended<sup>13</sup>.

Any irregularity resulting from failure to comply with any of these provisions does not of itself render the proceedings void<sup>14</sup>.

656. Modification of compensation provisions in relation to mixed benefit, multi-employer and partially approved schemes.

Where some, but not all, of the benefits that may be provided under a pension scheme<sup>1</sup> are money purchase benefits<sup>2</sup> and the assets out of which money purchase benefits are provided are distinct from the assets out of which other benefits are provided, and cannot be used for the purposes of providing any other benefits, then the compensation provisions and the relevant regulations<sup>3</sup> apply as if the assets out of which money purchase benefits are provided, and the proportion of the liabilities which is attributable to the provision of money purchase benefits, were the assets and liabilities of a separate scheme<sup>4</sup>. Where, however, the assets out of which money purchase benefits are provided are not distinct from the assets out of which other benefits are provided, or are so distinct but can be used for the purposes of providing other benefits, then those provisions apply as if the proportion of the liabilities which, in the opinion of the Pensions Compensation Board<sup>5</sup>, is attributable to the provision of money purchase benefits, and a like proportion of the assets, were the liabilities and assets of a separate scheme<sup>6</sup>.

Where a scheme in relation to which there is more than one employer is divided into two or more sections and the provisions of the scheme are such that:

- 1518 (1) different sections of the scheme apply to different employers or groups of employers (whether or not more than one section applies to any particular employer or groups including any particular employer);
- 1519 (2) contributions payable to the scheme by an employer, or by a member in employment under that employer, are allocated to that employer's section (or, if more than one section applies to the employer, the section which is appropriate in respect of the employment in question); and
- 1520 (3) a specified part or proportion of the assets of the scheme is attributable to each section and cannot be used for the purposes of any other section;

or where:

- 1521 (a) a scheme which has been such a scheme as is mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above is divided into two or more sections some or all of which apply only to members who are not in pensionable service under the section;
- 1522 (b) the provisions of the scheme have not been amended so as to prevent the conditions mentioned in those heads being satisfied in relation to two or more sections; but
- 1523 (c) those conditions have ceased to be satisfied in relation to one or more sections by reason only of there being no members in pensionable service under the section and no contributions which are to be allocated to it, the compensation provisions apply<sup>7</sup> as if each section of the scheme were a separate scheme<sup>8</sup>.

Where a scheme is not an approved scheme<sup>9</sup> but contains a section which is treated<sup>10</sup> by the Board of Inland Revenue as an approved scheme, the compensation provisions apply to that section as if it were a separate scheme<sup>11</sup>.

Provision of information to the Pensions Compensation Board.

657. Provision of information to the Pensions Compensation Board.

In the case of any trust scheme<sup>1</sup>:

- 1524 (1) a trustee, professional adviser<sup>2</sup> or employer<sup>3</sup>; and
- 1525 (2) any other person appearing to the Pensions Compensation Board<sup>4</sup> to be a person who holds, or is likely to hold, information relevant to the discharge of the board's functions<sup>5</sup>, must, if required to do so by the board by notice in writing, produce any document<sup>6</sup> relevant to the discharge of those functions<sup>7</sup>.

To comply with this provision the document must be produced in such a manner, at such a place and within such a period as may be specified in the notice<sup>8</sup>.

Any person who knowingly or recklessly provides the board with information which is false or misleading in a material particular is guilty of an offence if the information is provided in circumstances in which the person providing the information intends, or could reasonably be expected to know, that it would be used by the board for the purpose of discharging its functions under the Pensions Act 1995 or any corresponding enactment in force in Northern Ireland<sup>12</sup>. #### 4. Investment of funds

The Board may invest for the purposes of the prudent management of its financial affairs<sup>1</sup>. For these purposes<sup>2</sup> there must be at least two fund managers<sup>3</sup>.

1 Pensions Act 2004 s 113(1). When exercising the power conferred by s 113(1) in relation to the Pension Protection Fund, the Board must have regard to (1) the interests of persons who are or may become entitled to compensation under the pension compensation provisions (see s 162 and PARA 659C.26) and (2) the effect of the exercise of the power on the rate of any levy which may be imposed under s 174 (see PARA 659C.37) or 175 (see PARA 659C.38) and the interests which persons have in the rate of any such levy: s 113(2). #### 5. Investment principles

The Board must secure (1) that a statement of investment principles<sup>1</sup> is prepared and maintained, and (2) that the statement is reviewed at such intervals, and on such occasions, as may be prescribed and, if necessary, revised<sup>2</sup>. The Board may not borrow if the effect would be (a) to take the aggregate amount outstanding in respect of the principal of sums borrowed by it over its borrowing limit<sup>3</sup>, or (b) to increase the amount by which the aggregate amount so outstanding exceeds that limit<sup>4</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 115 'deposit-taker' means (1) a person who has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt 4 to accept deposits, or (2) an EEA firm of the kind mentioned in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Sch 3 para 5(b) which has permission under Sch 3 para 15 (as a result of qualifying for authorisation under Sch 3 para 12) to accept deposits: Pensions Act 2004 s 115(3). ### 3. Board's duties

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where in relation to an occupational pension scheme (1) the Board determines<sup>2</sup> not to approve a notice issued<sup>3</sup> by an insolvency practitioner or former insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer, or (2) an insolvency practitioner or former insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer fails to issue a notice<sup>4</sup> and the Board is satisfied that such a notice ought to have been issued<sup>5</sup>. The obligations on the insolvency practitioner or former insolvency practitioner<sup>6</sup> are to be treated as obligations imposed on the Board and the Board must accordingly issue a notice<sup>7</sup>. Where a notice is issued<sup>8</sup> by the Board<sup>9</sup>, it has effect as if it were a notice issued<sup>10</sup> by an insolvency practitioner or, as the case may be, former insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer<sup>11</sup>.

For the purposes of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>12</sup>, a notice<sup>13</sup> is not binding until (a) the Board issues a determination notice<sup>14</sup> approving the notice, (b) the period within which the issue of the determination notice may be reviewed by virtue of Chapter 6 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>15</sup> has expired, and (c) if the issue of the determination notice is so reviewed (i) the review and any reconsideration, (ii) any reference to the PPF Ombudsman<sup>16</sup> in respect of the issue of the notice, and (iii) any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of and the determination notice has not been revoked, varied or substituted<sup>17</sup>. Where a notice becomes binding, the Board must as soon as reasonably practicable give a notice to that effect together with a copy of the binding notice to (A) the Regulator, (B) the trustees or managers of the scheme, (C) the insolvency practitioner or former insolvency practitioner who issued the notice<sup>18</sup> or, where that notice was issued by the Board<sup>19</sup>, the insolvency practitioner or former insolvency practitioner<sup>20</sup>, (D) any insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer (who does not fall within head (C)), and (E) if there is no insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer, the employer<sup>21</sup>.

598-676 Regulation of Private Pension Provision

637-659 The Pensions Compensation Board

Pensions Act 1995 ss 78-86, 96-114, Sch 2 repealed: Pensions Act 2004 Sch 13 Pt 1.

The Pensions Compensation Board is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 302(1). An order under the Pensions Act 2004 s 322 appointing the day on which s 302(1) is to come into force (ie 1 September 2005: see SI 2005/1720) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which the Pensions Compensation Board is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become property, rights and liabilities of the Board of the Pension Protection Fund (see PARA 659A), and (2) for any function of the Pensions Compensation Board falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund: Pensions Act 2004 s 302(2). Information obtained by the Board by virtue of the Pensions Act 2004 s 302(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 197-201 and 203 (disclosure of information: see PARAS 659E.7, 659E.8) as having been obtained by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom the Pensions Compensation Board obtained it: s 302(3). Where tax information disclosed to the Pensions Compensation Board is obtained by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund by virtue of s 302(2), s 302(3) does not apply, and s 202(3) and (4) (see PARA 659E.7) apply as if that information had been disclosed to the Board of the Pension Protection Fund by virtue of s 202(2): s 302(4). For this purpose 'tax information' has the same meaning as in s 202: s 302(4). Where the Pensions Compensation Board's disclosure under the Pensions Act 1995 s 114(3) (see PARA 659) of information to which the Pensions Act 2004 s 302(3) applies was subject to any express restriction, the Board of the Pension Protection Fund's powers of disclosure under ss 198-201 and 203, in relation to that information, are subject to the same restriction: s 302(5).

1. Eligible schemes

10 Ibid s 126(3). See SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15.

Regulations may also provide that a scheme which would be an eligible scheme in the absence of the Pensions Act 2004 s 126(5) is not an eligible scheme in such circumstances as may be prescribed: s 126(5). See SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15.

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where a qualifying insolvency event<sup>2</sup> has occurred in relation to the employer<sup>3</sup> in relation to an eligible scheme<sup>4</sup>. The Board<sup>5</sup> must assume responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>6</sup> if (1) the value of the assets of the scheme<sup>7</sup> at the relevant time<sup>8</sup> was less than the amount of the protected liabilities at that time<sup>9</sup>, (2) after the relevant time a scheme failure notice is issued<sup>10</sup> in relation to the scheme and that notice becomes binding, and (3) a withdrawal event has not occurred in relation to the scheme in respect of a withdrawal notice which has been issued during the period (a) beginning with the occurrence of the qualifying insolvency event, and (b) ending immediately before the issuing of the scheme failure notice<sup>11</sup>, and the occurrence of such a

The Board must assume responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>6</sup> if (a) the value of the assets of the scheme<sup>7</sup> at the relevant time<sup>8</sup> was less than the amount of the protected liabilities at that time<sup>9</sup>, (b) after the relevant time the Board issues a scheme failure notice<sup>10</sup> in relation to the scheme and that notice becomes binding, and (c) a withdrawal event has not occurred in relation to the scheme in respect of a withdrawal notice which has been issued during the period (i) beginning with the making of the section 129 application or, as the case may be, the receipt of the section 129 notification, and (ii) ending immediately before the issuing of the scheme failure notice<sup>11</sup>, and the occurrence of such a withdrawal event in respect of a withdrawal notice issued during that period is not a possibility<sup>12</sup>. Except in prescribed circumstances and subject to prescribed conditions, no further contributions (other than those due to be paid before the beginning of the assessment period) may be paid towards the scheme during the assessment period<sup>4</sup>. No benefits may accrue under the scheme rules to, or in respect of, members of the scheme during the assessment period<sup>5</sup>. Where a person is entitled to a pension credit<sup>6</sup> derived from another person's shareable rights<sup>7</sup> under the scheme, nothing in these provisions<sup>8</sup> prevents the trustees or managers of the scheme discharging their liability in respect of the credit under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Pt 4 Ch 1 (sharing of rights under pension arrangements) by conferring appropriate rights<sup>9</sup> under the scheme on that person<sup>10</sup>. Any action taken in contravention<sup>11</sup> of the above provisions is void<sup>12</sup>.

Any obligation to pay contributions towards the scheme during the assessment period (including any obligation under the Pensions Act 1995 s 49(8) (see PARA 798) to pay amounts deducted corresponding to such contributions) is to be read subject to the Pensions Act 2004 s 133(3) and s 150 (obligation to pay contributions when assessment period ends: see PARA 659C.20): s 133(4).

5 Ibid s 133(5). Section 133(5) does not prevent any increase, in a benefit, which would otherwise accrue in accordance with the scheme or any enactment: s 133(6). Section 133(5) does not prevent the accrual of money purchase benefits to the extent that they are derived from income or capital gains arising from the investment of payments which are made by, or in respect of, a member of the scheme: s 133(7).

9. Directions

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where there is an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme<sup>2</sup>. With a view to ensuring that the scheme's protected liabilities do not exceed its assets or, if they do exceed its assets, that the excess is kept to a minimum, the Board may give a relevant person in relation to the scheme directions regarding the exercise during that period of his powers in respect of (1) the investment of the scheme's assets, (2) the incurring of expenditure, (3) the instigation or conduct of legal proceedings, and (4) such other matters as may be prescribed<sup>3</sup>. The Board may revoke or vary any direction under these provisions<sup>4</sup>. Where a direction under these provisions given to the trustees or managers of a scheme is not complied with, the civil penalty provisions in the Pensions Act 1995<sup>5</sup> apply to any such trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance with the direction<sup>6</sup>.

2    Ibid s 134(1).

3    Ibid s 134(2). In s 134(2) (1) 'relevant person' in relation to a scheme means (a) the trustees or managers of the scheme, (b) the employer in relation to the scheme, or (c) such other persons as may be prescribed, and (2) the reference to the assets of the scheme is a reference to those assets excluding any assets representing the value of any rights in respect of money purchase benefits under the scheme rules: s 134(3). See Pension Protection Fund (Entry Rules) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15. As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12).

10. Restrictions on winding up, discharge of liabilities etc

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where there is an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme<sup>2</sup>. The winding up of the scheme must not begin during the assessment period<sup>3</sup>. During the assessment period, except in prescribed circumstances and subject to prescribed conditions (1) no transfers of, or transfer payments in respect of, any member's rights under the scheme rules are to be made from the scheme, and (2) no other steps may be taken to discharge any liability of the scheme to or in respect of a member of the scheme in respect of (a) pensions or other benefits, or (b) such other liabilities as may be prescribed<sup>4</sup>. Any action taken in contravention of these provisions<sup>5</sup> is void, except to the extent that the Board validates the action<sup>6</sup>. The Regulator may not make a freezing order<sup>7</sup> in relation to the scheme during the assessment period<sup>8</sup>.

1    Ie the Pensions Act 2004 s 135.

2    Ibid s 135(1).

3    Ibid s 135(2). Section 135(2) is subject to s 135(3): s 135(2). Section 135(2) does not apply to the winding up of the scheme in pursuance of an order by the Regulator under the Pensions Act 1995 s 11(3A) (Regulator's powers to wind up occupational pension schemes to protect Pension Protection Fund: see PARA 612) directing the scheme to be wound up (and the Pensions Act 2004 s 219 (see PARA 659G.1) makes provision for the backdating of the winding up): s 135(3).

4    Ibid s 135(4). See Pension Protection Fund (Hybrid Schemes) (Modification) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/449, Pension Protection Fund (Entry Rules) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/590 (see PARA 636A.15); Pension Protection

Fund (Contributions Equivalent Premium) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/834. As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). The Pensions Act 2004 s 135(4) (1) is subject to s 138 (see PARA 659C.12), and (2) applies whether or not the scheme was being wound up immediately before the assessment period or began winding up by virtue of s 135(3): s 135(5).

Section 135(7) applies where, on the commencement of the assessment period (a) a member's pensionable service terminates, and (b) he becomes a person to whom the Pension Schemes Act 1993 Pt 4 Ch 5 (early leavers: cash transfer sums and contribution refunds) applies: Pensions Act 2004 s 135(6). Section 150(5) (retrospective accrual of benefits in certain circumstances: see PARA 659C.20) is to be disregarded for the purposes of determining whether a member falls within head (a) or (b): s 135(6). Where s 135(7) applies, during the assessment period (i) no right or power conferred by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 Pt 4 Ch 5 may be exercised, and (ii) no duty imposed by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 Pt 4 Ch 5 may be discharged: Pensions Act 2004 s 135(7). Where a person is entitled to a pension credit derived from another person's shareable rights (within the meaning of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Pt 4 Ch 1 (sharing of rights under pension arrangements)) under the scheme, nothing in the Pensions Act 2004 s 135(4) prevents the trustees or managers of the scheme discharging their liability in respect of the credit in accordance with the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Pt 4 Ch 1: Pensions Act 2004 s 135(8).

5    Ibid s 135.

6    Ibid s 135(9). As to the power to validate contraventions of s 135 see s 136. Disregarding s 135(9), where there is a contravention of s 135, the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (civil penalties: see PARA 611) applies to any trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance with the Pensions Act 2004 s 135: s 135(10).

7    See ibid s 23 and PARA 636A.19.

11. Board to act as creditor of the employer

The following provision<sup>1</sup> applies where there is an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme<sup>2</sup>. During the assessment period, the rights and powers of the trustees or managers of the scheme in relation to any debt (including any contingent debt) due to them by the employer<sup>3</sup> are exercisable by the Board to the exclusion of the trustees or managers<sup>4</sup>.

1    Ibid the Pensions Act 2004 s 137(2).

3    Whether by virtue of the Pensions Act 1995 s 75 (see PARA 850) or otherwise.

4    Ibid s 137(2). Where, by virtue of s 137(2), any amount is paid to the Board in respect of such a debt, the Board must pay that amount to the trustees or managers of the scheme: s 137(3).

12. Payment of scheme benefits

Where there is an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme<sup>1</sup> the benefits payable to or in respect of any member under the scheme rules during the assessment period must be reduced to the extent necessary to ensure that they do not exceed the compensation which would be payable to or in respect of the member in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>2</sup> if (1) the Board assumed responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004, and (2) the assessment date<sup>3</sup> were the date on which the assessment period began<sup>4</sup>.

Further provision relating to scheme benefits is made<sup>5</sup>.

2    Ibid ss 126-181.

3 Referred to in ibid Sch 7 (see PARA 659C.26).

4 Ibid s 138(2). But where, on the commencement of the assessment period (1) a member's pensionable service terminates, and (2) he becomes a person to whom the Pension Schemes Act 1993 Pt 4 Ch 5 (early leavers: cash transfer sums and contribution refunds) applies, no benefits are payable to or in respect of him under the scheme during the assessment period: s 138(3). Section 150(5) (retrospective accrual of benefits in certain circumstances: see PARA 659C.20) is to be disregarded for the purposes of determining whether a member falls within head (1) or (2): s 138(4). Nothing in s 138(3) prevents the payment of benefits attributable (directly or indirectly) to a pension credit, during the assessment period, in accordance with s 138(2): s 138(5). Where at any time during the assessment period the scheme is being wound up, subject to any reduction required under s 138(2) and to s 138(3), the benefits payable to or in respect of any member under the scheme rules during that period are the benefits that would have been so payable in the absence of the winding up of the scheme: s 138(6). Section 138(2), (3) and (6) are subject to s 150(1)-(3) and 154(13) (which provide for the adjustment of amounts paid during an assessment period when that period ends other than as a result of the Board assuming responsibility for the scheme: see PARAS 659C.20, 659C.23): s 138(7). For the purposes of s 138(2) and (3) the trustees or managers of the scheme may take such steps as they consider appropriate (including steps adjusting future payments under the scheme rules) to recover any overpayment or pay any shortfall: s 138(8). The Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (civil penalties: see PARA 611) applies to a trustee or manager of a scheme who fails to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance with the Pensions Act 2004 s 138(2) and (3): s 138(9).

Regulations may provide that, where there is an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme (1) in such circumstances as may be prescribed s 138(2) does not operate to require the reduction of benefits payable to or in respect of any member; (2) the commencement of a member's pension or payment of a member's lump sum or other benefits is, in such circumstances and on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed, to be postponed for the whole or any part of the assessment period for which he continues in employment after attaining normal pension age: s 138(10) (head (1) not yet in force). See Pension Protection Fund (Entry Rules) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15. As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 138(10) (a) 'normal pension age', in relation to an eligible scheme and any pension or other benefit under it, means the age specified in the scheme rules as the earliest age at which the pension or other benefit becomes payable without actuarial adjustment (disregarding any scheme rule making special provision as to early payment on the grounds of ill health), and (b) where different ages are so specified in relation to different parts of a pension or other benefit (i) s 138(10) has effect as if those parts were separate pensions or, as the case may be, benefits, and (ii) in relation to a part of a pension or other benefit, the reference in s 138(10) to normal pension age is to be read as a reference to the age specified in the scheme rules as the earliest age at which that part becomes so payable: s 138(11). Regulations may provide that, in prescribed circumstances, where (A) a member of the scheme died before the commencement of the assessment period, and (B) during the assessment period, a person becomes entitled under the scheme rules to a benefit of a prescribed description in respect of the member, the benefit, or any part of it, is, for the purposes of s 138(2), to be treated as having become payable before the commencement of the assessment period: s 138(12). See SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15. Nothing in the Pensions Act 2004 s 138(2) or (3) applies to money purchase benefits: s 138(13).

5 See ibid s 139 (loans to pay scheme benefits). See further SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15.

13. III health pensions: general

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where there is an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme<sup>2</sup>. The Board may review a reviewable ill health pension<sup>3</sup> in respect of a member if (1) the member would be entitled to compensation<sup>4</sup> in respect of the pension if the Board assumed responsibility for the scheme<sup>5</sup>, (2) the member did not attain normal pension age in respect of the pension before the assessment date, and (3) the pension is attributable to the member's pensionable service<sup>6</sup>. An ill health pension in respect of a member is reviewable<sup>7</sup> if the member is entitled to the pension by reason of an award under the scheme rules ('the award') which was made (a) in the period of three years ending immediately before the assessment date, or (b) before the end of the prescribed period beginning with the assessment date, in response to an application made before that date<sup>8</sup>. Where (i) before the assessment date, an application was made under the scheme for the award of a pension before normal pension age by virtue of any provision of the scheme rules making special provision as to early payment of pension on grounds of ill health, and (ii) the trustees or managers of the scheme failed to decide the application before the end of the period mentioned in head (b) above, the civil penalty provisions in the Pensions Act 1995<sup>9</sup> apply to any trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure that the application was decided before the end of that period<sup>10</sup>. Where (A) the award was made in response to an application which was made on or after the assessment date, or was made before that date but not decided by the trustees or managers of the scheme before the end of the period mentioned in head (b) above, and (B) in the absence of this provision, the award would take effect before the assessment date, the award is, for the purposes of determining the compensation payable under Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004 in a case where the Board assumes responsibility for the scheme, to be treated as taking effect after the date on which the decision to make the award was made<sup>11</sup>. Regulations must prescribe the procedure to be followed in relation to the review of a pension under the above provisions<sup>12</sup> and any subsequent decision<sup>13</sup>.

1    Ie the Pensions Act 2004 s 140.

2    Ibid s 140(1).

3    For these purposes 'ill health pension', in relation to a scheme, means a pension which, immediately before the assessment date, is a pension to which a person is entitled under the admissible rules in circumstances where that entitlement arose before normal pension age by virtue of any provision of the admissible rules making special provision as to early payment of pension on grounds of ill health: ibid s 142(1). 'Assessment date' means the date on which the assessment period begins: s 142(1). 'Admissible rules' is to be construed in accordance with Sch 7 (see PARA 659C.26): s 142(1). 'Normal pension age', in relation to a scheme and any pension under it, means the age specified in the admissible rules as the earliest age at which the pension becomes payable without actuarial adjustment (disregarding any admissible rule making special provision as to early payment on the grounds of ill health) and Sch 7 para 34(2) and (3) apply in relation to s 142 as they apply in relation to Sch 7: s 142(1). Schedule 7 para 37(4) (references to 'ill health' to be construed in accordance with regulations) applies in relation to ss 140-142 as if, in that provision, the reference to Sch 7 included a reference to ss 140-142: s 142(3).

4    Under ibid Sch 7 para 3.

5    Disregarding ibid s 141 (see PARA 659C.14). In ss 140-142 references to the Board assuming responsibility for the scheme are to the Board assuming responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Pt 2 Ch 3 (ss 126-181, Schs 6, 7) at the time the assessment period in question comes to an end: s 142(4).

6    Ibid s 140(2). 'Pensionable service' is to be construed in accordance with Sch 7: s 142(1).

7    For the purposes of ibid s 140(2).

8    Ibid s 140(3). See Pension Protection Fund (Reviewable Ill Health Pensions) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/652 (amended by SI 2005/993). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12).

9    Ie the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (see PARA 611).

10   Pensions Act 2004 s 140(4). For the purposes of s 140(4) (1) the definition of 'normal pension age' in s 142(1), and (2) Sch 7 para 34(2) and (3) as it applies by virtue of that definition, have effect as if the references in those provisions to the admissible rules were references to the scheme rules: s 142(2).

12   Ie ibid s 140.

13   Under ibid s 141 (see PARA 659C.14): s 140(6). See SI 2005/652.

14.    Ill health pensions: effect of a review

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where, during an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme, the Board reviews an ill health pension<sup>2</sup>. Where specified conditions<sup>3</sup> are satisfied, the Board may determine that the compensation payable in respect of the pension, in a case where the Board assumes responsibility for the scheme, is to be determined in the prescribed manner on and after the relevant date<sup>4</sup>.

- 1    Ie the Pensions Act 2004 s 141.
- 2    By virtue of ibid s 140 (see PARA 659C.13): s 141(1).
- 3    Ie the conditions of ibid s 141(3).

The conditions are (1) that the annual rate of compensation which would be payable under Pt 2 (ss 107-220) in respect of the pension at the assessment date, if the Board assumed responsibility for the scheme, exceeds the notional reviewed rate of compensation in respect of the pension, (2) that the Board is satisfied (a) that the decision to make the award was made in ignorance of, or was based upon a mistake as to, a material fact relevant to the decision, (b) that, at the time that decision was made, the member knew or could reasonably have been expected to know of that fact and that it was relevant to the decision, and (c) that, had the trustees or managers known about, or not been mistaken as to, that fact, they could not reasonably have decided to make the award, and (3) that the Board is not satisfied that the criteria in the admissible rules governing entitlement to early payment of pension on grounds of ill health were satisfied in respect of the member at any time after that decision but before the assessment date: s 141(3). 'Notional reviewed rate of compensation', in respect of an ill health pension, means (i) the annual rate of compensation which would be payable in respect of the pension at the assessment date, if the Board assumed responsibility for the scheme and the compensation so payable at that date was determined in accordance with regulations under s 141(2), or (ii) if no such compensation would have been so payable at that date, nil: s 142(1).

4    Ibid s 141(2). See Pension Protection Fund (Reviewable Ill Health Pensions) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/652 (see PARA 659B.13). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 141(2) 'the relevant date' means the date during the assessment period on which a scheme valuation in relation to the scheme becomes binding: s 141(4). 'Scheme valuation', in relation to a scheme, means a valuation under s 143 (see PARA 659C.15) of the assets and protected liabilities of the scheme as at the time immediately before the assessment period begins: s 142(1).

The power to make a decision in respect of the pension under s 141(2) may only be exercised at a time which falls (1) during the assessment period but before the time the Board first approves a scheme valuation under s 144 (see PARA 659C.15) in relation to the scheme, and (2) within a reasonable period beginning with the assessment date or, where the decision to make the award was made at a later date, that date: s 141(5). Regulations made for the purposes of s 141(2) may, in particular, include provision applying any provision of Sch 7 (see PARA 659C.26) with such modifications as may be prescribed: s 141(6). See SI 2005/652. For the meaning of 'modifications' see PARA 636A.16.

15. Valuation of assets and liabilities

For the purposes of the following provisions<sup>1</sup>, regulations may prescribe how (1) the assets<sup>2</sup> and the protected liabilities of eligible schemes, and (2) their amount or value, are to be determined, calculated and verified<sup>3</sup>. Regulations<sup>4</sup> may provide, in particular, that when calculating the amount or value of assets or protected liabilities of an eligible scheme at the relevant time which consist of any of the following (a) a debt (including any contingent debt) due to the trustees or managers of the scheme from the employer<sup>5</sup>, (b) a debt due to the trustees or managers of the scheme by virtue of a contribution notice<sup>6</sup>, (c) an obligation arising under financial support for the scheme<sup>7</sup> put in place in accordance with a financial support direction<sup>8</sup>, or (d) an obligation imposed by a restoration order<sup>9</sup> in respect of a transaction involving assets of the scheme, account must be taken in the prescribed manner of prescribed events which occur during the pre-approval period<sup>10</sup>. The matters mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above are to be determined, calculated and verified in accordance with guidance issued by the Board<sup>11</sup>. In calculating the amount of any liabilities for the purposes of these provisions, a provision of the scheme rules which limits the amount of the scheme's liabilities by reference to the value of its assets is to be disregarded<sup>12</sup>.

Provision is made with respect to the approval of a valuation<sup>13</sup> and binding valuations<sup>14</sup>.

1    Ie for the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 143.

2    For the purposes of ibid s 143 references to 'assets' do not include assets representing the value of any rights in respect of money purchase benefits under the scheme rules: s 143(11)(d).

3 Ibid s 143(4). See Pension Protection Fund (Valuation) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/672 (amended by SI 2005/993, SI 2005/2113, SI 2006/580, SI 2007/782, SI 2009/451). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). The Pensions Act 2004 s 143 applies in a case within s 127(1) (see PARA 659C.2) or 128(1) (see PARAS 659C.3): s 143(1). For the purposes of determining whether the condition in s 127(2)(a) or 128(2)(a) is satisfied, the Board must, as soon as reasonably practicable, obtain an actuarial valuation of the scheme as at the relevant time: s 143(2). For the purposes of s 143 'actuarial valuation', in relation to the scheme, means a written valuation of the assets and protected liabilities of the scheme which (1) is in the prescribed form and contains the prescribed information, and (2) is prepared and signed by (a) a person with prescribed qualifications or experience, or (b) a person approved by the Secretary of State: s 143(11)(a). See SI 2005/672 above. For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 143 'the relevant time' (i) in a case within s 127(1), has the meaning given in s 127(4)(b), and (ii) in a case within s 128(1), has the meaning given in s 128(3)(b): s 143(11)(c). For the purposes of determining whether the condition in s 127(2)(a) or 128(2)(a) is satisfied regulations may provide that any of the following are to be regarded as assets or protected liabilities of the scheme at the relevant time if prescribed requirements are met (A) a debt due to the trustees or managers of the scheme by virtue of a contribution notice issued under s 38, 47 or 55 (see PARAS 636A.20, 636A.23, 636A.24) during the pre-approval period; (B) an obligation arising under financial support for the scheme (within the meaning of s 45: see PARA 636A.21) put in place during the pre-approval period in accordance with a financial support direction issued under s 43 (see PARA 636A.21); (C) an obligation imposed by a restoration order made under s 52 (see PARA 636A.24) during the pre-approval period in respect of a transaction involving assets of the scheme: s 143(3). See SI 2005/672 above. For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 143 'the pre-approval period', in relation to the scheme, means the period which begins immediately after the relevant time, and ends immediately before the time the Board first approves a valuation of the scheme under s 144 after the relevant time: s 143(11)(b).

The duty imposed by s 143(2) ceases to apply if and when the Board ceases to be involved with the scheme: s 143(8). Nothing in s 143(2) requires the actuarial valuation to be obtained during any period when the Board considers that an event may occur which, by virtue of regulations under s 143(3) or (4) or by virtue of s 143(5B), may affect the value of the assets or the amount of the protected liabilities of the scheme for the purposes of the valuation: s 143(9) (amended by the Occupational Pension Schemes (Modification of Pension Protection Provisions) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/705). In a case where there are one or more reviewable ill health pensions (within the meaning of the Pensions Act 2004 s 140: see PARA 659C.13), nothing in s 143(2) requires the actuarial valuation to be obtained during the period mentioned in s 141(5)(b) (period during which Board may exercise its power to make a decision following a review: see PARA 659C.14) relating to any such pension: s 143(10).

The Pensions Act 2004 s 143(5B) applies if (1) during the pre-approval period any liability to provide pensions or other benefits to or in respect of any member or members under the scheme is discharged by virtue of regulations under s 135(4) (see PARA 659C.10) or the Board validating any action mentioned in s 135(9), and (2) at the relevant time the protected liabilities of the scheme include any cost within s 131(1)(a) (see PARA 659C.6) relating to compensation in respect of those pensions or other benefits: s 143(5A) (s 143 (5A), (5B) added by SI 2005/705). If the Pensions Act 2004 s 143 (5B) applies, for the purposes mentioned in s 143(2) (a) in determining that cost the effect of the discharge on the compensation payable in respect of those pensions or other benefits under Sch 7 para 23A (see PARA 659C.26) must be taken into account, (b) in a case where assets of the scheme at the relevant time were transferred from the scheme during the pre-approval period in consideration for the discharge, those assets are not to be regarded as assets of the scheme at the relevant time, and (c) in a case where assets that were not assets of the scheme at that time ('later-acquired assets') were so transferred, the value of the assets of the scheme at that time is to be reduced by the value of the later-acquired assets at the time of the discharge: s 143(5B).

16. Refusal to assume responsibility: schemes which become eligible schemes

Regulations may provide that where the Board is satisfied that an eligible scheme was not such a scheme throughout such period as may be prescribed, the Board must refuse to assume responsibility for the scheme under Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup>. Where<sup>2</sup> the Board is required to refuse to assume responsibility for a scheme, it (1) must issue a notice to that effect (a 'withdrawal notice'), and (2) give a copy of that notice to (a) the Regulator, (b) the trustees or managers of the scheme, and (c) any insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer or, if there is no such insolvency practitioner, the employer<sup>3</sup>. For the purposes of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>4</sup> a withdrawal notice issued by virtue of these provisions is not binding until (i) the period within which the issue of the notice may be reviewed by virtue of Chapter 6 of Part 2<sup>5</sup> has expired, and (ii) if the issue of the notice is so reviewed (A) the review and any reconsideration, (B) any reference to the PPF Ombudsman in respect of the issue of the notice, and (C) any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of and the notice has not been revoked, varied or substituted<sup>6</sup>. Where a withdrawal notice issued by virtue of these provisions becomes binding, the Board must as soon as reasonably practicable give a notice to that effect together with a copy of the binding notice to the Regulator, the trustees or managers of the scheme, and any insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer or, if there is no such insolvency practitioner, the employer<sup>7</sup>. Notices under the above provisions must be in the prescribed form and contain such information as may be prescribed<sup>8</sup>.

17. Refusal to assume responsibility: new schemes created to replace existing schemes

The Board must refuse to assume responsibility for a scheme ('the new scheme') under Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup> where it is satisfied that (1) the new scheme was established during such period as may be prescribed, (2) the employer in relation to the new scheme was, at the date of establishment of that scheme, also the employer in relation to a scheme established before the new scheme (the 'old scheme'), (3) a transfer or transfers of, or a transfer payment or transfer payments in respect of, any rights of members under the old scheme has or have been made to the new scheme, and (4) the main purpose or one of the main purposes of establishing the new scheme and making the transfer or transfers, or transfer payment or transfer payments, was to enable those members to receive compensation under the pension compensation provisions in respect of their rights under the new scheme in circumstances where, in the absence of the transfer or transfers, regulations<sup>2</sup> would have operated to prevent such payments in respect of their rights under the old scheme<sup>3</sup>. Where<sup>4</sup> the Board is required to refuse to assume responsibility for a scheme, it (a) must issue a notice to that effect (a 'withdrawal notice'), and (b) give a copy of that notice to (i) the Regulator, (ii) the trustees or managers of the scheme, and (iii) any insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer or, if there is no such insolvency practitioner, the employer<sup>5</sup>. For the purposes of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>6</sup> a withdrawal notice issued under these provisions is not binding until (A) the period within which the issue of the notice may be reviewed by virtue of Chapter 6 of Part 2<sup>7</sup> has expired, and (B) if the issue of the notice is so reviewed the review and any reconsideration, any reference to the PPF Ombudsman in respect of the issue of the notice, and any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of and the notice has not been revoked, varied or substituted<sup>8</sup>. Where a withdrawal notice issued under these provisions becomes binding, the Board must as soon as reasonably practicable give a notice to that effect together with a copy of the binding notice to the Regulator, the trustees or managers of the scheme, and any insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer or, if there is no such insolvency practitioner, the employer<sup>9</sup>. Notices under the above provisions must be in the prescribed form and contain such information as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>.

18.   Refusal to assume responsibility: withdrawal following issue of notice

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where (1) a notice<sup>2</sup> is issued in relation to an eligible scheme and becomes binding, and (2) a withdrawal event has not occurred in relation to the scheme in respect of a withdrawal notice which has been issued during the period (a) beginning with the occurrence of the last insolvency event in relation to the employer, and (b) ending immediately before the notice<sup>3</sup> becomes binding, and the occurrence of such a withdrawal event in respect of a withdrawal notice issued during that period is not a possibility<sup>4</sup>. The Board must determine whether any insolvency event (i) has occurred in relation to the employer since the issue of the notice<sup>5</sup>, or (ii) is likely to so occur before the end of the period of six months beginning with the date on which these provisions<sup>6</sup> apply<sup>7</sup>. If the Board determines<sup>8</sup> that no insolvency event has occurred or is likely to occur<sup>9</sup> it must issue a notice to that effect (a 'withdrawal notice')<sup>10</sup>. Where the Board is required to issue a withdrawal notice, it must give a copy of the notice to the Regulator, the trustees or managers of the scheme, and the employer<sup>11</sup>. For the purposes of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>12</sup>, a withdrawal notice issued under these provisions is not binding until (A) the period within which the issue of the notice may be reviewed by virtue of Chapter 6 of Part 2<sup>13</sup> has expired, and (B) if the issue of the notice is so reviewed the review and any reconsideration, any reference to the PPF Ombudsman in respect of the issue of the notice, and any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of and the notice has not been revoked, varied or substituted<sup>14</sup>. Where a withdrawal notice issued under these provisions becomes binding, the Board must as soon as reasonably practicable give a notice to that effect together with a copy of the binding notice to the Regulator, the trustees or managers of the scheme, and the employer<sup>15</sup>. Notices under these provisions must be in the prescribed form and contain such information as may be prescribed<sup>16</sup>.

19.    Circumstances in which Board ceases to be involved with an eligible scheme

Where an assessment period begins in relation to an eligible scheme, the Board ceases to be involved with the scheme, for the purposes of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup>, on the occurrence of the first withdrawal event<sup>2</sup> after the beginning of that period<sup>3</sup>. For the purposes of Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004 (1) the occurrence of a withdrawal event in relation to a scheme in respect of a withdrawal notice issued during a particular period ('the specified period') is a possibility until each of the following are no longer reviewable (a) any withdrawal notice which has been issued in relation to the scheme during the specified period, (b) any failure to issue such a withdrawal notice during the specified period, (c) any notice which has been issued by the Board under Chapter 2 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>4</sup> or Chapter 3 of Part 2 which is relevant to the issue of a withdrawal notice in relation to the scheme during the specified period or to such a withdrawal notice which has been issued during that period becoming binding, (d) any failure to issue such a notice as is mentioned in head (c) above, and (2) the issue of, or failure to issue, a notice is to be regarded as reviewable (i) during the period within which it may be reviewed by virtue of Chapter 6 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>5</sup>, and (ii) if the matter is so reviewed, until (A) the review and any reconsideration, (b) any reference to the PPF Ombudsman in respect of the matter, and (c) any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of<sup>6</sup>.

1 le the Pensions Act 2004 ss 107-220.

2 For this purpose the following are withdrawal events in relation to a scheme (1) a withdrawal notice issued under ibid s 122(2)(b) (scheme rescue has occurred: see PARA 659B.2) becoming binding; (2) a withdrawal notice issued under s 130(3) (scheme rescue has occurred: see PARA 659C.5) becoming binding; (c) a withdrawal notice issued under or by virtue of s 146 or 147 (refusal to assume responsibility: see PARAS 659C.16, 659C.17) becoming binding; (4) a withdrawal notice issued under s 148 (no insolvency event has occurred or is likely to occur: see PARA 659C.18) becoming binding; and references in Pt 2 Ch 3 (ss 126-181) to a 'withdrawal event' are to be construed accordingly: s 149(2). See further NOTE 3.

3 Ibid s 149(1).

Section 149(4) applies where a withdrawal notice mentioned in s 149(2) is issued in relation to a scheme and becomes binding and (1) an insolvency event in relation to the employer occurs during the interim period and, if s 149(4) did not apply, the event would not be a qualifying insolvency event within the meaning given by s 127(3) (see PARA 659C.2) solely because the condition in s 127(3)(b)(ii) would not be satisfied, or (2) an application under s 129(1) (see PARA 659C.4) is made, or a notification under s 129(5)(a) is given, in relation to the scheme during the interim period and, if s 149(4) did not apply, the application or notification would be disregarded for the purposes of (a) s 128(1) (see PARA 659C.3) by virtue of s 128(4), and (b) s 132(4) (see PARA 659C.7) by virtue of s 132(5): s 149(3). For the purposes of s 149(3), the 'interim period' in relation to a scheme means the period beginning with the issuing of the withdrawal notice in relation to the scheme and ending with that notice becoming binding: s 149(5). In such a case, the withdrawal notice is to be treated for the purposes of s 149(1) and (2), as if the time when it became binding was the time immediately before (i) in a case falling within head (1), the occurrence of the insolvency event, and (ii) in a case falling within head (2), the making of the application under s 129(1) or, as the case may be, the giving of the notification under s 129(5)(a): s 149(4).

4 le ibid ss 120-125 (see PARA 659B).

5 le ibid ss 206-218 (see PARA 659F).

6 Ibid s 149(6).

20. Consequences of the Board ceasing to be involved with a scheme

Where (1) an assessment period comes to an end by virtue of the Board ceasing to be involved with an eligible scheme, and (2) during the assessment period any amount of any benefit payable to a member, or to a person in respect of a member, under the scheme rules was not paid<sup>1</sup>, that amount falls due to the member, or as the case may be, person at the end of that period<sup>2</sup>. Where (a) an assessment period comes to an end by virtue of the Board ceasing to be involved with an eligible scheme, and (b) during the assessment period the amount of benefit paid to a member, or to a person in respect of a member, under the scheme rules exceeded the amount that would have been payable<sup>3</sup>, the trustees or managers of the scheme must, at the end of that period, take such steps as they consider appropriate (including steps to adjust future payments under the scheme rules) to recover an amount equal to the excess from the person to whom it was paid<sup>4</sup>.

1 By reason of the Pensions Act 2004 s 138 (requirement to pay benefits in accordance with the pension compensation provisions: see PARA 659C.12).

2 Ibid s 150(1). Where the winding up of the scheme began before the end of the assessment period (whether by virtue of s 219 (backdating the winding up of eligible schemes: see PARA 659G.1) or otherwise), the reference in head (2) in the text to the amount of any benefit payable to a member, or to a person in respect of a member, under the scheme rules is a reference to the amount so payable taking account of any reduction required by virtue of the Pensions Act 1995 ss 73-73B (provisions relating to the winding up of certain schemes: see PARA 845A): Pensions Act 2004 s 150(2). See further NOTE 4.

Regulations may provide that, in cases within head (1) in the text, benefits are to accrue under the scheme rules, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, to or in respect of members of the scheme in respect of any specified period of service being service in employment which, but for s 133(5) (see PARA 659C.8), would have qualified the member in question for those benefits under the scheme rules: s 150(5). See Pension Protection Fund (Entry Rules) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15. As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). Regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 s 150(5) may in particular make provision (1) for benefits not to accrue to, or in respect of, a member unless contributions are paid by or on behalf of the member towards the scheme within a prescribed period; (2) for contributions towards the scheme which, but for s 133, would have been payable by or on behalf of the employer (otherwise than on behalf of an employee) during the assessment period, to fall due; (3) requiring that such contributions as are mentioned in head (1) or (2) are accepted for the assessment period or any part of that period; (4) modifying the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 31 (reduction of benefit where a person's shareable rights are subject to a pension debit: see PARA 961A.4), in its application in relation to cases where benefits accrue under the scheme by virtue of regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 s 150(5): s 150(6) (head (4) not yet in force). See SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15. In the Pensions Act 2004 s 150 'contributions' means, in relation to an eligible scheme, contributions payable towards the scheme by or on behalf of the employer or the active members of the scheme in accordance with the schedule of contributions maintained under s 227 (see PARA 824A.7) in respect of the scheme: s 150(7). In the Pensions Act 2004, unless the context otherwise requires, 'active member' has the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1) (see PARA 612): Pensions Act 2004 s 318(1). For the meaning of 'employee' see PARA 636A.3.

3 In the absence of ibid s 138(6) (requirement to disregard winding up when paying benefits during assessment period: see PARA 659C.12).

4 Ibid s 150(3). Section 150(1)-(3) are without prejudice to the Pensions Act 1995 s 73A(2)(b) (requirement to adjust benefits paid to reflect liabilities which can be met on winding up) (see PARA 845A): Pensions Act 2004 s 150(4).

21. Reconsideration

Where specified provision<sup>1</sup> applies<sup>2</sup> in relation to an eligible scheme, the trustees or managers of the scheme may make an application to the Board for it to assume responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>3</sup>. An application under these provisions must be in the prescribed form, contain the prescribed information and be accompanied by (1) a protected benefits quotation<sup>4</sup> in the prescribed form, and (2) audited scheme accounts for a period which (a) begins with such date as may be determined in accordance with regulations, and (b) ends with a date which falls within the prescribed period ending with the day on which the application is made<sup>5</sup>. An application under these provisions must be made within the authorised period<sup>6</sup>. Where the Board receives an application<sup>7</sup>, it must give a copy of the application to the Regulator<sup>8</sup>.

The circumstances in which the Board will assume responsibility for a scheme on reconsideration are set out<sup>9</sup>.

1 Ie the Pensions Act 2004 s 151(2) or (3).

2 Section 151(2) applies where (1) a scheme failure notice has been issued under s 122(2)(a) (see PARA 659B.2) in relation to the scheme, that notice has become binding and the trustees or managers have received a copy of the binding notice under s 125(3) (see PARA 659B.3), (2) the valuation obtained by the Board under s 143 (see PARA 659C.15) in respect of the scheme has become binding, and (3) the Board would have been required to assume responsibility for the scheme under s 127 (see PARA 659C.2) but for the fact that the condition in s 127(2)(a) was not satisfied: s 151(2). Section 151(3) applies where (a) the Board has issued a scheme failure notice under s 130(2) (see PARA 659C.5) in relation to the scheme, that notice has become binding and the trustees or managers have received a copy of the binding notice under s 130(7), (b) the valuation obtained by the Board under s 143 in respect of the scheme has become binding, and (c) the Board would have been required to assume responsibility for the scheme under s 128 (see PARA 659C.3) but for the fact that the condition in s 128(2)(a) was not satisfied: s 151(3).

3 Ibid s 15(1) referring to Pt 2 Ch 3 (ss 126-181).

4 For the purposes of ibid s 151 'protected benefits quotation', in relation to a scheme, means a quotation for one or more annuities from one or more insurers, being companies willing to accept payment in respect of the members from the trustees or managers of the scheme, which would provide in respect of each member of the scheme from the reconsideration time (1) benefits for or in respect of the member corresponding to the compensation which would be payable to or in respect of the member in accordance with the pension compensation provisions if the Board assumed responsibility for the scheme by virtue of s 151, or (2) benefits in accordance with the member's entitlement or accrued rights (including pension credit rights within the meaning of the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1)) under the scheme rules (other than his entitlement or rights in respect of money purchase benefits), whichever benefits can, in the case of that member, be secured at the lower cost: Pensions Act 2004 s 151(8). 'The reconsideration time', in relation to an application under s 151, means the time immediately before the end of the period to which the audited scheme accounts mentioned in head (2) in the text relate: s 151(8). For the purposes of s 151 'audited scheme accounts', in relation to a scheme, means (a) accounts obtained by the trustees or managers of the scheme ('the scheme accounts') which are prepared in accordance with s 151(9)-(11) and audited by the auditor in relation to the scheme, and (b) a report by the auditor, in the prescribed form, as to whether or not such requirements as may be prescribed are satisfied in relation to the scheme accounts: s 151(8). See Pension Protection Fund (Entry Rules) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15. As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). 'Auditor', in relation to a scheme, has the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 47 (see PARA 787): Pensions Act 2004 s 151(8).

For the purposes of s 151 (i) regulations may prescribe how the cost of securing the benefits mentioned in head (1) of the definition of 'protected benefits quotation' in s 151(8) is to be determined, calculated and verified, and (ii) subject to any provision made under head (i), that cost is to be determined, calculated and verified in accordance with guidance issued by the Board: s 151(12) (partly in force). Where the scheme is being wound up, for the purposes of determining the benefits which fall within head (2) of the definition of 'protected benefits quotation' in s 151(8) no account is to be taken of the winding up of the scheme: s 151(13).

The scheme accounts are prepared in accordance with s 151(9) if, subject to s 151(10) and (11), they (A) include a statement of the assets of the scheme (excluding any assets representing the value of any rights in respect of money purchase benefits under the scheme rules) as at the reconsideration time, and (B) are prepared in accordance with such other requirements as may be prescribed: s 151(9). See SI 2005/590; and PARA 636A.15. Subject to the Pensions Act 2004 s 151(11), regulations under s 143(4) (see PARA 659C.15) (other than regulations made by virtue of s 143(5)), and guidance under s 143(6), apply to the scheme accounts as they apply for the purposes of a valuation under s 143: s 151(10). Regulations may provide that, where an asset of a prescribed description has been acquired during the assessment period, the value assigned to the asset as at the reconsideration time is to be determined, for the purposes of the scheme accounts, in the prescribed manner: s 151(11).

22. Closed schemes

If the trustees or managers of the scheme are unable to obtain a full buy-out quotation<sup>1</sup>, they must, within the authorised period, apply to the Board for authority to continue as a closed scheme<sup>2</sup>. For the purposes of determining whether they must make an application<sup>3</sup>, the trustees or managers of the scheme must take all reasonable steps to obtain a full buy-out quotation in respect of the scheme<sup>4</sup>. Where the Board receives an application<sup>5</sup>, if it is satisfied that the trustees or managers have complied with their obligation<sup>6</sup> but were unable to obtain a full buy-out quotation, it must authorise the scheme to continue as a closed scheme<sup>7</sup>. Where the Board determines an application in respect of a scheme, it must issue a determination notice<sup>8</sup> and give a copy of that notice to (1) the trustees or managers of the scheme, and (2) the Regulator<sup>9</sup>. If the trustees or managers of the scheme fail to comply with the above provisions<sup>10</sup> the civil penalty provisions in the Pensions Act 1995<sup>11</sup> apply to any trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance<sup>12</sup>.

Provision is made relating to the treatment of closed schemes<sup>13</sup> and valuations of closed schemes<sup>14</sup>. In addition, provision is made with respect to the reconsideration of closed schemes<sup>15</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 153 'full buy-out quotation', in relation to a scheme, means a quotation for one or more annuities from one or more insurers (being companies willing to accept payment in respect of the members from the trustees or managers of the scheme) which would provide in respect of each member of the scheme, from a relevant date, benefits in accordance with the member's entitlement or accrued rights, including pension credit rights, under the scheme rules (other than his entitlement or rights in respect of money purchase benefits): s 153(7). 'Relevant date' means a date within the authorised period: s 153(7). 'Authorised period' has the same meaning as in s 151 (see PARA 659C.21): s 153(7). 'Pension credit rights' has the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1): Pensions Act 2004 s 153(7).

2 Ibid s 153(2). Section 153 applies where s 151(2) or (3) (scheme rescue not possible but scheme has sufficient assets to meet the protected liabilities) applies in relation to an eligible scheme: s 153(1).

3 Under ibid s 153(2).

4 Ibid s 153(3). An application must (1) be in the prescribed form and contain the prescribed information, and (2) be accompanied by evidence in the prescribed form which shows that the trustees or managers of the scheme have complied with the obligation under s 153(3) but were unable to obtain a full buy-out quotation: s 153(4). ## 23. Requirement to wind up schemes with sufficient assets to meet protected liabilities

Where, in relation to an eligible scheme, an assessment period<sup>1</sup> comes to an end because specified conditions<sup>2</sup> are satisfied, the trustees or managers of the scheme must (1) wind up the scheme, or (2) where the winding up of the scheme began before the assessment period<sup>3</sup>, continue the winding up of the scheme<sup>4</sup>. Where, in relation to an eligible scheme, an assessment period<sup>5</sup> comes to an end because specified conditions<sup>6</sup> are satisfied, the trustees or managers of the scheme must continue the winding up of the scheme begun (whether in accordance with these provisions or otherwise) before that assessment period<sup>7</sup>. The Board may give the trustees or managers of the scheme directions relating to the manner of the winding up of the scheme under these provisions (and may vary or revoke any such direction given by it)<sup>8</sup>. The winding up of a scheme under these provisions is as effective in law as if it had been made under powers conferred by or under the scheme<sup>9</sup>. These provisions must be complied with in relation to a scheme (a) in spite of any enactment or rule of law, or any rule of the scheme, which would otherwise operate to prevent the winding up, and (b) without regard to any such enactment, rule of law or rule of the scheme as would otherwise require or might otherwise be taken to require the implementation of any procedure or the obtaining of any consent with a view to the winding up<sup>10</sup>. Where a public service pension scheme is required to be wound up under these provisions, the appropriate authority<sup>11</sup> may by order make provision modifying any enactment in which the scheme is contained or under which it is made<sup>12</sup>.

1 Within the Pensions Act 2004 s 132(2) or (4) (see PARA 659C.7).

2 In the conditions in ibid s 154(2). The conditions are (1) that s 151(2) or (3) (scheme rescue not possible but scheme has sufficient assets to meet the protected liabilities: see PARA 659C.21) applies in relation to the scheme, (2) that (a) the trustees or managers did not make an application under s 151 or s 153(2) (see PARA 659C.22) within the authorised period (within the meaning of s 151(6)) (or any such application has been withdrawn), or (b) if such an application was made, it has been finally determined, and (3) that, if an application was made under s 151, the Board is not required to assume responsibility for the scheme by virtue of s 152(2) (see PARA 659C.21): s 154(2). For the purposes of head (b) an application is not finally determined until (i) the Board has issued a determination notice in respect of the application under s 152 or, as the case may be, s 153, (ii) the period within which the issue of the notice may be reviewed by virtue of Pt 2 Ch 6 (ss 206-218) has expired, and (iii) if the issue of the notice is so reviewed (A) the review and any reconsideration, (B) any reference to the PPF Ombudsman in respect of the issue of the notice, and (C) any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of: s 154(3). See further NOTE 6.

3 Whether by virtue of ibid s 219 (see PARA 659G.1) or otherwise.

5 Within ibid s 159(3) (see PARA 659C.22).

6 In the conditions in ibid s 154(5). The conditions are (1) that an application is made by, or notice is given to, the trustees or managers of the scheme under s 157 (applications and notifications where closed schemes have insufficient assets: see PARA 659C.22), (2) that the valuation obtained by the Board in respect of the scheme under s 158(3) (see PARA 659C.22) has become binding, and (3) that the Board is not required to assume responsibility for the scheme by virtue of s 158(1) (duty to assume responsibility for closed scheme): s 154(5).

Where an assessment period in relation to an eligible scheme comes to an end by virtue of the conditions in s 154(2) or (5) being satisfied, s 150(1)-(4) (see PARA 659C.20) applies as it applies where an assessment period comes to an end by virtue of the Board ceasing to be involved with the scheme, except that in s 150(2) the reference to s 219 is to be read as a reference to s 154(6): s 154(13).

8 Ibid s 154(7). Section 154(7) is without prejudice to the power to give directions under s 134 (see PARA 659C.9), but subject to any order made under s 154(8): s 154(7). The Regulator may by order direct any person specified in the order (1) to take such steps as are so specified as it considers are necessary as a result of (a) the winding up of the scheme beginning, by virtue of s 154(6), immediately before the assessment period, or (b) the winding up of the scheme being continued under head (2) in the text, and (2) to take those steps within a period specified in the order: s 154(8). If the trustees or managers of a scheme fail to comply with a direction to them under s 154(7), or contained in an order under s 154(8), the Pensions Act 1995 s 10 (civil penalties: see PARA 611) applies to any trustee or manager who has failed to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance: Pensions Act 2004 s 154(9). The Pensions Act 1995 s 10 also applies to any other person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with a direction to him contained in an order under the Pensions Act 2004 s 154(8): s 154(10).

9 Ibid s 154(11).

11 In ibid s 154(14) 'the appropriate authority', in relation to a scheme, means such Minister of the Crown or government department as may be designated by the Treasury as having responsibility for the particular scheme: s 154(15).

12 Ibid s 154(14).

24. Assumption of responsibility for a scheme: transfer notice

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where the Board is required to assume responsibility for a scheme<sup>2</sup>. The Board must give the trustees or managers a notice (a 'transfer notice')<sup>3</sup>. A transfer notice may not be given in relation to a scheme during any period when the issue of, or failure to issue, a withdrawal notice<sup>4</sup> is reviewable<sup>5</sup>. The Board must give a copy of any notice<sup>6</sup> to (1) the Regulator, and (2) any insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer or, if there is no such insolvency practitioner, the employer<sup>7</sup>.

3 Ibid s 160(2). In a case to which s 127 or 128 applies, a transfer notice may not be given until the valuation obtained under s 143 (see PARA 659C.15) is binding: s 160(3). In a case to which s 158 applies, a transfer notice may not be given until the valuation obtained under s 158(3) is binding: s 160(4).

4 Under or by virtue of ibid s 146 or 147 (refusal to assume responsibility: see PARAS 659C.16, 659C.17).

5 Ibid s 160(5) (see s 149(6)(b) and PARA 659C.19).

6 Given under ibid s 160(2).

7 Ibid s 160(6).

Section 160 is subject to s 172(1) and (2) (no transfer notice within first 12 months of assessment period or when fraud compensation application is pending: see PARA 659C.35): s 160(7).

25. Effect of Board assuming responsibility for a scheme

Where a transfer notice is given to the trustees or managers of an eligible scheme, the Board assumes responsibility for the scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup>. The effect of the Board assuming responsibility for a scheme is that (1) the property, rights and liabilities of the scheme<sup>2</sup> are transferred to the Board, without further assurance, with effect from the time the trustees or managers receive the transfer notice, (2) the trustees or managers of the scheme are discharged from their pension obligations<sup>3</sup> from that time, and (3) from that time the Board is responsible for securing that compensation is (and has been) paid in accordance with the pension compensation provisions, and, accordingly, the scheme is to be treated as having been wound up immediately after that time<sup>4</sup>. Provision is made in respect of the transfer of the property, rights and liabilities of a scheme under head (1) above<sup>5</sup>. Regulations may make further provision regarding such transfers<sup>6</sup>.

1 Ie the Pensions Act 2004 ss 126-181: s 161(1).

2 In head (1) in the text the reference to liabilities of the scheme does not include any liability to, or in respect of, any member of the scheme, other than (1) liabilities in respect of money purchase benefits, and (2) such other liabilities as may be prescribed: ibid s 161(3) (head (2) not yet in force).

3 In head (2) in the text 'pension obligations' in relation to the trustees or managers of the scheme means (1) their obligations to provide pensions or other benefits to or in respect of persons (including any obligation to provide guaranteed minimum pensions within the meaning of the Pension Schemes Act 1993), and (2) their obligations to administer the scheme in accordance with the scheme rules and the Pensions Act 2004 or any other enactment: s 161(4).

5 See ibid s 161(5), Sch 6.

6 Ibid s 161(6). See Pension Protection Fund (General and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/580 (amended by SI 2007/782, SI 2009/451). Without prejudice to the generality of the 2004 Act s 161(6), regulations may authorise the Board to modify a term of a relevant contract of insurance if (1) any rights or liabilities under the contract are transferred to the Board by virtue of head (1) in the text, and (2) as a result of the transfer, the Board is required, by reason of that term, to pay a specified amount or specified amounts to a specified person who, immediately before the time mentioned in head (1) in the text, was a member of the scheme or a person entitled to benefits in respect of such a member: s 161(7). In s 161(7) 'relevant contract of insurance' means a contract of insurance which (a) is entered with a view to securing the whole or part of the scheme's liability for (i) any pension or other benefit payable to or in respect of one particular person whose entitlement to payment of a pension or other benefit has arisen, and (ii) any benefit which will be payable in respect of that person on his death, and (b) is a contract (A) which may not be surrendered, or (B) in respect of which the amount payable on surrender does not exceed the liability secured: s 161(8). 'Specified' means specified in, or determined in accordance with, the contract of insurance: s 161(8).

26. The pension compensation provisions

Provision is made for compensation to be paid in relation to a scheme for which the Board assumes responsibility in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup>, including provision for (1) periodic compensation to be paid to or in respect of members, (2) lump sum compensation to be paid to members, (3) a cap to be imposed on the periodic compensation and lump sum compensation payable, and (4) annual increases to be made to periodic compensation<sup>2</sup>.

1 I.e. the Pensions Act 2004 ss 126-181, Schs 6, 7. Compensation payable is intended to compensate members for scheme benefits which they have lost and in no sense can the statutory right be described as an asset of a pension scheme: Independent Trustee Services Ltd v Hope [2009] EWHC 2810 (Ch), [2010] ICR 553, [2009] All ER (D) 234 (Nov).

In the Pensions Act 2004 Pt 2 (ss 107-220) references to the pension compensation provisions are to the provisions of, and the provisions made by virtue of, s 162 (See PARA 659C.13), ss 140-142 (see PARA 659C.14), 161(2)(c) (see PARA 659C.25), 164 (see PARA 659C.28) and 168 (see PARA 659C.32) and Sch 7: s 162(2). ## 27. Adjustments to be made where the Board assumes responsibility for a scheme

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where the Board assumes responsibility for an eligible scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>2</sup>. Any benefits (other than money purchase benefits) which (1) were payable under the scheme rules to any member, or to any person in respect of any member, during the period beginning with the assessment date<sup>3</sup> and ending with the receipt by the trustees or managers of the transfer notice, and (2) have been paid before the trustees or managers receive the transfer notice, are to be regarded as going towards discharging any liability of the Board to pay compensation to the member or, as the case may be, person in accordance with the pension compensation provisions<sup>4</sup>. Regulations may provide that, in prescribed circumstances, where a member of the scheme died before the commencement of the assessment period, and during the period mentioned in head (1) above, a person became entitled under the scheme rules to a benefit of a prescribed description in respect of the member, the benefit, or any part of it, is<sup>5</sup> to be treated as having become payable before the assessment date<sup>6</sup>. The Board must (a) if any amount paid, during the period mentioned in head (1) above, by the trustees or managers of the scheme to a member, or to a person in respect of a member, exceeded the entitlement of that member or person under the pension compensation provisions, take such steps as it considers appropriate (including adjusting future compensation payments made in accordance with those provisions) to recover an amount equal to the aggregate of (i) the amount of the excess, and (ii) interest on that amount, at the prescribed rate, for the period which begins when the excess was paid by the trustees or managers and ends with the recovery of the excess, and (b) if any amount so paid was less than that entitlement (or no amount was paid in respect of that entitlement), pay an amount to the member or person concerned equal to the aggregate of (A) the amount of the shortfall, and (B) interest on that amount, at the prescribed rate, for the period which begins when the shortfall ought to have been paid by the trustees or managers and ends with the payment of the shortfall by the Board<sup>7</sup>.

In s 163(4) references to an amount paid do not include (1) an amount paid in respect of any money purchase benefit, or (2) any other amount of a prescribed description: s 163(5) (head (2) not yet in force). Nothing in s 163(4) requires the Board (a) to recover any amount from a person in such circumstances as may be prescribed, or (b) to recover from any person any amount which it considers to be trivial: s 163(6). See further SI 2006/580.

28.    Postponement of compensation entitlement for the assessment period

Regulations may provide that, where the Board assumes responsibility for an eligible scheme, the entitlement of any member of the scheme to compensation under Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup> is, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, postponed for the whole or any part of the assessment period for which he continued in employment after attaining normal pension age<sup>2</sup>. Such regulations may provide that the postponement is on such terms and conditions (including those relating to increments) as may be prescribed<sup>3</sup>.

2    Ibid s 164(1). In s 164(1) the reference to 'normal pension age' is to normal pension age, within the meaning of Sch 7 para 34, in relation to the pension or lump sum in respect of which the entitlement to compensation arises: s 164(3). As to Sch 7 see PARA 659C.26.

29.    Guaranteed minimum pensions

The Board must notify the Commissioners of Inland Revenue where, by reason of it assuming responsibility for an eligible scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup>, the trustees or managers of the scheme are discharged from their liability to provide a guaranteed minimum pension (within the meaning of the Pension Schemes Act 1993) to or in respect of a member of the scheme<sup>2</sup>.

2    Ibid s 165(1). Notification under s 165(1) must be given as soon as reasonably practicable: s 165(2). As to the service of notifications and electronic working under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 303-305.

30.    Duty to pay scheme benefits unpaid at assessment date etc

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where the Board assumes responsibility for a scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>2</sup>. The Board must pay any amount by way of pensions or other benefits which a person had become entitled to payment of under the scheme rules before the assessment date<sup>3</sup> but which remained unpaid at the time the transfer notice was received by the trustees or managers of the scheme<sup>4</sup>. Regulations may provide that, in prescribed circumstances, where (1) a member of the scheme died before the commencement of the assessment period, and (2) during the period beginning with the assessment date and ending with the receipt by the trustees or managers of the transfer notice, a person became entitled under the scheme rules to a benefit of a prescribed description in respect of the member, that person's entitlement to the benefit, or to any part of it, is<sup>5</sup> to be treated as having arisen before the assessment date<sup>6</sup>. Regulations may make provision requiring the Board, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, to take such steps (including making payments) as may be prescribed in respect of rights of prescribed descriptions to which members of the scheme were entitled immediately before the commencement of the assessment period<sup>7</sup>.

3    In ibid s 166 'assessment date' is to be construed in accordance with Sch 7 (see PARA 659C.26): s 166(8).

4    Ibid s 166(2). Section 166(2) is subject to s 166(4): s 166(2). If, immediately before the assessment date, the person is entitled to the amount but has postponed payment of it, s 166(2) does not apply: s 166(3). Section 166(2) does not apply in relation to the amount of (1) any transfer payment, or (2) any payment in respect of a refund of contributions: s 166(4).

31.    Modification of Chapter where liabilities discharged during assessment period

Regulations may modify any of the provisions of Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup> as it applies to cases (1) where any liability to provide pensions or other benefits to or in respect of any member or members under a scheme is discharged during an assessment period in relation to the scheme by virtue of (a) regulations<sup>2</sup>, or (b) the Board validating any action<sup>3</sup>, or (2) where, in prescribed circumstances, any such liability of a prescribed description is discharged on the assessment date<sup>4</sup> but before the commencement of the assessment period<sup>5</sup>.

32. Administration of compensation

The day appointed for the coming into force of the Pensions Act 2004 s 168 as modified by regulations made under s 286(3)(j) (financial assistance scheme for members of certain pension schemes: see PARA 850A) is the day after the day on which the first regulations under s 286 are made: SI 2005/1436. For further commencement provision see SI 2005/3331.

Regulations may make further provision regarding the operation and administration of Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup>. Such regulations may, in particular, make provision (1) prescribing the manner in which and time when compensation<sup>2</sup> is to be paid (including provision requiring periodic compensation to be paid by instalments); (2) for calculating the amounts of compensation according to a prescribed scale or otherwise adjusting them to avoid fractional amounts or facilitate computation; (3) prescribing the circumstances and manner in which compensation to which a person ('the beneficiary') is entitled may be made to another person on behalf of the beneficiary for any purpose (including the discharge in whole or in part of an obligation of the beneficiary or any other person); (4) for the payment or distribution of compensation to or among persons claiming to be entitled on the death of any person and for dispensing with strict proof of their title; (5) for the recovery of amounts of compensation paid by the Board in excess of entitlement (together with interest on such amounts for the period from payment until recovery); (6) specifying the circumstances in which payment of compensation can be suspended<sup>3</sup>.

33. Discharge of Board's liabilities

Where the Board assumes responsibility for an eligible scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>1</sup>, the Board may provide for the discharge of any liability imposed by Chapter 3 of Part 2 to provide compensation (1) by the taking out of a policy of insurance or a number of such policies; (2) by the entry into an annuity contract or a number of such contracts; (3) by the transfer of the benefit of such a policy or policies or such a contract or contracts; (4) in prescribed circumstances, by the payment of a cash sum calculated in the prescribed manner<sup>2</sup>.

Where (a) the Board assumes responsibility for an eligible scheme in accordance with Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004, and (b) one or more members are entitled, or have accrued rights<sup>3</sup>, under the scheme rules to money purchase benefits<sup>4</sup>, regulations must make provision<sup>5</sup> requiring the Board to secure that liabilities in respect of such benefits transferred to the Board<sup>6</sup> are discharged by it in the prescribed manner<sup>7</sup>.

6    Under ibid s 161 (see PARA 659C.25).

7    Ibid s 170(2). The provision made under s 170(2) must include provision prescribing the manner in which protected rights are to be given effect to: s 170(3). 'Protected rights' has the meaning given by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 10 (protected rights and money purchase benefits: see PARA 883): Pensions Act 2004 s 170(4). See Pension Protection Fund (General and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/580 (amended by SI 2010/196).

34.    Equal treatment

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where (1) a woman has been employed on like work with a man in the same employment, (2) a woman has been employed on work rated as equivalent with that of a man in the same employment, or (3) a woman has been employed on work which, not being work in relation to which head (1) or (2) above applies, was, in terms of the demands made on her (for instance under such headings as effort, skill and decision), of equal value to that of a man in the same employment, and service in that employment was pensionable service<sup>2</sup> under an occupational pension scheme<sup>3</sup>. If, apart from this provision<sup>4</sup>, any of the payment functions<sup>5</sup> so far as it relates (directly or indirectly) to that pensionable service (a) is or becomes less favourable to the woman than it is to the man, or (b) is or becomes less favourable to the man than it is to the woman, that function has effect with such modifications<sup>6</sup> as are necessary to ensure that the provision is not less favourable<sup>7</sup>.

The above provisions have effect in relation to the exercise of any payment function in so far as it relates (directly or indirectly) to any pensionable service on or after 17 May 1990<sup>8</sup>.

1    Ie the Pensions Act 2004 s 171.

2    In ibid s 171 'pensionable service' has the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 124(1): Pensions Act 2004 s 171(6).

4    Ie apart from ibid s 171(2).

5    In ibid s 171 'payment function' means any function conferred on the Board by or by virtue of Pt 2 Ch 3 (ss 126-181) which relates to a person's entitlement to or the payment of any amount under or by virtue of (1) the pension compensation provisions (see PARA 659C.26), (2) s 166 (duty to pay scheme benefits unpaid at assessment date etc: see PARA 659C.30), (3) s 169 (discharge of liabilities in respect of compensation: see PARA 659C.33), or (4) s 170 (discharge of liabilities in respect of money purchase benefits: see PARA 659C.33): s 171(6).

6    For the meaning of 'modifications' see PARA 636A.16.

7    Pensions Act 2004 s 171(2). Section 171(2) does not operate in relation to any difference as between a woman and a man in the operation of any of the payment functions if the Board proves that the difference is genuinely due to a material factor which (1) is not the difference of sex, but (2) is a material difference between the woman's case and the man's case: s 171(3). Section 171(2) does not apply in such circumstances as may be prescribed: s 171(4). See Pension Protection Fund (General and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/580 (amended by SI 2010/196).

35. Relationship with fraud compensation regime

No transfer notice may be given in respect of a scheme within the first 12 months of an assessment period in relation to the scheme<sup>1</sup>. Where an application has been made<sup>2</sup>, no transfer notice may be given until (1) the Board has determined the application, (2) the period within which the Board's determination may be reviewed by virtue of Chapter 6 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>3</sup> has expired, and (3) if the determination is so reviewed (a) the review and any reconsideration, (b) any reference to the PPF Ombudsman in respect of the determination, and (c) any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of<sup>4</sup>. The provision below<sup>5</sup> applies where during an assessment period in relation to a scheme the Board determines to make one or more fraud compensation payments ('the fraud compensation') to the trustees or managers of the scheme under Chapter 4 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>6</sup>. For the purposes of determining whether specified conditions<sup>7</sup> are satisfied, any fraud compensation payment which becomes payable after the relevant time<sup>8</sup> is, to the extent that it relates to a loss incurred by the scheme before that time, to be regarded as an asset of the scheme at that time<sup>9</sup>.

2 Under ibid s 182 (application for fraud compensation payment: see PARA 659D.1).

8 For the purposes of ibid s 172(4) 'the relevant time' (1) in the case of s 127(2)(a), has the same meaning as in that provision, (2) in the case of s 128(2)(a), has the same meaning as in that provision, (3) in the case of s 152(2) means the reconsideration time (within the meaning of s 151 (see PARA 659C.21)), and (4) in the case of s 158(1), has the same meaning as in that provision: s 172(5).

9 Ibid s 172(4). Section 172(4) does not apply to the extent that the fraud compensation is payable in respect of a reduction in the value of money purchase assets of the scheme: s 172(6). For this purpose 'money purchase assets' means assets representing the value of any rights in respect of money purchase benefits under the scheme rules: s 172(6).

36. Pension Protection Fund

period<sup>16</sup>, (f) any sums required to make payments relating to payment of unpaid scheme benefits etc<sup>17</sup>, (g) any sums required to discharge liabilities<sup>18</sup>, (h) any sums required to meet any liabilities arising from obligations imposed on the Board by a restoration order<sup>19</sup>, (i) any property (other than sums) required to meet any liabilities (A) transferred to the Board as mentioned in head (a) and arising from obligations imposed by a restoration order, or (B) arising from obligations imposed on the Board by such an order, (j) any sums required to meet expenditure<sup>20</sup>, and (k) sums required for prescribed purposes<sup>21</sup>. ### 37. Initial levy

Regulations must make provision for imposing a levy ('the initial levy') in respect of eligible schemes for the period ('the initial period') which (1) begins with the day appointed for this purpose by the regulations, and (2) ends on the following 31 March or, if the regulations so provide, 12 months after the day referred to in head (1) above<sup>1</sup>. The regulations must prescribe (a) the factors by reference to which the initial levy is to be assessed, (b) the rate of the levy, and (c) the time or times during the initial period when the levy, or any instalment of the levy, becomes payable<sup>2</sup>. Regulations under the above provisions may only be made with the approval of the Treasury<sup>3</sup>.

2 Pensions Act 2004 s 174(2). See SI 2005/842.

38. Pension Protection levies

For each financial year<sup>1</sup> falling after the initial period<sup>2</sup>, the Board must impose both of the following (1) a risk-based pension protection levy<sup>3</sup> in respect of all eligible schemes; (2) a scheme-based pension protection levy<sup>4</sup> in respect of eligible schemes<sup>5</sup>. In Chapter 3 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>6</sup> 'pension protection levy' means a levy imposed in accordance with these provisions<sup>7</sup>. The Board must, before the beginning of each financial year, determine in respect of that year (a) the factors by reference to which the pension protection levies are to be assessed, (b) the time or times by reference to which those factors are to be assessed, (c) the rate of the levies, and (d) the time or times during the year when the levies, or any instalment of levy, becomes payable<sup>8</sup>. Different risk factors, scheme factors or rates may be determined in respect of different descriptions of scheme<sup>9</sup>. The rate determined in respect of a description of scheme may be nil<sup>10</sup>. The Board's duty to impose pension protection levies in respect of any financial year is subject to provision relating to the amounts to be raised by the pension protection levies<sup>11</sup> and transitional provision<sup>12</sup>.

The Secretary of State is required to specify a levy ceiling before the beginning of each financial year<sup>13</sup>.

Provision is made setting out the way in which valuations will determine scheme underfunding for the purpose of calculating the risk-based pension protection levy<sup>14</sup>.

Provision relating to the calculation, collection and recovery of levies is made<sup>15</sup>.

Regulations may make provision for interest to be charged at the prescribed rate in the case of late payment of a pension protection levy<sup>16</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 175 and ss 176-181 'financial year' means a period of 12 months ending with 31 March: s 175(9).

2 In ibid s 175 'initial period' is to be construed in accordance with s 174 (see PARA 659C.37): s 175(8).

3 For the purposes of ibid s 175 a risk-based pension protection levy is a levy assessed by reference to (1) the difference between the value of a scheme's assets (disregarding any assets representing the value of any rights in respect of money purchase benefits under the scheme rules) and the amount of its protected liabilities, (2) except in relation to any prescribed scheme or scheme of a prescribed description, the likelihood of an insolvency event occurring in relation to the employer in relation to a scheme, and (3) if the Board considers it appropriate, one or more other risk factors mentioned in s 175(3): s 175(2)(a). The other risk factors referred to in head (3) are factors which the Board considers indicate one or more of the following (a) the risks associated with the nature of a scheme's investments when compared with the nature of its liabilities; (b) such other matters as may be prescribed: s 175(3).

Matters which have been prescribed for these purposes are the nature of and any risks associated with any arrangements which the Board considers may reduce the risk of compensation being payable from the Pension Protection Fund in the event of an insolvency event occurring in respect of an employer in relation to the scheme: Pension Protection Fund (Risk-based Pension Protection Levy) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/672.

4 For the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 175 a scheme-based pension protection levy is a levy assessed by reference to (1) the amount of a scheme's liabilities to or in respect of members (other than liabilities in respect of money purchase benefits), and (2) if the Board considers it appropriate, one or more other scheme factors mentioned in s 175(4): s 175(2)(b). The other scheme factors referred to in head (2) are (a) the number of persons who are members, or fall within any description of member, of a scheme; (b) the total annual amount of pensionable earnings of active members of a scheme; (c) such other factors as may be prescribed: s 175(4) (partly in force). In s 175 'pensionable earnings', in relation to an active member under a scheme, means the earnings by reference to which a member's entitlement to benefits would be calculated under the scheme rules if he ceased to be an active member at the time by reference to which the factor within head (b) is to be assessed: s 175(8). Interest is payable by or on behalf of the person or persons by or on behalf of whom the levy is payable: Pensions Act 2004 s 181A(2). Interest payable by a person by virtue of s 181A is a debt due from the person to the Board: s 181A(3). Interest is recoverable by the Board or, if the Board so determines, by the Regulator on its behalf: s 181A(4). Without prejudice to the generality of s 181A(1), regulations under s 181A may include provision relating to (1) the collection and recovery of interest; (2) the circumstances in which interest may be waived: s 181A(5).

39. Pension protection on transfer of employment

These provisions<sup>1</sup> apply in relation to a person ('the employee') where (1) there is a relevant transfer within the meaning of the TUPE Regulations<sup>2</sup>, (2) by virtue of the transfer the employee ceases to be employed by the transferor<sup>3</sup> and becomes employed by the transferee, and (3) at the time immediately before the employee becomes employed by the transferee (a) there is an occupational pension scheme ('the scheme') in relation to which the transferor is the employer, and (b) one of specified provisions<sup>4</sup> applies<sup>5</sup>.

In a case where the above provisions<sup>6</sup> apply, it is a condition of the employee's contract of employment with the transferee that specified requirements<sup>7</sup> are complied with<sup>8</sup>. This does not apply in relation to a contract if or to the extent that the employee and the transferee so agree at any time after the time when the employee becomes employed by the transferee<sup>9</sup>.

1    Ie the Pensions Act 2004 s 257.

2    In ibid s 257 the 'TUPE Regulations' means the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/246: Pensions Act 2004 s 257(8) (amended by SI 2006/246).

3    In Pensions Act 2004 s 257 references to the transferor include any associate of the transferor, and the Insolvency Act 1986 s 435 applies for the purposes of the Pensions Act 2004 s 257 as it applies for the purposes of the Insolvency Act 1986: Pensions Act 2004 s 257(8).

4    Ie one of ibid s 257(2), (3) and (4).

5    Ibid s 257(1). For the purposes of s 257, the condition in head (3) in the text is to be regarded as satisfied in any case where it would have been satisfied but for any action taken by the transferor by reason of the transfer: s 257(5).

Section 257(2) applies where (1) the employee is an active member of the scheme, and (2) if any of the benefits that may be provided under the scheme are money purchase benefits (a) the transferor is required to make contributions to the scheme in respect of the employee, or (b) the transferor is not so required but has made one or more such contributions: s 257(2). Section 257(3) applies where (i) the employee is not an active member of the scheme but is eligible to be such a member, and (ii) if any of the benefits that may be provided under the scheme are money purchase benefits, the transferor would have been required to make contributions to the scheme in respect of the employee if the employee had been an active member of it: s 257(3). Section 257(4) applies where (A) the employee is not an active member of the scheme, nor eligible to be such a member, but would have been an active member of the scheme or eligible to be such a member if, after the date on which he became employed by the transferor, he had been employed by the transferor for a longer period, and (B) if any of the benefits that may be provided under the scheme are money purchase benefits, the transferor would have been required to make contributions to the scheme in respect of the employee if the employee had been an active member of it: s 257(4).

In the case of a scheme which is contracted-out by virtue of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 9 (see PARA 882), the references in heads (2), (ii) and (B) to contributions mean contributions other than minimum payments (within the meaning of the Pension Schemes Act 1993): Pensions Act 2004 s 257(7). As from the abolition date (see PARA 880) 2004 Act s 257(7) repealed: Pensions Act 2007 Sch 4 para 41, Sch 7 Pt 6. For savings see 2007 Act Sch 4 Pt 3.

6    Ie the 2004 Act s 257.

8    Ibid s 258(1).

The requirements in s 258(2) are that (1) the transferee secures that, as from the relevant time, the employee is, or is eligible to be, an active member of an occupational pension scheme in relation to which the transferee is the employer, and (2) in a case where the scheme is a money purchase scheme, as from the relevant time (a) the transferee makes relevant contributions to the scheme in respect of the employee, or (b) if the employee is not an active member of the scheme but is eligible to be such a member, the transferee would be required to make such contributions if the employee were an active member, and (3) in a case where the scheme is not a money purchase scheme, as from the relevant time the scheme (i) satisfies the statutory standard referred to in the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 12A (see PARA 887), or (ii) if regulations so provide, complies with such other requirements as may be prescribed: Pensions Act 2004 s 258(2). See Transfer of Employment (Pension Protection) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/649. As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12). In the Pensions Act 2004 s 258 'the relevant time' means (A) in a case where s 257 applies by virtue of the application of s 257(2) or (3), the time when the employee becomes employed by the transferee; (B) in a case where s 257 applies by virtue of the application of s 257(4), the time at which the employee would have been a member of the scheme referred to in s 257(1)(c)(i) (head (a) in the text) or (if earlier) would have been eligible to be such a member: s 258(7). 'Relevant contributions' means such contributions in respect of such period or periods as may be prescribed: s 258(7). See SI 2005/649.

The requirement in the Pensions Act 2004 s 258(3) is that, as from the relevant time, the transferee makes relevant contributions to a stakeholder pension scheme of which the employee is a member: s 258(3). In s 258 'stakeholder pension scheme' means a pension scheme which is registered under the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 2 (see PARA 873A.2): Pensions Act 2004 s 258(7). The requirement in s 258(3) is for the purposes of s 258 to be regarded as complied with by the transferee during any period in relation to which the condition in s 258(5) is satisfied: s 258(4). The condition in s 258(5) is that the transferee has offered to make relevant contributions to a stakeholder pension scheme of which the employee is eligible to be a member (and the transferee has not withdrawn the offer): s 258(5).

659D. Fraud compensation.

1. Cases where fraud compensation payments can be made

The Board<sup>1</sup> must, in accordance with the following provisions<sup>2</sup>, make one or more payments (in Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>3</sup> referred to as 'fraud compensation payments') in respect of an occupational pension scheme<sup>4</sup> if (1) the scheme is not a prescribed<sup>5</sup> scheme or a scheme of a prescribed description, (2) the value of the assets of the scheme has been reduced since the relevant date<sup>6</sup> and the Board considers that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the reduction was attributable to an act or omission constituting a prescribed offence, (3) certain specified provision<sup>7</sup> applies<sup>8</sup>, (4) an application is made which meets certain requirements<sup>9</sup>, and (5) the application is made within the authorised period<sup>10</sup>.

4 For the meaning of 'occupational pension scheme' see PARA 636A.3.

5 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 636A.3.

6 In the Pensions Act 2004 s 182 'the relevant date' means (1) in the case of an occupational pension scheme established under a trust, 6 April 1997, and (2) in any other case, the day appointed by the Secretary of State by order for the purposes of s 182: s 182(10).

7 Ie ibid s 182(2), (3) or (4).

8 Ibid s 182(2) applies where (1) a qualifying insolvency event has occurred in relation to the employer in relation to the scheme, (2) after that event, a scheme failure notice has been issued under s 122(2)(a) (see PARA 659B.2) in relation to the scheme and that notice has become binding, and (3) a cessation event has not occurred in relation to the scheme in respect of a cessation notice which has been issued during the period beginning with the occurrence of the insolvency event, and ending immediately before the issuing of the scheme failure notice under s 122(2)(a), and the occurrence of such a cessation event in respect of a cessation notice issued during that period is not a possibility: s 182(2). As to references to a qualifying insolvency event see s 182(8). For the meaning of 'employer' see PARA 636A.15. As to a cessation event and a cessation notice see s 182(9).

Section 182(3) applies where (a) in relation to the scheme, an application has been made under s 182(1), or a notification has been given under s 129(5)(a) (see PARA 659C.4), and (b) in response to that application, or the notice given by the Regulator under s 129(4), the Board has issued a scheme failure notice under s 130(2) (see PARA 659C.5) in relation to the scheme and that notice has become binding: s 182(3). For the meaning of 'the Regulator' see PARA 636A.2.

Section 182(4) applies where (i) the scheme is not an eligible scheme, (ii) the employer in relation to the scheme is unlikely to continue as a going concern, (iii) the prescribed requirements are met in relation to the employer, (iv) the application under s 182 states that the case is one in relation to which heads (ii) and (iii) apply, and (v) in response to that application the Board has issued a notice under s 183(2) confirming that a scheme rescue is not possible in relation to the scheme and that notice has become binding: s 182(4). See Occupational Pension Schemes (Fraud Compensation Payments and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2184 (amended by SI 2007/814, SI 2010/196).

9 le the requirements of the Pensions Act 2004 s 182(5). An application meets the requirements of s 182(5) if (1) it is made by a prescribed person, and (2) it is made in the prescribed manner and contains the prescribed information: s 182(5). See SI 2005/2184, NOTE 8.

10 Pensions Act 2004 s 182(1). See SI 2005/2184, NOTE 8. Subject to the Pensions Act 2004 s 182(7) an application is made within the authorised period if it is made within the period of 12 months beginning with the later of (1) the time of the relevant event, or (2) the time when the auditor or actuary of the scheme, or the trustees or managers, knew or ought reasonably to have known that a reduction of value falling within head (2) in the text had occurred, or within such longer period as the Board may determine in any case: s 182(6). 'The relevant event' means (a) in a case where s 182(2) applies in relation to an eligible scheme, the event within s 182(2)(a), (b) in any other case where s 182(2) applies, the issue of the scheme failure notice under s 122(2)(a) mentioned in s 122(2)(b), (c) in a case where s 182(3) applies, the event within s 182(3)(a), and (d) in a case where s 182(4) applies, the trustees or managers becoming aware that s 182(4)(b) and (c) apply in relation to the scheme: s 182(10). 'Auditor' and 'actuary', in relation to an occupational pension scheme, have the meaning given by the Pensions Act 1995 s 47 (see PARA 787): Pensions Act 2004 s 182(10). For the meaning of 'managers' see PARA 636A.11. No application for fraud compensation may be made under s 182 in respect of a scheme once a transfer notice is given in relation to the scheme under s 160 (see PARA 659C.24): s 182(7).

Section 182 is subject to s 184(2) (no fraud compensation payments to be made until settlement date determined: see PARA 659D.2): s 182(11).

11 See ibid s 183 and SI 2005/2184 (see NOTE 8).

2. Recovery of value

Where an application for a fraud compensation payment is made, the trustees or managers must obtain any recoveries of value<sup>1</sup>, to the extent that they may do so without disproportionate cost and within a reasonable time<sup>2</sup>. No fraud compensation payment may be made until the date ('the settlement date') determined by the Board, after consulting the trustees or managers of the scheme in question, as the date after which further recoveries of value are unlikely to be obtained without disproportionate cost or within a reasonable time<sup>3</sup>. It is for the Board to determine whether anything received by the trustees or managers of the scheme is to be treated as a payment<sup>4</sup> received in respect of any such act or omission<sup>5</sup>.

1 In Pensions Act 2004 s 184 'recovery of value' means any increase in the value of the assets of the scheme, being an increase attributable to any payment received (otherwise than from the Board) by the trustees or managers of the scheme in respect of any act or omission (1) which there are reasonable grounds for believing constituted an offence prescribed for the purposes of s 182(1)(b) (see PARA 659D.1), and (2) to which any reduction in value falling within s 182(1)(b) was attributable: s 184(3).

4 For this purpose 'payment' includes any money or money's worth: ibid s 184(4).

5 Ibid s 184(4).

3. Fraud compensation payments

Where the Board determines to make one or more fraud compensation payments, it must make the payment or payments to the trustees or managers of the scheme in accordance with these provisions<sup>1</sup>. A fraud compensation payment may be made on such terms (including terms requiring repayment in whole or in part) and on such conditions as the Board considers appropriate<sup>2</sup>. The amount of the payment (or, if there is more than one, the aggregate) must not exceed the difference between (1) the amount of the reduction (or, if more than one, the aggregate amount of the reductions)<sup>3</sup>, and (2) the amount of any recoveries of value obtained before the settlement date<sup>4</sup>. Subject to the above provision<sup>5</sup>, the Board (a) must determine the amount of any fraud compensation payment in accordance with regulations made for these purposes, and (b) must take account of any interim payment already made<sup>6</sup>.

The Board may make interim payments where it appears that specified conditions<sup>7</sup> are satisfied and the trustees or managers would not otherwise be able to meet liabilities of a prescribed description<sup>8</sup>.

See Occupational Pension Schemes (Fraud Compensation Payments and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2184 (see PARA 659D.1). The Board must give written notice of its determination under the Pensions Act 2004 s 185(4) to (1) the Regulator, (2) the trustees or managers of the scheme, (3) if the trustees or managers did not make the application under s 182 (fraud compensation payments: see PARA 659D.1), the person who made that application, and (4) any insolvency practitioner in relation to the employer or, if there is no such insolvency practitioner, the employer: s 185(5). As to regulations under the Pensions Act 2004 see ss 314-317 (s 316 amended by Pensions Act 2008 ss 124(7)-(10), 125(3), Sch 9 paras 5, 12).

8 See ibid s 186; and SI 2005/2184 (see PARA 659D.1).

4. Board's powers to make fraud compensation transfer payments

The following provisions are in force for the purpose of conferring power to make regulations on 25 February 2010 and for all other purposes on 6 April 2010: SI 2010/443.

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply where (1) the Board assumes responsibility for a scheme<sup>2</sup>, (2) the value of the assets of the scheme was reduced after the relevant date<sup>3</sup> but before the transfer notice<sup>4</sup> was received by the trustees or managers of the scheme and there are reasonable grounds for believing that the reduction was attributable to an act or omission constituting an offence<sup>5</sup>, and (3) no application was made<sup>6</sup> in respect of that reduction (or any such application was withdrawn before it was determined)<sup>7</sup>. The Board may transfer an amount from the Fraud Compensation Fund to the Pension Protection Fund ('fraud compensation transfer payment') in respect of the reduction in value, subject to these provisions<sup>8</sup>. The Board must obtain any recoveries of value<sup>9</sup>, to the extent that it may do so without disproportionate cost and within a reasonable time<sup>10</sup>. No fraud compensation transfer payment may be made until the date determined by the Board as the date after which further recoveries of value are unlikely to be obtained without disproportionate cost and within a reasonable time<sup>11</sup>. It is for the Board to determine whether anything received by it is to be treated as a payment<sup>12</sup> received in respect of any such act or omission<sup>13</sup>. The amount of any fraud compensation transfer payment (or, if there is more than one, the aggregate) must not exceed the difference between (a) the amount of the reduction (or, if more than one, the aggregate amount of the reductions) within head (2) above, and (b) the amount of any recoveries of value obtained by the Board before the date determined by the Board<sup>14</sup>. Subject to the above provision<sup>15</sup> the Board must determine the amount of any fraud compensation transfer payment in accordance with regulations made for these purposes<sup>16</sup>.

5. Fraud Compensation Fund

The following provisions are all in force by 6 April 2010: SI 2005/1720, SI 2010/443.

The Fraud Compensation Fund must consist of (1) any property and rights transferred<sup>1</sup> which the Board designates as assets of the Fund, (2) contributions levied under the fraud compensation levy<sup>2</sup>, (3) money borrowed by the Board<sup>3</sup> for the purposes of Chapter 4 of Part 2 of the Pensions Act 2004<sup>4</sup>, (4) amounts recovered with respect to interim payments<sup>5</sup>, and (5) any income or capital gain credited under the provision below<sup>6</sup>. ## 6.    Fraud compensation levy

For the purposes of meeting expenditure payable out of the Fraud Compensation Fund, regulations may provide for the imposition of a levy ('fraud compensation levy') in respect of occupational pension schemes<sup>1</sup>. A fraud compensation levy imposed in respect of a scheme is payable to the Board by or on behalf of (1) the trustees or managers of the scheme, or (2) any other prescribed person<sup>2</sup>. A fraud compensation levy is so payable at prescribed times and at a rate, not exceeding the prescribed rate, determined by the Board<sup>3</sup>. In determining the amount of expenditure in respect of which a fraud compensation levy is to be imposed, the Board may take one year with another (and, in doing so, must have regard to expenditure estimated to be incurred in current or future periods and to actual expenditure incurred in previous periods)<sup>4</sup>. The Board must in respect of any fraud compensation levy imposed under these provisions (a) determine the schemes in respect of which it is imposed, (b) calculate the amount of the levy in respect of each of those schemes, and (c) notify any person liable to pay the levy in respect of the scheme of the amount of the levy in respect of the scheme and the date or dates on which it becomes payable<sup>5</sup>. An amount payable by a person on account of a fraud compensation levy is a debt due from him to the Board<sup>6</sup>. An amount so payable may be recovered (i) by the Board, or (ii) if the Board so determines, by the Regulator on its behalf<sup>7</sup>. Regulations may include provision relating to (A) the collection and recovery of amounts payable by way of levy under these provisions; (B) the circumstances in which any such amount may be waived<sup>8</sup>.

1     Pensions Act 2004 s 189(1). Section 189(1) does not apply in relation to any scheme which is prescribed or of a description prescribed under s 182(1)(a) (schemes not eligible for fraud compensation: see PARA 659D.1): s 189(2). ## UPDATE

598-676 Regulation of Private Pension Provision

637-659 The Pensions Compensation Board

Pensions Act 1995 ss 78-86, 96-114, Sch 2 repealed: Pensions Act 2004 Sch 13 Pt 1.

The Pensions Compensation Board is dissolved: Pensions Act 2004 s 302(1). An order under the Pensions Act 2004 s 322 appointing the day on which s 302(1) is to come into force (ie 1 September 2005: see SI 2005/1720) may provide (1) for all property, rights and liabilities to which the Pensions Compensation Board is entitled or subject immediately before that day to become property, rights and liabilities of the Board of the Pension Protection Fund (see PARA 659A), and (2) for any function of the Pensions Compensation Board falling to be exercised on or after that day, or which fell to be exercised before that day but has not been exercised, to be exercised by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund: Pensions Act 2004 s 302(2). Information obtained by the Board by virtue of the Pensions Act 2004 s 302(2) is to be treated for the purposes of ss 197-201 and 203 (disclosure of information: see PARAS 659E.7, 659E.8) as having been obtained by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund in the exercise of its functions from the person from whom the Pensions Compensation Board obtained it: s 302(3). Where tax information disclosed to the Pensions Compensation Board is obtained by the Board of the Pension Protection Fund by virtue of s 302(2), s 302(3) does not apply, and s 202(3) and (4) (see PARA 659E.7) apply as if that information had been disclosed to the Board of the Pension Protection Fund by virtue of s 202(2): s 302(4). For this purpose 'tax information' has the same meaning as in s 202: s 302(4). Where the Pensions Compensation Board's disclosure under the Pensions Act 1995 s 114(3) (see PARA 659) of information to which the Pensions Act 2004 s 302(3) applies was subject to any express restriction, the Board of the Pension Protection Fund's powers of disclosure under ss 198-201 and 203, in relation to that information, are subject to the same restriction: s 302(5).

As to the Board of the Pension Protection Fund see Pensions Act 2004 Pt 2 (ss 107-220, Schs 5-9); and PARAS 659A-659G.

The following provisions are partly in force: SI 2004/3350, 2005/275, 2005/1720, 2005/2447, 2010/443. The Pensions Act 2004 Pt 2 Ch 6 (ss 206-218) relates to reviews, appeals and maladministration.

For general and supplementary provision relating to the Pensions Act 2004 see PARA 636A.

1. Review and reconsideration by the Board of reviewable matters

Regulations must (1) provide for the Board<sup>1</sup>, on the written application of an interested person<sup>2</sup>, to give a decision ('a review decision') on any reviewable matter, and (2) require a committee of the Board constituted for the purposes of these provisions (the 'Reconsideration Committee'), on the written application of an interested person following a review decision, to reconsider the reviewable matter and give a decision ('a reconsideration decision')<sup>3</sup>.

Regulations<sup>4</sup> may (a) permit a review decision in respect of a reviewable matter of a prescribed<sup>5</sup> description to be made otherwise than on an application, and (b) permit a reconsideration decision in respect of such a matter to be made otherwise than on an application<sup>6</sup>. Regulations must provide for the Board's powers on making a review decision or reconsideration decision to include power (i) to vary or revoke the determination, direction or other decision already made by the Board in respect of the reviewable matter, (ii) to substitute a different determination, direction or decision, (iii) to provide for such variations, revocations or substitutions, or any determinations, directions or other decisions made as a result of the review decision or reconsideration decision, to be treated as if they were made at such time (which may be a time prior to the making of the review decision or reconsideration decision) as the Board considers appropriate, (iv) to provide for any notice varied, substituted, issued or given by the Board as a result of the review decision or reconsideration decision, to be treated as if it were issued or given at such time (which may be a time prior to the making of the review decision or reconsideration decision) as the Board considers appropriate, (v) generally to deal with the matters arising on the review decision or reconsideration decision as if they had arisen on the original determination, direction or decision, (vi) to pay such compensation as the Board considers appropriate to such persons as it may determine, and (vii) to make savings and transitional provision<sup>7</sup>. Regulations must include provision (A) about applications under the regulations for a review decision or reconsideration decision in respect of a reviewable matter, including the times by which they are to be made, (B) requiring notice of such applications, or of a decision of the Board or the Reconsideration Committee<sup>8</sup> to give a review decision or reconsider a reviewable matter otherwise than on such an application, to be given to interested persons in relation to the matter, (C) with a view to securing that individuals concerned in giving a reconsideration decision were not concerned in the reviewable matter in respect of which the decision is to be made, (D) as to the procedure for reaching and giving decisions under the regulations, including rights of interested persons to make representations to the Reconsideration Committee on a reconsideration<sup>9</sup>, and the times by which decisions are to be given, and (E) requiring notice of the review decision or the reconsideration decision in respect of a reviewable matter to be given to interested persons in relation to the matter<sup>10</sup>.

Regulations may provide, in relation to any reference in Sch 9 to a failure by the Board to do any act or make any determination, that (1) the reference is to be construed as a reference to a failure by the Board to do the act or make the determination within a prescribed period, and (2) the reference is to be construed as not including a failure to do the act or make the determination which first occurs after a prescribed time: Pensions Act 2004 s 206(2). See Pension Protection Fund (Reviewable Matters) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/600 (See PARA 636A); and Occupational Pension Schemes (Fraud Compensation Payments and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2184 (see PARA 659D.1). Regulations may make provision suspending the effect of any determination, direction or other act of the Board, or any notice given or issued by it, which relates to a reviewable matter until (a) the period within which the matter may be reviewed by virtue of the Pensions Act 2004 Pt 2 Ch 6 has expired, and (b) if the matter is so reviewed (i) the review and any reconsideration, (ii) any reference to the PPF Ombudsman in respect of the matter, and (iii) any appeal against his determination or directions, has been finally disposed of: s 206(3). See SI 2005/2184 above. For the meaning of 'the PPF Ombudsman' see PARA 659F.3. Regulations may amend the Pensions Act 2004 Sch 9 by (A) adding to it any other description of determination, act or failure of, or matter determined or for determination by, the Board, or (B) removing from it any such determination, act, failure or matter for the time being mentioned in it: s 206(4). Such regulations must (1) provide for the Board to investigate and give decisions on matters complained of in relevant complaints, and (2) provide for a committee of the Board, on applications following such decisions, to investigate matters complained of and give decisions on them<sup>2</sup>. Such regulations may, in particular, make provision (a) about the making of relevant complaints and applications under the regulations, including the times by which they are to be made, (b) with a view to securing that individuals concerned in giving a decision were not concerned in the matter which is the subject of the relevant complaint in question, (c) as to the procedure for reaching and giving decisions under the regulations, including (i) rights of prescribed persons to make representations to the Board, on an investigation under regulations made under head (2), and (ii) the times by which decisions are to be given, and (d) requiring notice (A) of a relevant complaint under the regulations, or (B) of a decision under the regulations in respect of the complaint, to be given to prescribed persons in relation to the matter<sup>3</sup>. Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/15. REGULATION OF PRIVATE PENSION PROVISION/(3) REGISTRATION OF OCCUPATIONAL AND PERSONAL PENSION SCHEMES/661. The Registrar of Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes and the register.

661. The Registrar of Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes and the register.

There continues to be a Registrar of Occupational and Personal Pension Schemes<sup>1</sup> and the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority<sup>2</sup> ('the authority') is the registrar<sup>3</sup>. The registrar may appoint an agent to perform any function of the registrar<sup>4</sup>.

The registrar must continue to compile and maintain the register established in 1991<sup>5</sup> and the register must contain the following information in so far as it is applicable to the scheme:

- 1535 (1) the name and address of the scheme<sup>6</sup>;
- 1536 (2) the names of the trustees of the scheme;
- 1537 (3) the address to which communications for the attention of the trustees are to be directed<sup>7</sup>;
- 1538 (4) the name of the scheme administrator<sup>8</sup>;
- 1539 (5) whether the scheme is an open, closed or frozen scheme<sup>9</sup>;
- 1540 (6) the name (and, if there has been a change of name, the previous name) and address of every employer of earners in employment to which the scheme relates or has at any time since 6 April 1975 related;
- 1541 (7) the total membership<sup>10</sup>;
- 1542 (8) whether the scheme provides money purchase benefits, benefits other than money purchase benefits, or a combination of such benefits<sup>11</sup>;
- 1543 (9) whether scheme benefits, or any of them, are secured by a contract of insurance or annuity contract, and (if so) the name and address of the insurer with which the benefits are secured;
- 1544 (10) the date the scheme became registrable<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1545 (11) any reference number assigned to the scheme by the Board of Inland Revenue<sup>13</sup>.

The register may also contain a compilation of statistical data derived from information held on the register<sup>14</sup>.

It is the duty of the trustees of a registrable scheme to provide the registrar:

- 1546 (a) within three months of the date upon which the scheme becomes a registrable scheme, where that date is on or after 1 April 1997, with the information specified in heads (1) to (11) above; and
- 1547 (b) within three months of the registrar's, on or after 1 April 1997, sending by post to the trustees a written notice requiring that information to be furnished, with such information incidental to that so specified as the registrar may reasonably require for the purposes of the register<sup>15</sup>.

Where the registrar has received all or a part of the information required by head (a) above, and by the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation, from the trustees of a registrable scheme, the registrar must make an entry relating to that scheme in the register<sup>16</sup>.

Except in relation to information about the total membership, it is the duty of the trustees of a registrable scheme to notify the registrar of any change in the information provided to the registrar under these provisions, or which is treated<sup>17</sup> as so provided, and of the date of any such change, within 12 months of the occurrence of that change, or of 1 April 1997, whichever is the later<sup>18</sup>. The trustees of a registrable scheme must notify the registrar of any change in the total membership within 12 months of the change<sup>19</sup>.

Where any person, without reasonable cause, fails to comply with any duty so imposed, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>20</sup>.

Any person who knowingly or recklessly provides the registrar with information which is false or misleading in a material particular is guilty of an offence if the information:

- 1548 (i) is provided in purported compliance with a requirement as to registration<sup>21</sup>;
or
- 1549 (ii) is provided otherwise than as mentioned in head (i) above but in circumstances in which the person providing the information intends, or could reasonably be expected to know, that it would be used by the registrar for the purpose of discharging his functions under the Pension Schemes Act 1993<sup>22</sup>.

Any person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>23</sup> and on conviction on indictment to imprisonment or a fine, or to both<sup>24</sup>.
